THE

Irish Rebellion:

OR, AN.

HISTORY

Of the Beginnings and first Progress of the General Rebellion raised within the Kingdom of.

IRELAND.

Upon the Three and twentieth Day of OCTOBER, in the Year 1641.

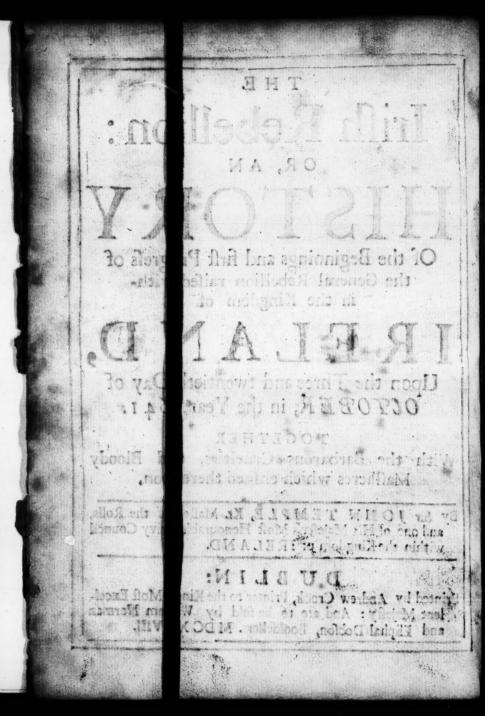

TOGETHER

With the Barbarous Cruelties, and Bloody Maffacres which enfued thereupon.

By Sir JOHN TEMPLE, Kt. Master of the Rolls, and one of His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council within the Kingdom of IRELAND.

DUBLIN:

Printed by Andrew Crook, Printer to the King's Most Excellent Majesty: And are to be fold by William Norman and Eliphal Dobson, Booksellers, M DC XC VIII.

The Preface to the Reader.

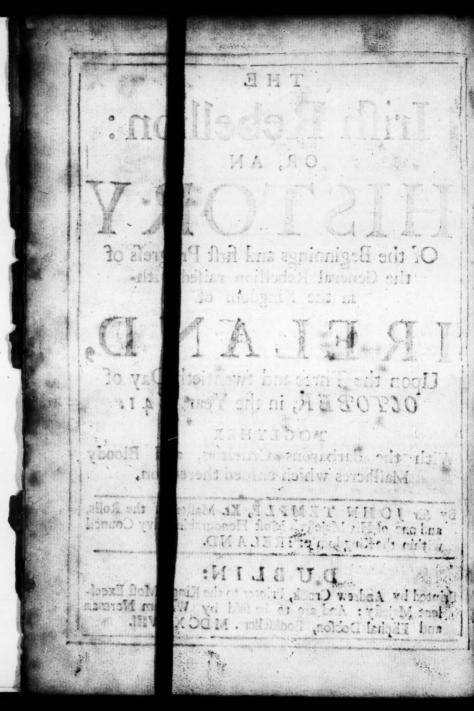

Have here adventured to present unto publish riew, the beginnings and first progress of the Rebellion lately raised within this Kingdom of federal. And alough I cannot but take notice of fuch a multitude of imperfections in my felf as render me very unfit for the performance of this fervice : As alfo, that I fhall thereby raife up much malice, and private dipleafure, as well against my person, as my undertakings herein: Yet such is my zeal and most earnest defire to appear in this cause, as being now laid aside, and for the present disabled in any to appear in this cause, as being now laid aside, and for the present aliabled in any other way to be further useful to this unhappy Kingdom. I reloved to dany my self, and wholly departing from my own interests, to employ my weak endeavours, in setting down the sad Story of our miseries. I might peradventure with much more advantage to my own particular have looked back (as far wifer men have done in their troubles) and passed my time in foreign collections, or penning some story of times long since pass, where the chief Astors are at reft, and their angulet spirits so surely laid, as they are not to be moved with the sharpest charge that can be laid on their memories: Mulli provides pecusian Achilles. Most men are great lovers of themselves and such constant admirers of their own actions, as they think they do well to be angry and such constant admirers of their own actions, as they think they do well to be angry and such constant admirers of their own actions, as they think they do well to be angry and such constant admirers of their own actions, as they frink they do wen to be angly at any thing that shall (though never so truly) be reported to their disadvantage. They consider not their own natural imbedishies, their passions, distempers, or is affections which lead them on to advise or act things of an ill same; but are ready to sty in the faces of those who shall even in the fairest characters represent or leave any impressions of them. Hence it is that the truth of things comes quite to be overshedowed with falle colours, and so to remain as it were buried give; or otherwise to appear extremity dissigned strongli gress errors, base flattery, or willias mistakes. For most men that we present advanturers in this kind, we wise enough to apprehend their own danger; and thereupon departing from the common interest that every other man hath in their Story, resect only upon their own particular, and suffer themselves to be overstaved with the humour of the present from particular persons, as they trensmit very impersect and maker relations, or otherwise fill them up with such counterfeis stuff, as posterity will own little to their information.

Monstant is Possible, a purson of extraordinary the 4th of France, undertook as it appears by a laster of his to Mangae. Languer, to write a Story of those times wherein he lived. But runned find thus he ever luffered that work to come to the Press; whether by just apprehensions discouraged from publication, or whether it otherwise missarried, is cannot find thus he ever luffered that work to come to the Press; whether by just apprehensions discouraged from publication, or whether it otherwise missarried. It cannot find thus he ever luffered that work to come to the Press; whether by just apprehensions discouraged from publication, or whether it otherwise missarried, is cannot find. The number of the times, and there publishing of its story of those come to the Press; whether by at any thing that that (though never fo truly) be reported to their difadvantage.

the that after one hath writ as History he sown of it align pass same d'us effett et que Menoi lieu de l'amin d'un femme, E' d'une queville de Monfie those times, so abominable and frameful, the Plessis, Kingdom, that those wars (as the Court was act, and to be court was act, and to be court was act, and to be court was act, and further speaking on this sub-place. And further speaking on this sub-fer forth the actions of med in their true co-the confedence of an Historian to disguise or then they were in their first original.

eful, the pleffis, fol 45

The Preface to the Reader.

Have here adventured to present unto publick view, the beginnings and first progress of the Rebellion lately raised within this Kingdom of / cland. And although I cannot but take notice of fuch a multitude of imperfections in my felf as render me very unfit for the performance of this fervice : As allo, that I final thereby rails up much malice, and private displeasure, as well against my person, as my undertakings herein: Yet such is my zeal and most carned desire to appear in this cause, as being now laid aside, and for the present disabled in any other way to be surther useful to this unhappy Kingdom, I resolved to dany my sell, and wholly departing from my own interests, to employ my weak endeavours, in serting down the sad Story of our miseries. I might peradventure with much more advantages. ting down the fad Story of our mileries. I might peradventure with much more advantage to my own particular have looked back (as far wifer men have done in their troubles) and paffed my time in foreign collections, or penning fome flory of times long fince paff, where the chief Actors are at reft, and their unquiet foirits to firely laid, as they are not to be moved with the flarpest charge that can be laid on their memories: Andi grave of percuifus Achilles. Most men are great lovers of themselves and such constant admirers of their own actions, as they think they do well to be angry at any thing that shall (though never to truly) be reported to their disdorantage. They consider not their own natural imbetillities, their passions, differences, or it affections which lead them on to advise up affections, as an ill same; but are mode to at any thing that shall (though never so truly) be reported to their disidvantage. They consider not their own natural imbetissities, their passions, distengers, or ist affections which lead them on to advise or as it things of an ill same; but are ready to shy in the faces of those who shall even in the fairest characters reported to leave any impressions of them. Hence it is that the truth of things comes quite to be oversited dowed with falle colours, and so to remain as it were buried stive; or otherwise to appear extreamly dissigned the coupling gross errors, bale flattery, or willful mistakes. For most men that we present advanturers in this kind, as wife enough to apprehent their own danger; and thereupon departing from the common laterest that every other man hath in their scory, reach oals apon their own particular, and suffer themselves to be oversawed with the humour of the pursent times; or so far transported, sither with the benefits or private injuries received from particular persons, as they translate very imperfect and maker relations, or cherwise fill them up with such counterfein frust, as posterity will own little 6 their information.

Angiour do Figlis, a parsion of extraordinary abilities and fearoing, a great Minister of State under that glorious King figure, the 4th of France, undertook as it appears by a sector of his to Moneton Lague, to write a Story of those times wherein he lived. But I cannot find thus he ever infrired that work to come to the Press; whether by inflamment allifouraged from publication, or whether it under inflamment, had an accordance of the single and story of those times, and there plants permus, that after one both write an History he agreement adventure to publishing of its single of France contains a particular to the improviment to the single particular and file of the order of the single of the improviment to the improviment to the single particular and the relation of the improviment to the improviment to the little of the order of the single of the improvi

[22]

Cicero de Orate

To speak truth exactly, is highly commendable in any man, especially in one that takes upon him to be a publick informer : to raze, to corrupt a Record is a crime of a very high nature, and by the laws of the Land most severely punishable. Listories are called Testes temporum, sux verisaris, vita memorie: And certainly he doth offend in an high degree, who shall either negligently suffer, or willfully procure them to bring falle evidence; that shall make them dark Lanthorns to give light but the one fide, or as Ignes farni, to cause the Reader to wander from the truth, and vainly to follow falle shadows, or the factious humour of the writers brain. To be falle, to deceive, to ly, even in ordinary discourse, are vices commonly branded with much infamy, and held in great deterration by all good men. And therefore certainly those that arrive at finch a height of impudency, as magisterially to take upon them, not only to abuse the present, but future ages, must needs render themselves justly edi-ous. They stand responsible for other mens errors; and whereas in all other notorious offenders, their fin and their life determines at fartheft together; the fin of thele men is perpetuated after their decease, they speak when they are dead, make falle infusions into every Age, and court every new person that shall many years after cast his eyes upon their story to give belief to their lies. Therefore for my own part when I first understood this talk, I took up with it a resolution most clearly to declare the truth. I have cast up my accounts. I have let up my rest, and determine rather to displease any other man then offend my own conscience. I have neither private reflections, nor foreign ends; I am now as it were reduced into my first principles, and have taken this work upon me, meetly out of publick confiderations. All that I aim at is, that there may remain for the benefit of this prefent age, as well as of posterity, lome certain Records and Monuments of the first beginnings and fatal progress of this Rebellion, together with the horrid cruelties mon unmercifully exercised by the frib Rebels upon the Britis and Protestants within this Kingdom of Ireland That when God's time is come of returning it into the polonis of those who have been when soud's time is come or returning it into the soloms or those who have been the first Plotters or present Astors therein, and that Kingdom comes to be re-planted with British, and lettled in peace again, (which I have even in our lowest condition, with great confidence attended, and do now most undoubtedly believe will ere long be brought to pass) there may be such a course taken, such provisions made, and jush a wall of leparation fet up between the hijh and the British, as it shall not be in their power to rife up (as now and in all former Ages they have done) to defroy and root them out in a moment, before they be able to put themlelves, into a possure of defence, or to gather together to make any considerable relisioned against their bloody attempts.

I shall not pretend to entertain the Reader with political Maxims, grave Sentences, or flourishing Orations: That which I hope will cover a multitude of imperfections, or hourising Crations. That which I hope will cover multitude the Narration of is the unquestionable truth of what I shall let down in a plain and brief. Narration of all the causer and proceedings held in the raising, as also in the first Counsels and undertakings for the suppression of this hideous Rebellion.

And that I might in some measure compals my design herein, and give satisfaction

even to the most curious inquisitors after truth. I did with great care and diligence even to the most curious adjunctors after truth, I did with great care and different turn over the very Originals or authentical Copies of the voluminous examination remaining with the publick Register, and taken upon oath, by virtue of two feveral Commissions issued out under the Great Seal of this Kingdom, to examine the loses of the British, the cruelties and horrid murders committed by the trish in the defituation of them. I have peruled the publick disparates, asks, and relations, as likewise the private Letters and particular discourses, lend by the chief Gentlemen out of feveral particular discourses, as the Kingdom, to present unto the Lord Justice, and Cauncil the lad condies and Councils of the State, I have, as far as I could, without breach of truft, and the duty of aPrivy Councelleur would admit, companicated to much of them as I could the duty of aPrivy Councelleur would admit, companicated to much of them as I could the duty of aPrivy Councelleur would admit, companicated to much of them as I could the duty of a provided the particulars of the duty of the duty of the duty of the infaing the same tained within the first Pages, leading on by way of introduction to the infaing the same tained modern, who have written the flory of the land, I may confidently avow, that ave been to curious in gathering up my materials, and fo careful in putting them are the compass of my own knowledge, or that I have not received from those who are chiefly intrusted in matter of action abroad; or that came not to my hands at the dunder the oaths of credible witnesses, or clearly afferted in the voluntary continued the Rebels themselves.

every man I believe will easily assent unto me, that out of these Fountains we may resume with most certainty to draw truth, and that if we bound our inquiries with this circuit, we may well hope to arrive at the true knowledge of the main partillar passages of this late Rebellion. And therefore though I shall not obtuide every ing as infallible, which by a strict and most severe inquisition I have taken upon the founds before mentioned considering how subject men are through forgetfulness and humane imbecillity to err in the ordinary course of their relations) yet thus much suppose I may confidently say, that no man could imagine how to make collections with reater certainty. and more clear unquestionable probabilities of truth then I have ere fet down.

ĸ,

Now as for the examinations here mentioned, howfoever they were taken with it the care and circumspection that could possibly be used in so great a work, yet are her most commonly decried, and held by the Irih as very injurious to their Country-nen. Thus much I shall be bold to aver and shall here speak it for the better authority nd credit of the evidence brought in by them.

Firft, That as the Commissions for taking these examinations were after mature eliberation issued out by special order from the Lords Justices and Council; so they ere in great wildom deligned by them for no other ends then to have lome general ecount of the lofes suffered by the British, and the cruelties exercised by the Irish upon them in the feveral parts of the Kingdom. And this course was first let on foot in the very height of our troubles, when the fury of the Rebels fo desperately raged, as they were in no condition to think of the attainting of their persons, and therefore only aimed at the discovery of their treason. Out of which respect chiefly the Commissioners made choice of for the performance of this service, were fix of the Clergy, all persons of known integrity; and such as by reason of their profession, would in all probability gently proceed on in their inquifitions, and truly fet down the bloody relations given in unto them. The persons examined were of several conditions, most of them British some of Irish birth and extraction, very many of good quality, and such as were of inferiour rank were not rejected if they were known fufferers, and came freely in to declare what they could speak of their own knowledge. Few came but such as had been in the hands of the Rebels, and could with forrowful hearts make the fad relation of their own miferies. And fo they having been eye-witnesses, their depolitions are for the most part out of their own knowledge; and what is given in by them upon hear-lay, they for the most part depole, that they received it out of the Rebels own mouths, while they were in reftraint among them. Laftly, many of these miterable persons thus examined, came up wounded, others even almost familhed, or fo wars out with their fufferings, as they did not long out-live the date of their examinations; incitees:

movin

2000

Ibas.

minations: So as these testimonies being delivered in their last agence, we are charity to believe that they would leave behind them with all due circumstance, a clear attestation of such cruelties as they then bequeathed unto us with their last break

Mr Creighton in his Examination deposeth, That he heard many hister words cast one against the City of Dublin, That they would have and rain it, destroy all Records, and Monuments of the English Government, Make Laws against he king English St that all names given by English to places, should be abolished St the antist wither restored.

Bat it is not much to be wondered, if they whe had it in defign to define all the publick Records and ancient Monuments in the Kingdom, to bank both the English Law and Government, do so bitterly declaim against these evidences of their cruelty, and lively attestations given in to perpetuate the memory of them to their eternal infany.

If they could imagine which way to filence, or by what means to blaft the credit of these examinations thus folermly taken, and prevail according to their most imperations desires upon the late Treaty of Peace, to have all the indicanceres legally put is gainst the principal Rebels and their adherents, taken off the file and cancelled, the would not be out of hope, as these times now are to palliate their Rebellion with say specious pretences, as that their barbarous crueities, afted beyond all parallel being forgotten, it should with great applause pass down to posterity, under the name of holy and just war for the defence of the Catholiek Caule.

And now in order to this delign, they have taken all occasions to proclaim the huge preffures which they pretend to have suffered under the late government in this Kingdom, and space not to term it tyrannical: they speak as if their oppressions might be parallel'd with the Israelivish envassalage in the Land of Expr., and their perfecutions, for Religion equalled to those of the Primitive times. And then they surther sy, That shereupon only some Carbolicks, considering the deplarable and of special condition is were in, and apprehending the plots laid to extinguish their Religion, and Nation, did the arms in the North in minimensace of their Religion, and sor the prefervation of 187s, should and estate, together with his Majessy's rights. And that the Lord and Gentlemen dwelling mithin the English Pale, were likewise by the great rigious and severity is a by the State is marks them, enjoyeed to take up arms for their own defence.

These are the expressions and the language used in the late Remonstrance given in to his Majesty's Commissioners at Trym, to be presented to his Majesty in behalf of his Catholick Subjects in Ireland. Wherein there are pieced together to many vain ingrivances pre-confiderable funcies, many subsequent passages acted in the prosecution of the war, and ented to his such hold, notorious, falle affections, without any the least ground or colour of training in behalf of the chem to set their Lawyers and Clergy on work, to frame such reasons and motives a Catholicks of might with some colour of justification serve for arguments to defend it. And it is intelled, and deed, to speak plainty, a most infamious Pamphlet, fall fraught with serviced as a serviced in the hisparions cast upon the present government, and his Majesty's principal Officers of Majesty, some State within this Kingdom. It was certainly framed with most virulent intentions, missioners at not, to present their condition and present insterings to his Majesty's but that it might remain be dispersed to gain belief among for any states abroad, as well as discontented persons party in Ireland.

But I do not much wonder they should take thus upon them to abuse the world with such superilous discourses, and thereby endeayour to raise some ground or belief that they had just cause to enter into so desperate a Rebellion. This hath been an ordinary course west held in all designs of this nature. And it is well observed by rolphies, that there are enumerity to be found in all such great natural causes and really such as are the true natural causes and really such in their sension.

tion; the other, fuch as are most commonly obtruded to the world by way of coand justification. Now as the nature of water is most clearly seen in the first intain, where it remains pure and unmixed, without any drofs or foil that it aftereds contracts, as it paffeth along in the ftreams derived from it: So certainly the firy of all human actions is beft under food, and most clearly differsed, when we k upon them as they appear in their first original, before the inconveniencies and al miscarriages which afterwards came to be discovered, awake the first Projectors, d teach them new artifices wherewith they diffuile and colour over their abortive, otherwise unfortunatecounsels. Now as for the true Spasorian causes (if I may to m them) which induced the Irish to lay the plot of this Rebellion, and were ined really first in their thoughts, they will sufficiently appear in this ensuing Story. nd for the juftificial reasons of their rifing in Arms, if any one hath a mind to take em up on trust from themselves, let him seek no further than the Remenstrance fore mentioned; whereof much more is to be faid than I shall give my felf liberty speak in this place: well knowing that those notorious untruths and wicked imoff uses contained in it when they come to the reft will be quickly discovered, and varnish they have put upon them soon fall away of it self.

If any one hath been ignorantly deluded hereby, and delires to be reclified in his wn judgment, let him be pleafed to turn over this enfuing Story, Verum eft index fui & obtiqui :

There needs certainly no other condutation of their falle and virulent suggestions, than a true impartial relation of the first beginnings and progress of this Rebellion; which for what was afted within the space of the first two months after the breaking out of it. I presume I may say without Vanity, he shall certainly find here. It is true, I have principally applyed my self to give an account of what was done about publin, the chief City of this Kingdom, and the place where the Lords Justices and Council continued using their utmost power and endeavours to oppose the sury of the Rebels. Yet as all other parts of the Kingdom were under their Government, and sheir Care and Councels (as far as their general distractions would admit) extended to the whole; what was afted in all other places of the Country, comes properly to be pouched upon, and the miserable condition of them to be represented in this fel-

. Midust

nell sale

The Asia

lowing Story.

are fe

ces. 1

reath,

Who

Cords

dins bit.

rue|-

tBate

fit di petuina-

they

Fuch.

Cing

012 mge

ing-

ons,

16.7

ido

in fof

in-

ind

th:

25

n-

of 3, ht

I shall not here trouble the Reader with any further Apology for my felf, or with excuses for the multitude of my own imperfections, which will here appear in large Characters; and will be peradventure looked upon with a Multiplying Glass by these who are not pleased with what I have here exposed to Publick view. I do not at all pretend to filence the bitter expressions of malevolent Spirits: As I shall with great satience compose my self to bear the utmost that their malice can put upon me : So Libell be always ready with much meekness to submit to be reformed by any person whatfoever, who can make it appear, that I have either through ignorance or negligence (for I am fore wilful miffales they will find wone) miscarried in the relation of any particular here fet down: Sins of Ignorance found a very eafle expiation under the Old Law, I will not fay they had a pardon of courfe. But if I have fo carried my felf, as that no greater transgressions can be laid to my charge, I shall be much fatisfied, and may peradventure be further encouraged to proceed on to a cominuation of this Story, and therein to transmit down to posterity the noble atthevements and great Victories already obtained by finall humbers of the English forces over huge multitudes of these Iris Rebels.

The TABLE.

The first enterprise of the English for the conquest of Ireland, made by private adventures during the Reign of King Henry the Second, King of England. 2. The first of England. 2. The private after the Birth of our Saviour. 3. The numbers of British and Protestants murdered, or otherwise destroyed since the beginning of the Rebellion, unto the time of the making of the Rebellion, unto the time of the making of the first Cestation of Arms with the Irish Rebels. 3. The ancient madice born by the Irish rowards the English. 6. The Royal endeavours of Queen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. 7. The Irish Commissioners present their grievances to be Crown of England. 7. Charles: bis great readines to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenam of Ireland. 7. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. 7. The rising of the Irish in the Province of Ulster.	the plot for this late Rebellion first discovered to the Lord Mac Guire, upon Mr. John Bellewes rema out of England, with Commission to comtinue the Parliament in Ireland. That the Lords of the English Pale were ingaged in the first plot, is very probable. The Romish Clerky, and the Irish Lawyers, great instruments in raising the Rebellion. The means used by them to stir up the people. The resolution of the Irish to root out the British and of Ireland. To Upon their first rising they seize upon all the Englishmens Goods and Castle, near strip them n.ked, and so turn them out of their doors. A particular enumeration of several Bio. dy Massivers and Horsid Cruel hee exercised upon the British; all testificatup in Oath, and taken out of feveral in this; all testificatup in Oath, and taken out of feveral conquest of Ireland, made by private adventures during the Reign of King Henry the Second, King of England. bristian Religion settled in Ireland, in the fourth Age after the Birth of our Saviour. 4 In the numbers of British of our Saviour. 4 In the numbers of British of our Saviour. 4 In the numbers of British of our Saviour. 4 In the numbers of British and Protestants murdered, or otherwise destroyed since the beginning of the Rebellion, unto the time of the making of the stiffs (Cost and the Arms with the Irish Rebels. 5 The ancient matice born by the Irish Robels. 6 The Royal endeavours of Queen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. 7 The Irish Commissioners present their grievances to be Crown of England. 7 The Irish Commissioners present their grievances to be Crown of England. 7 The Irish of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. 7 The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the seizing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. 7 The rising of the Irish in the Province of Hister. 72	our of England, with Commission to commut the Parliament in Ireland. Lear the Lords of the English Pale were ingaged in the first plot, is very probable. The Romish Clerky, and the Irish Lawyers, great instruments in raising the Rebellion. The means used by them to stir up the people. To the resolution of the Irish to root out the British out of Ireland. Opan their siss fring they serve upon all the Englishmens Goods and Castle, near strip them n hed, and so turn them out of their doors. A particular enumeration of several Biordy Mossices and Herrid Gruel her exercised upon the British and Greek her doors.
ventures during the Reign of King Henry the Second, King of England. 2 To riftian Religion fested in Ireland, in the fourth Age after the Birth of our Saviour. 4 The numbers of British of our Saviour. 5 the numbers of British and Protestants murdered, or otherwise destroyed since the beginning of the Rebellion, unto the time of the making of the stiff Cestation of Arms with the Irish Rebels. 6 ancient matice born by the Irish rowards the English. 7 the Royal endeavours of Rusen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. 8 the miserable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. 10 the Irish Commissioners present their grievances to the Crown of England. 10 the Irish Commissioners present their grievances to the Crown of England. 11 The bippy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. 12 The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the seizing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. 7 the rising of the Irish in the Province of Ulster.	Parliament in Iteland. that the Lords of the English Pale were ingaged in the first plot, is very probable. The Romish Glerky, and she Itish Lawyers, great instruments in raising the Rebellion. The regolution of the Itish so root out the British and of Ireland. "Opan their sis if trising they seize upon all the Englishmens Goods and Castle, near strip them in hea, and for turn them out of their doors. A particular enumeration of several Biordy Messices and Herrid Gruel her exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Gruel her exercised upon the British and Castle, seem of the property of the British and Herrid Gruel her exercised upon the British and Herrid Gruel her exercised upon the British and the prid Gruel her exercised upon the British and Castle her exercised upon
Second, King of England. Driffian Religion festled in Ireland, in the fourth Age after the Birth of our Saviour. Age after the Birth of our Saviour. The numbers of British and Protestants murdered, or otherwise destroyed since the beginning of the Re- bellion, unto the time of the making of the first Cessaviour of Arms with the Irish Robels. The ancient malice born by the Irish sowards the English. The Royal endeavours of Rusen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. The miserable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. The Irish Commissioners present their gireviness to K. Charles: his great readiness to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The hippy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the feiring upon the Castle and City of Dublin.	that the Lords of the English Pale were ingaged in the first plot, is very probable. The Romish Clergy, and the Itish Lawyers, great instruments in raising the Robellion. The means used by them to stir up the people. To the resolution of the Irish to root out the British out of Ireland. To Upon their sister first rising they serve upon all the Englishment Goods and Cattle, near strip them n. hed, and so turn them out of their doors. To have the interest of the roots and the raid Gruel seem of several Blocky Messers and Herrid Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the great cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the British cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the great cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the great cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the great cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the great cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the great cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the great cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the great cies and the side Gruel see exercised upon the great cies and ci briftian Religion settled in Ireland, in the fourth Age after the Birth of our Saviour. 4 2 be numbers of Birtish and Protestants murdered, or otherwise destroyed since the beginning of the Re- bellion, unto the time of the making of the selfish, the Reyal endeavours of Rusen Elizabeth for the English. The Reyal endeavours of Rusen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. 8 The Irish Commissioners present their grirounness to K. Charles: bis great readiness to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The hippy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Compressey of the Irish, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. The rishes of the Irish in the Province of Ulster. 22	the fift plot, is very probable. The Romill Clergy, and the Itish Lawyers, great in firuments in raising the Robeltion. The means yield by them to stir up the people. The resolution of the Ivish to root out the British out of Ireland. Open their first rising they seize upon all the Englishmens Goods and Cattle, near strip them n. hed, and so turn them out of their doors. To have ticular enumeration of several Blocky Messages and Herrid Cruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Cruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Cruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Cruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Cruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Cruel see exercised upon the British cies and Herrid Cruel see exercised upon the British cies and the second control of the control of Age after the Birth of our Saviour. be numbers of British and Protestants murdered, or otherwise destroyed since the beginning of the Rebellion, unto the time of the making of the slift Cellation of Arms with the Irish Rebels. be ancient malies born by the Irish rowards the English. The Reyal endeavours of Queen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. The miserable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. The Irish Commissioners present their grievances to the Crown of England. The Irish Commissioners present their grievances to the Learl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Comprisesy of the Irish, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin.	The Romish Glerky, and the Irish Lawyers, great in struments in raising the Ribellion. The regulation of the Irish to root out the British out of Ireland. Opan their first rising they series upon all the Englishmens Goods and Cattle, near strip them n hed, and so turn them out of their doors. A particular enumeration of several Biordy Mossices and Hermid Gruel her exercised upon the British and Hermid Gruel hermid Gruel hermid upon the British and Hermid Gruel h be numbers of British and Protestants murdered, or otherwise destroyed since the beginning of the Rebellion, unto the time of the making of the first Cession of Arms with the Irish Rebels. be ancient malice born by the Irish towards the English. The Reyal endeavours of Queen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. The miserable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. To the Irish Commissioners present their grievances to a K. Charles: bis great readines to redress them 12 to. Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin.	struments in raising the Rebellion. Che medas used by them to stir up the people. The resolution of the Ivish to root out the British out of Ireland. Opan their first rising they series upon all the Englishment Goods and Cattle, near strip them n hed, and so turn them out of their doors. A particular enumeration of several Blocky Mossices and Heroid Gruel her exercised upon the British and Heroid Gruel her exercised upon the British and Heroid Gruel her exercised upon the otherwise destroyed sime the beginning of the Rebellion, unto the time of the making of the slift Cestation of Arms with the Irish Rebels. be ancient malice born by the Irish rewards the English. for Reyal endeavours of Quaen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. The miserable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. The Irish Commissioners present their givenizes to K. Charles: his grew readiness to redress them 12 Ireland. The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the seizing upon the Castle and City of Dublin.	The means used by them to stir up the people. To the resolution of Ireland. Op Ireland. Opon their fift rising they serve upon all the Englishment Goods and Cattle, near strip them n hed, and so turn them out of their doors. A particular enumeration of several Blocky Messives and Hernid Gruel her exercised upon the British and Hernid British a bellion, unto the time of the making of the first Cessation of Arms with the Irith Rebels. be ancient malice born by the Irith towards the English. The Royal endeavours of Queen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. The miserable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. The Irith Commissioners present their grieviness to K. Charles, bis great readings to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The hippy condition of Ireland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irith, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin.	The rejolution of the Ivilh to root out the British on of Ireland. 76 Upon their fift rising they seize upon all the Englishment Goods and Castle, near first them n hed, and fo turn them out of their doors. 79, 80 A particular enumeration of several Bloody Mellicies and Heroid Gruel her exercised upon the British and Heroid British and Heroid British and Heroi Cessarion of Arms with the Irish Robels. the ancient matice born by the Irish sowards the English. The Royal endeavours of Queen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. The milerable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. The Irish Commissioners present their girevances to K. Charles: his great readines to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The hippy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Confpiency of the Irish, for the feiring upon the Castle and City of Dublin.	of Ireland the ancient malies born by the Irish sowards the English. The Royal endeavours of Queen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. The milerable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. The Irish Commissioners present their grievances to K. Charles: bis great readings to redress them 12 the Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Confpiency of the Irish, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin.	Open their field rifing they scient upon all the Englishmens Goods and Cattle, near first them n hed, and so turn them out of their doors. 79, 80 A particular enumeration of several Blocky Messices and Heroid Gruel her exercised upon the Bitages.
English. The Reyal endexiours of Queen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. By He miserable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. To the Irish Commissioners present their grievances to the K. Charles: bis great readines to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin.	mens Goods and Castle, near first them n hed, and fo turn them out of their doors. A particular enumeration of several Biordy Mussices and Hernid Gruel her exercised upon the Bi-rbe Royal endeavours of Rusen Elizabeth for the reducing of Ireland. 8 rbe miserable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. 10 the Irish Commissioners present their griruintes to K. Charles: bis great readines to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the feixing upon the Castie and City of Dublin.	fo turn them out of their doors. 79, 80 A particular enumeration of several Blody Moss. cres and Havid Cruel sea exercised upon the Bi-
reducing of Ireland. The miserable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. The Irish Commissioners present their grievances to a K. Charles: his great readines to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the feizing upon the Castle and City of Dublin.	A particular enumeration of several Bloody Mossicres and Hand Gruel des exercised upon the Bir reducing of Ireland. The miserable condition of Ireland when King James came to the Crown of England. The Irish Commissioners present their grievances to a K. Charles: his great readines to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the feizing upon the Castle and City of Dublin.	cres and Howid Cruel des exercifed upon the Bit
James came to the Crown of Brigland. The Irith Commissioners present their griruintes to K. Charles: his great readines to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Confpirescy of the Irith, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. The rising of the Irith in the Province of Uliter, 23	cres and Horid Cruel les exercifed upon the Bri- tifh; all teff ified up in Oath, and taken out of feveral
James came to the Crown of England. The Irith Commissioners present their griruintes to K.Charles: bis great readines to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Confpirescy of the Irith, for the feizing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. The rising of the Irith in the Province of Uliter. 23	tilh; all teft ified up in Oath, and taken out of feveral
The Irish Commissioners present their grirounces to K. Charles: bis great readines to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Confpirescy of the Irish, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. The rising of the Irish in the Province of Uliter, 23
A. Charles: bis great readines to redress them 12 The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irith, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. The rising of the Irith in the Province of Uliter. 22	Examinations, inferted in the margin. 82
The Earl of Leicester declared Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The happy condition of Areland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Confpiracy of the Irilh, for the feizing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. The riling of the Irilh in the Province of Ulfter. 23	The Remonstrance of the Protoffants of Munfter. 92
Ireland. The happy condition of Arcland, at the time of the breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, for the seizing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. The rising of the Irish in the Province of Ulster. 23	The Examinations of several persons inhabiting with breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Confpiracy of the Irish, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. The rising of the Irish in the Province of Ulster. 23	in the several Provinces of this Kingdom taken upon breaking out of the Rebellion. The manner of the discovery of the Confpiracy of the Irish, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. The rising of the Irish in the Province of Ulster. 23	Oath: wherein are deposed several porticulars con
The manner of the discovery of the Confpiracy of the Irith, for the feixing upon the Castle and City of Dublin. The rifine of the Irith in the Province of Ulfter, 22	cerning the Murders and Cruelties ufed by the Re
Irith, for the feizing upon the Galtle and City of Dublin.	bels to the British in all parts of the Country, 107
Dublin, The rifing of the Trill in the Province of Ulfter. 23	Several Examinations concerning the Apparisins at
The rifing of the Trill in the Province of Ulfter. 22	Portnedewn Bridge. Tilled Said Stade 12:
O. Carrier and A. Car	The cruchies afted by the Irifft upon the British
A Letter from the Lords Jufficc's and Council to the	were before any provocation given them! 311 12
Lord Lientenant. 27	Concerning the Adjournment of the Parliament
A Proclamation iffued out for the farisfaction of the	ilreland of a rules dileton harries fo
Lords and chief Gentlemen of the English Pale. 33	The approach of the Rebels to Tredugh, and the de
The names of the chief Rebels in Ulfter; feveral	fear of the English forces fent for the ellef of th Forus and places of strength Suddenly Surprized by	Town.
bear of the partielly man agolog A contra	The defection of the Lords and shief Gentlemen of t Several policies used by the Irish to prevent the rising	English Pale.
of the English against them. 36	The manner of their conjunction with the Northe
sir Phelim O'Neal's proceedings in Uffer. 39	Rebels.
The Second dispatch of the Lords Auffices and Coun-	Their refusal to repair to the Lords Juffices & ell into England. on tage 1 mg ost salant 41	" Council and a west on the win a promo were to a The Proceedings of the Parliamentin Bugland upon	Their proceedings after they had joyned with upon the first advertisements brought unto them of	Northein Rebelsis i b lant amailet, aperagin the Rebellion raffed in Ireland.	The Kingdom of Scotland Sends Commiffioners Order taken for victualling the Caftle of Dublin, and	treat with the Pa liament of England concern for the fafety of the City and and 46	the relief of Ireland.
The fad condition of the City of Dublin van at 154	Their propositions debated in the Houfe of Peers. 1
The particulars of the first plot of the Rebellion . 8
The slot for A reported Rabellinis in Training of the	The remais of the Pranting of the Con anient datel and towo toring a light oft to egg.	The revels of the Province of Munker 39	The revolt of the Province of Muniter.

Irish Rebellion:

OR,

An History of the Beginnings, and First Progress of the General Rebellion Raised within the Kingdom of Ireland, in the Year 1641.

HE Kingdom of Ireland (which hath for almost Five hundred years continued under the Sovereignty of the Crown of England) was presently after the first Conquest of it, planted with English Colonies, long since worn out, or for the most part become Irish. And therefore it hath again in this last Age been supplied with great numbers of People drawn out of England and Scotland, to settle their Habitations in that Country. Now the most execrable plot laid by the Irish, for the Universal extirpation of all these British and Protestants, the bloody progress of their Rebellion within the compass of the first two months; their horrid cruelties, in most barbarously murdering, or otherwise destroying many thousands of men, women and children, peaceably settled, and securely intermixed among them, and that without any provocation, or considerable resistance at first made, I intend shall be the present subject of the first Part of this ensuing Story.

The Irish want not many Fabulous Inventions to magnifie the very first The Original beginnings of their Nation: Whether the Scythians, Gauls, Africans, of the Irish. Goths, or some other more Eastern Nation that anciently inhabited Spain, came and sate down first in Ireland, I shall not much trouble my self here to enquire. If we should give credit to the Irish Chronicles or their Bards (who deliver no certain truths) we might find stuff enough for an ancient pedegree, made up out of a most various strange composure of the Irish Nation. But to let them pass, there are certainly a concurrence of divers manners and customs, such affinity of several of their words and names.

and fo great resemblance of many long used rites, and still retained cere, monies as do give us some ground to believe that they do not improbably deduce their first original from some of those people. It may very *Tools of the well be conjectured for infalliable Records I find none) that as the Eaftern parts of Ireland, bordering upon England were first planted by the old Britain word Toll, a . old Britains: *Toole, Birne & Cauvenagh the ancient Septs, and still inhahill-Country. bitants of that part of the Country, being old British words. And as the Brime of Brin, Northern parts of Ireland were first inhabited by the Sylbians, from woods. Canvenagh of whom it was called * Sevienland, or Scotland: So the Southern and more Canve frong Western parts thereof were peopled from the Maritime parts of Spain, The view of being the next continent, not by the now Spanish Nation, who are reland by Spencer f. 33 strangely compounded of a different mixture of several people: But as I faid, peradventure by the Gaules, who anciently inhabited all the Sea.  Ireland is often called coasts of Spain, the Syrians, or some other of those more Eastern Nations. Scotia Major who intermixing with the natural Inhabitants of that Country, made a among aneient writers, transmigration into Ireland, and so settled some colonies there

The whole Kingdom of Ireland was divided into divers petty princi-Ireland anciently dipalities, of later times there were five principal Chieftains, viz. Macvided into Morough of Leinster, Mac-Cartye of Munster, O Neal of Ulster, O Connor divers petty of Conaght, & O Malaghlin of Meath, For such were the Irish denomiprincipalities. nations, and I do not find they were called Kings till about the time of Ifti reges non the coming over of the English, Giraldus Cambrensis who came into Irefuerunt ordi nati folemnita land in the time of Hen. 2 of England, being the first writer that gives te alieujus or them that title. Besides, as they came not in either by hereditary right dinis nec uncor lawful Election, fo their Investiture was solemnized neither by Untionis facramento, nec jure Ction, or Coronation, they made their way by the Sword, had certain kinds of barbarous cerimonies used at their Inauguration, kept up their bareditario, wel aliqua pro- power with a high hand, and held the people most monstrougy enslaved cissime, sed vito all the savage customs practifed under their dominion And thus they Farmis qui. continued until the Reign of Hen. 2. King of England in whose time the liber regnum undertakings for the Conquest of Ireland were successfully made by fuum obtinuit most powerful, though private adventures upon this occasion

The black Dermote Mac. Morough King of Leinster (being by the Kings of Conagle book of Christ church & Meanb enforced to she his country) made his repair dir Chy to Hene in Dublin, it is 2. King of England, then personally attending his Wars in France, an ancient and with much carnestiness implored his aid for the recovery of his Manuscript territories in Ireland, most injuriously, as he preceded, wrested out of kept there. The first en-his hands. The King refused to imbarque himself in this quarrel; yet terprise of the graciously recomended the Justice of his cause to all his loving Subjects, English upon and by his Letters Patents assured them that whosever would afford Ireland made the said Mac. Morough assistance towards his resettlement, should not adventure.

Ty

2-

he

2-

he

re

7,

re

28

2, s,

Cir.

f ŧ

i

mly have free liberty to transport their Forces, but be held to do very se noftram au eceptable service, therein Hereupon Earl Strangebon first engaging hoc tam grainself, determined as a private Adventurer to endeavour his restitution tiam noverit ith the utmost force he could raise, he lying then very conveniently at quam liconrifol, where Mac. Morough came unto him, in his passage back from the Gir. Caming into Ireland; There were certain conditions agreed upon between bren, expuhem, and a transaction made by Mac-Morough of his Kingdom of gnat. Hibec, t. emfter unto the Earl, upon his marriage with his only daughter Eva. and so he being desirous to return speedily into his own Country, passed o St. Davids in South-Whals, from whence is the shortest passage out of England into Ireland, and there he further engaged Fitz-Stephen & Fitz Gerald, private Gentlemen, in this fervice: Thefe, by their power among their Country-men in those parts, having gotten togethar a party of 90 men, transported them in three ships into Ireland, landing at the Camba. cap. 1. Banne, a little Creek near Featherd in the County of Wexford, and there eyning with some Forces brought unto them by Mac: Morough, made their first attempt upon the town of Wexford, they were Gallantly seconded by Earl Strang bow, who followed presently after with no very considerable forces: & yet by the power of their arms, within a very short time prevailed so far in the Country, as they made themselves Masters thereof, & so gained the possession of all the maritine parts of Leinster. King Henry upon the news of their prosperous success in the sudden K. Henry the reducement of fo large a territory by fuch inconfiderable forces as they 2, his expedicarried with them; defirous to share with his Subjects in the rich fruits as tion into Irewell as in the glory of fo great an action undertook an expedition in his land. An. 1172. own person into Ireland the year following. And so strange an influence had the very presence of this great Prince into the minds of the rude lavage Natives, as partly by the power of his arms, partly by his grace & favour in receiving of them in upon their fained fubmissions most humbly tendred unto him, he easily subdued a barbarous divided people.

The first beginnings of the Conquest of this Kingdom were thus glorioully laid by this King, in the year of our Lord 1172 Now for the Land it felf, he found it good & flourishing with many excellent commodities, plentifull in all kinds of provision, the Soil rich and fertile, the Air sweet & temperate, the Heavens very fafe and commodious, feveral. Towns and little Villages scattered up and down in the several parts of the Country; but the Buildings fo poor and contemptible, as when that King arrived at Dublin their chief City, and finding there neither place fit for receipt or entertainment, he fet up a long house made of smoothed wattles after the manner of the Country, and therein kept his Christimas. All their Forts, Caftles, stately buildings & other edifices were afterwards erected by the English,

Log. Hoveden English, except some of their maritine towns which were built by the calls it Palati-Oftmanni or Easterlings who anciently came and inhabited in Ireland. um regium mi-Moreover he found likewise by several monuments of piety, and other ro artificio de wirgis leviga-remarkable testimonies, that Christian Religion had been long fince ineis ad modumtroduced and planted among the inhabitants of the Land. It is not certains patria illius ly without some good grounds affirmed by ancient writers, That in the conftrudum. fourth age after the incarnation of our bleffed Lord & Saviour, some holy fol. 528. Christian Re-& learned men came over out of Foreign parts into Ireland, out of their ligion fettled pious defires to propogate the bleffed Gospel throughout the Kingdom, as Sedulius, Palladius, & belides several others Patricius the famious Irish in Ireland: By Sedulim, Saint, (A Britainborn at a place now called Kirk-Patrick near Glascow in Palladius, Pa Scotland then the utmost boundary of the Britains dominions in those fourth age af-parts) who out of meer devotion came and fpent much of their time ater the birth mong the Irish, & out of their zealous affections for the coveration of a of our Saviour, barbarous people, applied themselves with great care & industry to the infructing of them in the true grounds & principals of Christian Religion. And with so great success, & such unwearied endeavours did S. Patriet travel in this work, as, if we will give credit to some writers) we must believe that the Church of Armagh was by him erected into an Archiepist copal See, three hundred & fifty Bishops consecrated, great numbers of Clergy-men instituted, who (notwith and ing the notorious impiety & continued prophaness of the common fort of people) being most of them Monks by vow & profession, of great learning, very austere & strict in their discipline, were so much taken notice of in those rude ignorant times, by other Nations, as in respect of them some gave unto the I-sland the denomination of Insula Sanctorum. But so quickly did the power of holiness decay in the land, as the name was soon lost, & even the very prints & sharastery thereof among the very Clergy themselves obliterated:

Rex Anglorum prints& characters thereof among the very Glergy themselves obliterated; Hen, nuncios the life of the people so beaftly, their manners to depraved and barbarfollower Romamous, as that King Henry, when he entertained the first thoughts of transwittens roga- fering his Arms over into Ireland, made fuit unto the Pope, that he wit Papam A would give him leave to go & conquer Ir land & reduce those heaftly drianum ut f. would give him leave to go & conquer Ir land, & reduce those beaftly bi licent Hiber-men unto the way of truth. Answerable whereunto was the tenor of Pope nia Infulam in- Adrians Bull, as appears at large in Paristensis, whereby he gave him listare, & ter- berty to go over & subdue the Irish Nation. A sufficient demonstration sam fubjugare of the condition of that people, and what opinion was held of them, as illos besides well by the holy Father the Pope as other Princes. And the King at his ad fidem, & arival found them no other than a beaftly people indeed, For the Inhabiviam reducere tants were generally devoid of all manner of civility governed by no fetmeritaris. Mat. led law, living like beafts, biting and devouring one another, without all rules, cultoms, or reasonable constitutions either for regulation of 1156a A 3 Property,

Property, or against open force and violenc, most notorious murthers, rapes, robberies, and all other acts of inhumanity and barberism, raging without controll or due courselos punishment. Whereupon, He, without any manner of scruple, or farther inquisition into particular titles, resolving as it seems to make good by the sword the Popes donation, made a general scizure of all the lands of the whole Kingdom, and so without other ceremony took them all into his own hands.

191

n-

in:

he

ly

11

25

16

in fe !

2

1:

n.

k

t.

f

And that he might the more speedily introduce Religion and civility, Rex antiquant and fo draw on towards the accomplishment of that great work which ab Hibernia he had fo gloriously begun, he First, in a great Councel held at Liffemore, lium congregacaused the Laws of England to be received & settled in Ireland, then he vir apud Lifafterwards united it to the Imperial Crown of England, making large more, jubi leges distributions to his followers by particular grants, allotting out in great Anglia abproportions the whole Land of Ireland among the English Commanders, omnibus grawho made estates, and gave several sares to thier freinds and commili-cepta & juratants that came over private adventurers with them. But before I pass toria cautione further, I shall take the liberty here to insert one observation out of Gi-prastina confirraldus Cambrensis concerning the cause and reasons of the prosperity of Paris. Mat. the English undertakings in Ireland. He faith that a Synod, or Counfel 1172. of the Clergy, being there affembled at Armagh, and that point ful- Ireland divily debated, it was unanimously agreed by them all, that the fins of the ded by K. Hen: people were the occasion of that heavy judgment then fallen upon their 2. among his Nation, and that especially their buying of English min from Merchants other advanand Pirates, and detaining them under a most miserable hard bondage, turers. had caused the Lord by way of just retaliation, to leave them to be Decretum eft reduced by the English to the same flavery. Whereupon they made a pub iraque pradilick ad in that Council, that all the English held in captivity through- do concilio, & out the whole Land, should be presently restored to their former liberty tis confensu cum univerfita-If so heavy a Judgement fell then upon the Irish for their hard usage of publice Statusome few English, what are they now to expect? or what expiration can tum: ut Angli they now pretend to make for the late effusion of so much innocent Eng-ubique per inlife blood, after fo horrid, despitful and execrable a manner? There be-tis vinculo ing fince the Rebellion first brake out, unto the time of the Ceffation maneipati in made Sept. 15, 1643. which was not full two years after, above 300000 priftinam re-British & Presest ans cruelly murthered in cold blood, destroyed some o-vecentur biath ther way, or expelled out of their habitations, according to the strictest Camb expurconjecture & computation, of those who feemed best to understand the Hib. cap fre numbers of English planted in Ireland, besides those few which perished The numbers in the heat of Fight, during the war.

Ring John came into Ireland during his minority, thought to little groved fines purpose, but after, about the twelfth year of his Reign, upon the gene-the Rebellion

The fruitless ral defection of the Irish, he made a Second expedition, and during his expeditions flay there, built several Forts and strong Castles, many of which remain & K. Richard unto this day, he erected all the Courts of Judicature, and contributed

2. into Ireland, very much towards the fettlement of the English Colonies, as also of the eivil Government K. Richard the Second made likewise in the time of his Reign, upon the same occasion two other expeditions into Ireland in his own person. But both those Princes out of a desire to spare the effusion of English blood, as also the empence of treasure, being likewise hastned back by the diftempers of their own Subjects in England, were both content to fuffer themselves to be again abused by the fained submissions of the Irish, who finding their own weakness, and utter disability to resist the power of those two mighty Monarchs, came with all humility even from the farthest parts of the Kingdom, to submit to their mercy: And yet it is well observed by some that say they returned back, not leaving one true subject more behind them, then they found at their first arrival. Howfoever by the very presence of these Princes, and by the careful endeavours of the Governours fent over by other of the Kings of England, those that were Adventurers in the first Conquest, and such other of the English Nation as came over afterwards took possession by vertue of the former grants of the whole Kingdom, drove the Irish in a manner out of all the habitable parts of it, and ietcled themselves in all the plains and fertile place of the Country, especially in the chief Towns, Ports, and upon the Sea-coasts. And to such a height of power and greatness had some of those arst adventuring Commanders raised themselves here by reason of the addition of new titles of honour, the unlimited jurisdi-Ctions and priviledges enjoyed by them, the great rents they received, the numerous dependance they had as that they began to look upon their own polefions as circumicribed within two narrow limits, to entertain private animofities against each other, to draw in the Irish (whom they had driven up into the mountains, and ever esteemed as their most deadly enes mies) to take part in their quarrels, being not ashamed to use their affistance for the enlargement of their own private teritories, as also to curb the too exhorbitant power, as they thought, of their opposites, though their own compatriots & jointenants in the possession of that good land. The ancient The Irish were very glad to entertain this occasion & did ever foment by malice of the their utmost power and artifice these unnatural broils and diffentions among the English, whom they most mortally hated; For they living in a manner out of the reach, as well as out of the protection of all the Engtish Laws & Government, were always accounted not only as aliens, but meer enemies; And besides those Septs of Irish which were termed the Quinque familia (who notwithstandingsthe great priviledges they enjoyed divided from the English, did take all occasions to declare their malice and hatred againsh the English colonies planted near unto them.

Irifo to the Englift.

the mountains in the boggs and woods, though at first after some fort de Lagenia.

But howfoever the English were in all ages infested with their Irish enemies, yet were they certainly in point of interest and Universal posfession, owners, & properties of the whole Kingdom of Ireland. They kept themselvers in entire bodies almost for the first hundread years after By the status their arrival, not suffering the Irish to live promiscuously among them, by the state which means they failed nor to make good their footing, and by a high Kilk my by hand to keep them under in due obedience & subjection to the Crown of Lion / Duke England. And when afterwards they began to be more careless of their of Clarence, habitation, & to suffer the Irish to intermingle with them & their English L. Lieutefollowers to familiarize themselves into their beastly manners and cu-land in the ftoms (for prevention of which mischief, many severe Laws were en-time of Edw. acted in after ages yet for some time they made good the rights & posses. Alliance sions they had gotten by conquest, and went on, endeavouring to civilize by marriage, the people, introducing the English Laws, language, habit, & customs long infants, and nsed among them. Now although these, and all other courses were gossipred taken by them, which might reclaim such as seemed any ways inclinable with the high to civility, or would take out Charters of Denization ; yet fuch ever was, are high treas and ftill is the rough rebellious disposition of the people, their hatred so any English implacable, their malice fo unaperfeable to all the English Nation, as no man should Laws or gentle Constitutions would work, no publick benefits tem-use the Irish per, or any tract of time reconcile and draw them to any tolerable pa-language, tience of cohabitation; But they have in all times continued to take all Irish name, or advantages, as well fince they were admitted into the condition of Sub-his lands iects, as while they were efteemed and treated as enemies, most perfidi-should be seioully to rife up and imbrue their hands in the blood of their English led on, & if he neighbours : So as Ireland hath long remained a true Aceldama, a field of had no lands, blood, an unsatiated sepulcher of the English Nation For what by rea-fer imprisonon of their own intestine broiles, after they had (as foon they did, when ment. Archiv. hey began to admit the intermixture of the Irifh) most barbarously de-in caftro Dubgenerate into all their manners and cultoms; and what by reason of the lin Statutes of truel hatred and mischievous attempts of the Irish upon them : We shall Kilkenny.

1311

In that space not find that the English, from their first access into Ireland, unto of time which not find that the English, from their first access into Ireland, unto was between the beginning of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, (a tract of time content to year of taining above 380 years) had any settled peace or comfortable sub-Lim. 2. and fistence, but were in most perpetual combustions and troubles, so exthe 30 year of tremely harassed and over-worn with misery, as they were not long the old Eng. likely to survive the universal calamity that had over-spread the sace lift colonies of the whole Kingdom.

in Munster, Whereupon that bleffed Queen, out of her pious intentions, and good Consught and affections to her people, applied her self with great care to redress the Uster, and adisorders of her Subjects in Ireland. And in the very beginning of her Third part of Reign, sending over Prudent and Religious Governours, the work of Leinster be. Reformation was much advanced, by many wholesome Laws enacted acame degene gainst the barbarous Customs of the Irish; and the execution of Justice rate, and sell (which a long time continued within the limits of the Pale) began now away from the (which a long time continued within the limits of the Pale) began now Crown of Eng. to be extended into Consught, Uster and other remote parts of the Land land, so as the at some intervals of quiet times. The Irish Countries were reduced into English Pale Shires, and Sheriffs with some other Ministers of Justice placed in them: remained on The pretended Captainships, and those high powers usurped by the Irish, obedience of together with all the extertions, and other fearful exorbitancies incithe Law.

The Royal not long continue. Seignories and Possessions were settled in a due course endeavours of of Inheritance; those most destructive customs of * Tanestry and Gavel-Queen Eliz. kind began to be depressed; The two Presidential Courts of Munster and cing of Ireland. Consumble were then instituted and special order taken that Free schools * The Landsmight be erected in the several Diocesses throughout the Kingdom, for belonging to the better training up of Youth But these acts, and other courses tending the Irish, were to the advancement of true Religion, and Civility, were highly different terri-pleasing, and most incompatible with the loose humours of the Natives.

tories, and the Inhabitants in every Life Country were divided into several Septs or Lineages—In every Irish Country there was a Lord or Chieftain, and a Tanist, which was his Successor apparent. None could be chosen Tanist, but one issued out of one of the chief Septs—The Seignory and Lands belonging to the chief Lord, did not descend from Father to Son, or upon desault of Issue to him that was next of kins. But he that was most active, of greatest power, and had most followers, always caused himself to be chosen Tanist; and is he could not compass his desires by gentle means, then he used open force and violence; and so being declared as it were heir apparent, came into possession upon the death of the chief Lord—Now for the inferior Septs, they held their Lands at the will of the chief Lord, after a sort; For after the death of every one of his Tenants which held any Land under him, he assembled the whole Septs, and having put all their possessions together in hotch potch, made a new partition among them, not assigning to the Son of him that died, the Land held by his Father, but altering every mans possession at his own pleasure, and according to his own discretion: he, upon the death of every inferior Tenant, made a general remove, and so altotted to every one of the Sept slich part as he thought is. And this was the Irish Savelkind. Sir Solm Davier Rep. fol. 49 gratitude

ho apprehended even the most gentle means of reformation, as sharp prroding medicines; And thereupon pretending the burthen of the Engb government most insupportable, began desperately to struggle for claris in Lageeir liberty. Several plots were laid, some even by those who were them-nie famillis & lives of the old English by extraction: divers Rebellions and petty Re-plerique Anolts raifed during Her Majelty's most happy reign : That of Shan Opartim ex Ro-Teal, the Earl of Desmond, Viscount Ballinglas, O Burke, and several mine religiothers at other times, were all fet on foot for this very end, and all timeinis studio. suppressed, party by the power of the Queens forces, partly by her gra-partim ex edio ous favour in receiving the Chiefcains to mercy. And she, as most un-Anglorum, earled with their never ceasing provocations, still went on with all empirare coentle applications and lenitives, for the withdrawing of the people from perant ad proheir barbarous customs; As several of the great Lords who had been outregem, eum Rebellion, were restored to their lands and possessions, others she suf-familia opprired to enjoy their Commands in the Country, upon others she besto wed frum Duliew titles of Honour, And being very unwilling to put the Kingdom of nenfe interciingland to fuch an excessive charge, as the full conquest of Ireland would piendum, nost necessarily require; no fair means were left untried, that could angles in inister any hopes of civilizing the people, or settling the present distra-unum's medio tions of the Kingdom. tellendos Cam-But all was in vain; the matter then wrought upon was not fusceptible den. Eliz.

of any such noble forms, those ways were heterogeneal, and had no man-An. 22.

The Irish.

ce and hatred against all of the English Nation, breathing forth nothing out their ruin, destruction, and utter extirpation.

8

e

d

.

.

And that they might at once dif-impefter themselves of their unpleasing Tyron's rebelompany, & disburthen the whole Kingdom of them and their posterity, hey still entertained new thoughts, & had now brought unto persection disgn long meditated in their breasts, whereby they resolved at once learly to rescue & deliver themselves from their subjection to the Crown of England. And this was that desperate Rebellion raised almost through the whole Kingdom, by Hugh E. of Tyron, who after titles of Honour, received a command given by the Queen unto him both of Horse and Foot in her Pay, great proportions of Land, & other Princely savours conferred upon him; Resolving at once to cancel all those Royal obligations of gratitude & fidelity, broak out and drew along with him most of all the Irish Septs and Families, together with many degenerate English throughout the Kingdom, into rebellion against his most gracious undoubted so vereign. And these all, as being universally actuated with the venemon infusions of his malevolent spirit, uniting their whole interests and forces into a firm conjuncture with him, raised all their dependants, and moved in feveral places according to the feveral orders & directions they received from him: & to fill up the full measure of his iniquity, he drew in for reign Nation at the fame time with confiderable forces to invade the land.

The ill effeats of the fubmiffions of the Lifb.

of Ireland

when K.

So as the Oeen now found by woful experience, that Ireland was no longer to bedaillied with, one Rebellion still begot another, and this last was more dangerous then any of the former, it being more deeply rooted. more generally spread within the Kingdom, more powerfully fomented from without. She well discerned how much her great clemency had been abused in suffering former rebellions to be smothered over & loosely pies ced up with protections & pardons; that the receiving of the Irish upon their submissions, to avoid the charge of a war, did inevitably redouble the charge. & perpetuate the miseries of war; therefore she now resolved no longer to trifle with them, but vigoroully to fet to the work, and making choice of some of her most renowned English-commanders, committed to their charge the conduct of an Army Royal, compleatly armed, and well paid, wherewith they began the profecution of that Arch-traitour Tyren, and with great success in a short time, though not without the expence of much English blood, and above a million of money, brought him upon his knees: And howfoever before this glorious work was fully accomplifeed, it pleased God to put a period to her days, yet lived she long enough to fee just vengance brought down upon the head of that unnatural disturber of the peace of the Kingdom, himself in a manner wholly deferted, his Country most miserably wasted, and a general desolation and famine brought in mightily confuming what was left undevoured by the fword.

The mifera. It is very easie to conjecture in what a most miferable condition Ireland ble condition then was, the English Colonies being for the most part barberously rooted out, the remainders degenerated into Irifh manners & names, the very Irifh themselves most mightily wasted & de stroyed by the late wars, and James came to the Crown thereby much of the Kingdom depopulated, in every place large monuments of calamity and undiscontinued troubles. King James of bleffed of England. memory found it, at his first accision to the Crown of England, in this de plorable estate; whereupon he presently took into his care the peaceable fettlement of Ireland, and civilizing of the people: And conceiving that the powerful conjunction of England & Scotland would now over aw the Irish and contain them in their due obedience. He resolved not to take any

d.

no

d, en

e,

he

o

11

is

ny advantage of those for feitures and great confiscations which he was His lenity tonost justly intituled unto by Tyron's Rebellion; but out of his Royal wards the ounty and Princely magnificence, restored all the Natives to the entire ligh Rebels, offession of their own lands. A work most munificent in it self, and such yours for a cis he had reason to believe would for the time to come perpetually ob-vil reformaige their obedience to the Crown of England. And in this state the King-tion. om continued under some indifferent terms of peace and tranquility, ntil the fixth year of his Reign: Then did the Earl of Tyrone take up ew thoughts of riling in arms, and into his Rebellious defign he eafily drew the whole Province of Offer, then entirely at his devotion; But his plot failed, and he finding himfelf not able to get together any coniderable forces, he with the principal of his adherents, quitting the Kingdom, fled into Spain, leaving some buse incendiaries to foment those beinnings he had laid for a new Rebellion in Ireland, and promiting speedily to return well attended with foreign fuccours to their aid : But by the great bleffing of Almighty God upon the wife Counfels of that King. and the careful endeavours of his vigelant Ministers, the distempers occasioned by the noise of that commotion were soon alayed, and Tyren never returning, the peace of the Kingdom much confirmed and fettled. King James hereupon being now so justly provoked by the high ingratitude of those Rebellious Traitors, caused their persons to be attainted. their lands to be feized, and those fix Counties within the Province of Offer which belonged unto them, to be furveyed, and all (except some small parts of them reserved to gratifie the well affected Natives) to be diffributed in certain proportions among British undertakers, who came over and fettled themselves and many other British families in those parts: By this means the foundations of some good Towns, soon after encompassed with stone-walls were presently laid, several Castles and Houses of strength built in several parts of the Country, great numbers of Britiff inhabitants there fettled, to the great comfort and fecurity of the whole Kingdom. And the same course was taken likewise for the better affurance of the peace of the Country, in the plantation of feveral parts of Leinster, where the Irish had made incursions, and violently expelled the old English out of their possessions. But howsoever the King was by due course of Law justly intituled to all their whole Estates there; yet he was gracioully pleased to take but one fourth part of their Lands, which was deliver'd over likewise into the hands of British undertakers, who with great coff and much industry planted themselves so firmly as they became of great fecurity to the Country, and were a most especial means to introduce civility in those parts: so as now the whole Kingdom began exceedingly to hourish in costly buildings, and all manner of improvements; the people to multiply and increase, and the very Irish seem'd to be much fatisfarisfied with the benefits of that peaceable Government, and general tranquility which they so happily enjoyed, ND now of late fuch was the great indulgence of K. Charles our So-

King Charles great readiness toredress A vereign that now reigneth, to his Subjects of Ireland, as that in the the grievan- year 1640. upon their complaints, and a general Remonstrance sent ces presented unto him by the Irifh Commiffioners, 1640. The Lords. L. Viscount Gormanstone, L. Vilcount Kilm slor. L. Viscount Caftelo, L. Viscount Commons. Leinfter. Nic. Plunket, Digby, Richard Birbgarret, Nic.

Baltinglas.

Munfter. Sir Hardress Waller, 70. Wellb, Sir Deu nigh Mac-Carry. Conaught.

Ulfter. Sir William Cole. Sir James Mongomery.

fons and Sir John Borlace made L. Iufrices. They apply people.

They, by His Majesty's gracious directions, gave a way to the Parliament themselves to to abate the Subsidies (there given in the E. of Straffords time, and then in over unto him from both Houses of Parliament then sitting at Dublin. by a Committee of Four Temporal Lords of the upper house, and Twelve Members of the house of Commons, with Instructions to represent the heavy pressures they had for fome time suffered under the Government of the Earl of Strafford. He took their grievances into his Royal confideration, descended so far to their satisfaction, as that he heard them himself and made present provisions for their redress: And upon the Decease of Mr. Wandsford, Master of the Rolls in Ireland, and then Lord Deputy here under the faid Earl of Strafford, who ftill continued Lord Lieutenant of this Kingdom (though then accused of High-Treason, and Impriloned in the Tower of Lindon, by the Parliament of England) His Mai-fty fent a Commission of Government to the Lord Dillon of Kilkenny West, and Sir William Parsons Knight and Baronet.

Master of the Wards in Ireland, yet soon after finding the choice of the Lord Dillon to be much disgusted by the Committee, he did at their motion cause the said Commission to be cancelled, and with their con-

Barnewall, Efg; fent and approbation, placed the Government upon Sir William Parfons, and Sir John Borlace Knight, Master of the Ordinance, both esteemed persons of great integrity; and the Master of the Wards, by reason of his very long continued imployment in the State, his particular knowledge of the Kingdom, much valued and well beloved among the people. They took the Sword upon the 9th of Feb. 1640. and in the first place they applyed themselves with all manner of gentle lenitives to mollifie the

Robert Linch, tharp humours raised by the rigid passages in the former Government. Thomas Burk. They declared themselves against all such proceedings lately used, asthey found any ways varying from the Common Law : They gave all due encouragement to the Parliament then fitting, to endeavour the reasonable ease and contentment of the people, freely affenting to all such Acts as really tended to a legal reformation: They betoo's themselves wholly to the advice of the Council, and caused all matters as well of the Crown, Sir Will. Par- as popular Interest, to be handled in His Majesty's Courts of Justice, no ways admitting the late exorbitancies (so bitterly decried in Parliament) of Paper petitions, or Bills in Civil Causes, to be brought before them at the Council-board, or before any other by their Authority; give contents collection) from 40000 1. each Subfidy, to 12000 1. apiece, fo low did they r.Sa.

the !

fent

blin.

and

e-si

the

his.

t he

And

and

nti-

igh-

rent

ord

net.

the

eir

on-ns

ned

of

W.

le.

3CC

he

nt.

ey

no.

le as

to

n,

0

they think fit to reduce them : And they were further content (secanfe they faw HisMajesty most absolutely resolved to give the frish Agents full tisfaction) to draw up two Acts to be passed in the Parliament, most mpetuously defired by the Natives : The one was the Act of Limitations. which unquestionably settled all Estates of Land in the Kingdom, quietly nioved without claim or interruption for the space of fixty years immeliately preceeding; The other was for the relinquishment of the right & itle which His Majesty had to the four Counties in Conaught, legally found or him by feveral inquisitions taken in them, and ready to be disposed of. upon a due furvey, to British undertakers; as also to some territories of good extent in Munfter, and the County of Clare, upon the fame title.

Thus was the present Government most sweetly tempered, and carried on with great lenity and moderation; the Lords Justices and Council wholly departing from the rigour of former courses, did gently unbend themselves into a happy and just compliance with the seasonable defires of the people. And his Majesty, that he might further testify his own settled resolution for the continuation thereof with the same tender hand over them, having first given full satisfaction in all things to the said Committee of Parliament still attending their dispatch, did about the latter The Earl of end of May, 1641 declare Robert E.of Leisefter, Lord Lientenant General Leicefter deof the Kingdom of Ireland He was heir to Sir Philip Sidney his Uncle, asclared Lord well as to Sir Hen, Sidney his Grandfather, who with great honour and Lieutenant of much integrity long continued chief Governour of Ireland during the Ireland, May, Reign of Queen Elizabeth; and being a person of excellent abilities by nature, great acquisitions from his own private industry and publick imployment abroad, of exceeding great temper and moderation, was never engaged in any publick pressures of the Common-wealth, and therefore most likely to prove a just and gentle Governour, most pleasing and acceptable to the people.

Moreover, the Romish Catholicks now privately enjoyed the free ex. The Papists ercise of their Religion throughout the whole Kingdom, according to the permitted Doctrine of the Church of Rome. They had by the over great indulgence enjoy the free of the late Governours, their titular Arch-bishops, Bishops, Vicars-general, exercise of Provincial confiftories, Deans, Abbots, Priors, Nuns, who all lived free their religion. ly, though somewhat covertly among them, and without control, exercifed a voluntary jurisdiction over them, they had their Priests, Jesuits, and Fryars, who were of late years exceedingly multiplied, and in great numbers returned out of Spain, Italy and other Foreign parts, where the Children of the Natives of Ireland that way devoted, were fent usually to receive their educations. And these without any manner of restraint, had quietly feetled themselves in all the chief Towns, Villages, Noblemen and private

200 NV C

nto

nt.

mt

nd

ufl

ra

0 10

Ma

me ilo

t

private Gentlemens houses throughout the Kingdom. So as the private exercise of all their religious rites and ceremonies was freely enjoyed ho them, without any manner of diffurbance, and not any of the Laws me in execution, whereby heavy penalties were to be inflicted upon trans. greffors in that kind

And for the ancient animolities and hatred which the Irif had been ever

The good agreement be observed to bear unto the English Nation, they seemed now to be quite and English in deposited and buried in a firm conglutination of their affections and Na. all parts of the tional obligations passed between them. The two Nations had now lived rogether 40 years in peace, with great fecurity and comfort, which had in a manner confolidated them into one body, knit and compacted toge. ther with all those bonds and ligatures of friendship, aliance, and confanguinity as might make up a conftant a perpetual Union betwixt them. Their intermarriages were frequent, goffipred, foffering (relations of much dearness among the Irish) together with all others of tenancy neigh bourhood, and service interchangeably passed among them. Nav. they had made as it were a kind of mutual transmigration into each others many ners, many Emplify being strangely degenerated into I ish affections and customs, and many Irilb, especiall of the better fort, having taken up the English language, apparel, and decent manner of living in their private houses. And so great an advantage did they find by the English commerce and cohabitations in the profits and high improvements of their Lands and Native commodities, fo incomparably beyond what they ever formerly enjoyed or could expect to raise by their own proper industry. as Sir Phelim O Neat, and many others of the prime leaders in this rebellion, had not long before turned their Irish tenants off their lands as some of them faid to me (when I enquired the reason of their so doing) even to flarve upon the Mountains, while they took in English, who were able to give them much greater rents, and more certainly pay the fame. matter that was much taken notice of, and esteemed by many, as most highly conducing to the fecurity of the English Interests, and plantation among them. So as all these circumstances duly weighed, together with the removal of the late obstructions, the great increase of trade and may ny other evident Symptoms of a flourishing Common-wealth, it was be-Heved even by the wifest and best experienced in the affairs of Ireland, that the peace and tranquility of the Kingdom was now fully fettled, and most likely in all humane probability to continue, without any confiderable interruption, in the prefent felicity and great profestity it now enjoyed under the government of His Majesty that now reigneth,

In Mayof 1641, the Lords Justices and Council finding the Popill party in soth Houses of Parliament to be grown to fo great a height, as was fcarcely

The Parliament adjou; ped Aug.

d

exercely compatible with the present Government, were very desirous to eve an Adjournment made for three months, which was readily assented into and performed by the members of both Houses. And this was done of many days before the return of the Committee formerly mentioned, but of England: They arrived at Day lin about the latter end of Angust. The trist and presently after their return they applied themselves to the Lords Commissional Unities and Council, desiring to have all those Acts and others Gracesners return reanted by His Majesty, made known unto the people by proclamations out of England to be sent down into several parts of the Country; which while the land at Dublords Justices took into their consideration, and sat daily composing of lin. Acts to be passed the next Session of Parliament, for the benefit of His Majesty, and the good of his Subjects, they seemed with great contentment and satisfaction to retire into the Country to their several habitations, that they might there refresh themselves in the mean season:

The discovery of the Conspiracy of the Irish, to seiz upon the Castle and City of Dublin; and their general Rising at the same time, in all the Northern parts of this Kingdom.

Cuch was now the state and present condition of the Kingdom of Ireland, fuch the great ferenity through the gentle & happy transaction condition of of the publick affairs here; As that the late Irish Army raised for the in-time of the valion of the Kingdom of Scotland, being peaceable disbanded, their Armsbreaking our and Munition, by the fingular care of the Lords Justices and Council of the Rebelbrought into His Majesty's stores within the City of Dublin, there waslion, Olob. no manner of warlike preparations, no reliques of any kind of diforders 23. 1641. proceeding from the late Levies, nor indeed any noise of war remaining within these coasts. Now while in this great calm the British continued in a most deep security, under the assurance of the blessed peace of this land; while all things were carried on with great temper and moderation in the prefent Government, and all men fat pleafantly enjoying the comfortable fruits of their own labours, without the least thoughts or apprehension of either tumults or other troubles, the differences between His M jefty, and his Subjects of Scotland being about this time fairly com. poled and fettled: There brake out upon the 23 of Ottober, 1641 amolt desperate and formidable Rebellion, and universal desection and general Revolt, wherein not only all the meer Irish, but almost all the old Enfish that adhered to the Church of Rome, were totally involved. And be: cause it will be necessary to leave some monuments hereof to posterity;

I shall observe the beginnings and first motions, as well as trace out the progress, of a Rebellion so excrable in it felf, so odious to God and the whole world, as no age, no Kingdom, no people can parallel the horrid cruelties, the abominable murders, that have been without number, as well as without mercy committed upon the British inhabitants through. out the land, of what fex or age, of what quality or condition foever they were.

And first I must needs fay, how soever I have observed in the nature of

The first plet for the rebel- the Irish such a kind of dull and deep reservedness, as makes them with on with fo great fecrecy, as none it before it cution.

lion carried much filence & fecreeved carry on their bufiness: yet I cannot but confider with great admiration how this mischievous plot which was to be so generally at the same time, and at so many several places acted, & therefore of the English necessarily known to so many several persons, should without any noise be had notice of brought to fuch maturity as to arrive at the very point of execution with out any notice or intination given to any two of that huge multitude of was ready to persons who were generally designed (as most of them did) to perish in it. For belides the uncertain presumptions that Sir William Cole had of a commotion to be raised by the Irish in the Province of Ulfer about a fortnight before this Rebellion brake openly out, and some certain intelligence which he received of the same two days before the Irish role. I could never hear that any English man received any certain notice of this conspiracy, before the very evening that it was to be generally put in execution. It istrue, Sir William Cole upon the very first apprehenfions of fomething that he conceived to be harching among the Irish, did write a Letter to the Lords Juffices and Courcil, dated the It. of Office. 1641. wherein he gave them notice of the great refort made to Sir Phelim O Neal, in the County of Tyren, as also to the house of the Lord Mac-Guire, in the County of Fermanagh and that by feveral suspected persons, fit instruments for mischief. As also that the said Lord Mas-Guire had of late made several journies into the Pale, and other places, and had spent his time much in writing Letters, and sending dispatches abroad. These Letters were received by the Lords Justices and Council, and they in answer to them required him to be very vigilant and industrious to find out what should be the occasion of those several meetings, and speedily to advertise them thereof, or of any other particular that he And for that conceived might tend to the publick fervice of the State. which was reveiled to Sir William Cale upon the 21. of Octob. the fame month by John Gormacke, & Flarry Mac-Hugh, from Brian Mac-Cobanaght, Mas Guire, touching the resolutions of the Irish, to seize upon his Majefty's Caftie and City of Dublin, to murder the Lords Juffices & Council of Ireland, and the rest of the Protestants there, & to seize upon all the Caftles, Forts, Sez-ports, and holds that were in polletion of the Protth

the

trid

, 41

ugh.

ever

e of

with ider

geore be ith.

e of

h in of at a ain se.

of

tuc

mlid

ab.

be-

ac.

15.

ad.

nt

ſe.

d

rotestants within the Kingdom of Ireland, I find by the Examination of John Cormacke, taken upon Oath at West minter, Nov. 18, 1644. That he faid Sir William Cole did dispatch Letters to the Lords luftices and Council the same day to give them notice thereof. But I can also testify hat those Letters (whether they were intercepted, or that they othervavs miscarried, I cannot say) came not unto their hands, as also that hey had not any certain notice of this general conspiracy of the Irish ntil the 22 of Octob, in the very evening before the day appointed for he surprize of the Castle and City of Dublin. Then the Conspirators beng many of them arrived within the City, and having that day met at he Lion Tavern near Copper- Alley, and there turning the Drawer out of he room, ordered their affairs together, drunk healths upon their knees omen o Comt. to the happy fuccess of the next mornings work : Owen O Conally a Gen-1, discovers leman of a meer Irih family, but one that had long lived among the Eng-the Confoirsth, and been trained up in the true Protestant Religion, came unto the cy of the triff Lord Justice Parsons about nine of the clock that evening, and made him to the Lord Lord Jultice Parsons about nine of the crock that evening, and made with Parsons the ve-a broken relation of a great conspiracy for the seizing upon His Majesty's ry evening Caffle of Dublin; He gave him the names of some of the chief conspira- before it was tors, affured him they were come up expresly to the Town for the same to be execupurpose, and that next morning they would undoubtedly attempt, and ted. furely effect it, if their defign were not speedily prevented, and that he had understood all this from Hugh Mac-Mahon, one of the chief conspirators, who was then in the Town, and came up but the very same afternoon for the execution of the plot; and with whom indeed he had been, drinking somewhat liberally, and as the truth is, did then make such a broken relation of a matter that seemed so incredible in it self, as that his Lordship gave very little belief to it at first in regard it came from an obscure person, and one as he conceived somewhat distempered at that time. But how soever the Lord Parfons gave him order to go again to Mac. Mahon, and get out of him as much certainty of the plot, with as many particular circumstances as he could, straitly charging him to return back unto him the same evening. And in the mean time, having by strict commands given to the Constable of the Castle, taken order to have the gates thereof well guarded, as also with the Major and Sheriffs of the City to have strong watches set upon all the parts of the same, and to make stay of all frangers, he went privately about ten of the clock that night to the Lord Borlace's house without the Town, and there acquainted him with what he understood from Conally, they fent for fuch of the Council as they knew then to be in the Town. But there came only unto them that night Sir Thomas Rotheram, and Sir Robert Meredith, Chancellour of the Exchequer, with these they fell into consultation what was fit to be done, attending the return of Conally. And finding that he staid somewhat longer 3113 4 then then the time prefixed, they sent out in search after him, and sound him seized on by the watch, and so he had been carried away to prison, and the discovery that night disappointed, had not one of the Lord Parson Servants expressly sent amongst others to walk the streets, and attend the motion of the said Conally, come in and rescued him, and brought him to the Lord Borlace's house. Conally having somewhat recovered himself from his distemper, occasioned partly, as he said himself, by the horror of the Plot revealed to him, partly by his too liberal drinking with Mac-Mahan, that he might the more easily get away from him (he beginning much to suspect and sear his discovering of the plot) confirmed what he had somethy related, and added these farther particulars set down in his Examination, as solloweth.

The Examination of Owen O Conally Gentleman, taken before us whose names ensue, Odob. 22. 1641.

A 7 Ho being duly Sworn, and Examined, faith, That he being at Monimore, in the County of London-Derry on Tuelday last, he received a Letter from Colonel Hugh OgeMac-Mahon, desiring him to come to Conaught in the County of Monaghan, and to be with him on Wednesday and Thursday last, whereupon he, this Examinate came to Conaught on Wednelday night last, and finding the faid Hugh come to Dublin, followed bim hither: He came hither about fix of the clock this evening, and forthwith went to the lodging of the faid Hugh, to the houle near the Boat in Oxman-Town, and there he found the Said Hugh, and came with the faid Hugh into the Town, near the Pillory, to the Lodging of the Lord Mac-Guire, where they found not the Lord within, and there they drank a sup of Beer, and then went back again to the faid Hugh his Lodging. He faith, that at the Lord Mac-Guire his Ladging, the faid Hugh told him that there were, and would be this Night great numbers of Noblemen, and Gentlemen of the Irish Papills from all the parts of the Kingdom in this Town, who with felf had determined to take the Castle of Dublin, and posses themselves of all His Majesty's Ammunition there to morrow morning, being Saturday, and that they intended first to batter be Chimnies of the said Town, and if the City would not yield; ben to batter down the houses, and so to cut off all the Proteants that would not joyn with them. He further faith, that be said Hugh then told him, that the Irith had prepared men in Il parts of the Kingdom, to destroy all the English inhabiting bere to morrow morning by Ten of the clock, and that in all the Seaorts, and other Towns in the Kingdom, all the Protestants should e killed this night, and that all the Posts that could be could not revent it : And further faith, that he moved the faid Hugh to orbear executing of that bufiness, and to discover it to the State. for the saving of his own estate, who said he could not help it. But aid, that they did owe their Allegiance to the King, and would pay him all his Rights, but that they did this for the Tyrannical Government was over them, and to imitate Scotland, who got a priviledge by that course. And he further saith, that when he was with the said Hugh in his Lodging the second time, the said Hugh Swore that he should not go out of his Lodging that night, but told him that he should go with him the next morning to the Castle, and said, if this matter were discovered, some body should die for it, whereupon this Examinate feigned some necessity for his easement, went down out of the Chamber, and left his Sword in pawn, and the faid Hugh fent his man down with him, and when this Examinate came down into the Tard, and finding an opportunity, he, this Examinate leaped over a Wall, and two Pales, and so came to the Lord Fustice Parsons.

Odob. 22. 1641. Window stow of the state of the many thank redition to the Catalo of Basim hayiet, already delivered over 10 the Chi William Parfons, od stollers blas sone Tho. Rotheram. Owen O Conally. Rob. Meredith.

Cary of Deal's there were not, throughthe lists part Threupon the Lords took present order to have a Watch privately fer upon the lodging of Mas-Mahon, as also upon the Lord Mas-Guire and to they fate up all that night in confultation, having far ftronger presumptions upon this latter examination taken, then any ways at first they thos cort his Proclamation which Dre to down his bo made in pro

24 him

, and

r fons

d the him

nfelf

rror

Mac.

ning

at he n in

in,

ing

el-

on,

ind

his

id-

me be

n-

id

rd

ey h

could entertain. The Lords Justices upon a further consideration (there being come unto them early next morning feveral other of the Privy Coun. cil) fent before day, and feized upon Mac-Mahon, then with his Servant in his own lodging; they at first made some little resistance with their drawn fwords but finding themselves over-mastered, prefently yielded. & fo they were brought before the Lords Justices and Council Still fitting at the L. Borlace's house; where upon examination he did without much difficulty confess the plot resolutely, telling them. That on that very day all the Forts and strong places in Ireland would be taken. That he with the L. Mas-Guire, Hugh Birn, Capt. Brian O Neal, and several other Irifi Gentlemen, were come up expresty to surprize the Castle of Dublin, That twenty men out of each County in the Kingdom were to be here to joya with them, That all the Lords and Gentlemen in the Kingdom that were Papiffs were engaged in this Plot. That what was that day to be done in other parts of the Country, was fo far advanced by that time, as it was imposible for the wit of man to prevent it; and withal told them, That it was true, they had him in their power, and might use him how they pleased, but he was fure he should be revenged.

By this time the noise of this Conspiracy began to be confusedly spread abroad about the Fown, and advertisement was brought unto the Lords Justices then in Council, that great numbers of strangers had been obferved to come the last evening, and in the morning early unto the Town, and most of them to fer-up their horses in the Suburbs: whereupon the Lords having in the first place taken order for the apprehenfion of the Lord Mac-Guire, removed themselves for their better security unto the Castle, where the body of the Council then in Town attenthe Confpira ded them at the ordinary place of their meeting there In the first place they caused a present search to be made for all fuch Horses belonging to strangers as were brought into any Inns, and by that means they discovered fome of the owners, who were prefently feized upon and committed to the Castle of Dublin, having already delivered over to the custody of the Constable there, the Lord Mac-Guire, and Hugh Mac-Maken , Hugh Birn, and Roger Moor, chief of the Confpirators, escaped over the River in the night, Colonel Plunter, Captain Fox, with feveral others found means likewise to pass away undiscerned; and of the great numbers which came up out of feveral Counties to be Actors in taking of the Castle and City of Dublin, there were not, through the flack purfeit and great negligence of the inhabitanes, above thirty feized upon, most of them Servants and inconsiderable persons, those of quality having fo many good friends within the Town, as they had very ill luck if apprehended. The fame day before the Lords rose from Council, they took order forthis Proclamation which here followeth to be made & published.

The LordMss Guire with feveral other of tors feized.

His Confei-

By the Lords Justices and Council.

W. Parsons. John Borlace.

unant leir led.

ing

lay ith hat

yq

ere vas

nat

ey

ad ds

b-

he

e-IIi-

ni ce

to

1.

Hele are to make known and publish to all His Majesty's good Subjects in this Kingdom of Ireland, that there is a discovery made by Us the Lords Justices and Council, of a most disloyal and detestable Conspiracy intended by some evilaffected Irish Papists, against the lives of Us the Lords Justices & Council, and many other of His Majesty's faithful Subjects, Universally throughout this Kingdom, and for the feizing not only of His Majesty's Castle of Dublin, His Majesty's principal Forthere, but also of the other Fortifications in the Kingdom · And feeing by the great goodness and abundant mercy of Almighty God to His Majesty, and this State and Kingdom, those wicked Conspiracies are brought to light, and some of the Conspirators Committed to the Castle of Dublin, by Us, by His Majesty's Authority, fo as those wicked and damnable Plots are now disappointed in the chief parts thereof, We therefore have thought fit hereby not only to make it publickly known, for the comfort of His Majesty's good and loyal Subjects in all parts of the Kingdom, but also hereby to require them, that they do with all confidence and chearfulneis ness betake themselves to their own defence, and stand upon their guard, so to render the more safety to themselves, and all the Kingdom bessides, and that they advertise Us with all possible speed of all Occurrents, which may concern the Peace and safety of the Kingdom, and now to shew fully that Faith and Loyalty, which they have always shown for the publick services of the Grown and Kingdom, which We will value to His Majesty accordingly, and a special memory thereof will be retained for their advantage in due time. And We require that great care be taken that no levies of men be made for sorreign service, nor any men suffered to march upon any such pretence. Given at His Majesty's Castle of Dublin, 23. Ostob. 1641.

R; Dillon. Ro. Digby, Ad. Loftus. J. Temple. Tho. Rotheram. Fr. Willoughby, J. Ware. Ro. Meredith.

God Save the King.

And the chief parts that see 49

Imprinted at Dublin, by the Society of STATIONERS.

At they do with all confidence and cheerests.

9

d

h

e

13

t

r

h

S

a

Actilio

"His Proclamation was prefently Printed, and Several Copies Sent" down by express messengers unto the principal Noblemen and Genemen in feveral parts of the Country, where they caused them to be ivers ways dispersed, hoping that when the timely discovery of this onspiracy, and the happy prevention in a great part, should fully apear abroad, it would prove fo great a discouragement to such of the conpirators as had not yet openly declared themselves, as that they would hereby be contained within the bounds of their duty and obedience to is Majesty. The same night the L. Blaney arrived with the news of the arprifal of his house, his wife and his children, by the Rebels of the The wife rife county of Monaghan: Next day came advertisement from Sir Arthur Ty-first in the ingham, of the taking of Newry; and then the fad relations of burning, vifter, and poiling, and horrible murders committed within the Province of Offer, there burn. egan to multiply, and several persons every day and almost every spoil, and deour in every day for a good while after, arrived like Job's messengers, frey the Engelling the story of their own jufferings, and the fearful massacres of the lift. poor English in those parts from whence they came. These things wrought fuch a general confernation and aftonishment in the minds of all the English & other inhabitants well-affected within the City, as they were much affrighted therewith, expecting every hour when the Irish already crept into the Town, joyning with the Papills there, should make the City a Theater whereon to act the fecond part of that Trage- and animage ly most bloodily begun in the Northern parts by them.

And it added most extreamly to these present fears, that several unhappy rumours (the great tormentors of the weaker fex) were vainly Falle ruforead abroad of the suddain approach of great numbers of Rebels out of the Rebels of the adjacent Irish Counties unto the City, some would make us believe approach to that they were discerned at some distance already marching down from the City of the mountain fide within view of the Town; a report so credibly deli-Dublin. vered by those who pretended to be eye-witnesses, that it drew some of the State up to the platform of the Caffle to behold those who were yet invisible though there were there that would not be perswaded but that they faw the very motions of the men as they marched down the mountains it was at the fame time also generally noised abroad, that there were 10000 of the Rebels gotten together in a body at the hill of Tarab, a place not above fixteen miles distant from the Town, and that they inrended without any further delay to march on & prefently furprize the same. These false rumours being unluckily spread, & by some somented out of evil ends, exceedingly increased the present diffractions of the people, & raised such a panick fear among them, as about seven of the clock at night, the Lords Juffices and some of the Council being then in

Total Shapes

foreball on moillada 4

She History

the:

the Council-chamber within the Castle, there came in to them a Gentle. man of good quality, who having not without much difficulty, as he prerended recovered the Gate of the Castle, caused the Warders then attend. ing to draw up the bridge, affuring them that the Rebels gathered toger ther in great numbers, had already possessed themselves of a good part of the Town, and came now with great fury marching down the street that leads directly towards the Castle Gate, But this fear was quickly removed by Sir Francis Willoughby, who being that day made Governour of the Castle, caused the draw-bridge to be let down, and so found this to be a falle Alarm occasioned by some mistake fallen among the people, who continued waving up and down the streets, prepossessed with strange fears, and some of them upon some slender accident drawing their swords, others that knew not the cause thought fit to follow the example, and so came to appear to this Gentleman who was none of their company, as fo many Rebels coming up to enter the Caftle.

The Lords Juffices and Council confult what for the fuppreffing this Rebellion.

Clare Reads

ca donorio

Monthly Bill

These were the first beginnings of our forrows, ill symptoms, and sad preparatives to the ensuing evils: Therefore the Lords finding by several intelligences, though some purposely framed, that the power of the Recourse to take bels was suddenly swollen up to so great a bulk, and likely so fast to multiply and increase upon them, thought it high time to consider of the remedies, and in what condition they were to oppose, since they could not prevent so emminent a danger: The Rebellion now appeared without all manner of question to be generally raised in all parts of the North, and like a torrent to come down most impetuiously upon them : besides, it was no ways improbable that all other parts of the Kingdom would take fire and follow their example, they had the testimony of Mac-Mahon positive therein. The first thing therefore which they took into consideration, was, how they were provided of Money Arms, and Munition; Then, what Companies of Foot, and Troops of Horse of the old Army they were able to draw presently together, as also what numbers of new No money in men they could suddenly raise. For the first they had this short accompt from the Vice-treasurer, That there was no money in the Exchequer, And certainly it was a main policy in the first contrivers of this Rebellion, to plot the breaking of it out at fuch a time when the Exchequer should be empty, & all the Kings Revenues both certain and cafual due for that half year, as well as the Rents of all the British through out the Kingdom, should be found ready either in the Tenants or Collectors hands in the Country, and so necessarily fall under their power, as they did to their great advantage. For Arms and Munition, the Stores wereindifferently well furnished at this time: Besides several Pieces of Artillery the Exchequer.

A List of His Majesty's Army in Ireland, 1641. Before the Rebellion began.

Foot Companies confifting of fix Officers, viz. Captain, Leintenant, Enfign, Chirgurgion, Serjeant and Drum, and forty four Soldiers each Company.

T ORD Lieutenants Guard -		Can Thomas Rockly
Sir Robert, Fairer		Cap. Thomas Rockly
SIE KODEFE PAITA	44	Can Philip Wenman
Sir Thomas Warson————————————————————————————————————		Cap. Philip Wenman - Cap. Charles Price
Sir George Saint-George	44	Cap. Courtes Price
Cap. Francis Builer	44	Sir Charles Coot
Sir William Saint Leguer	44	Cap. Thomas Games
Lord Docwra	- 44	Sir Francis Willoughby
Lord Borwra Lord Blany Sir Robert Steward	44	Sir John Borlace Cap. Robert Baily Sir Arthur Loftus Cap. William Billingsty
Sir Pohert Steward	44	Cap. Robert Brily
Lord Viscount Rannelagh -		Sir Archus Lafens
		Can estillian pillingfly
Lord Viscount Baltinglas		The William Blushely
Sir John Vaughan-	- 44	The Lord Esmond
Cap. George Blount		The Lord Lambert
Sir Hen. Tichbaurn	44	Sir George Hamilton-
Sir Frederick Hamilton	. 44	Lord Folliot
Lord Castle-stewart	44	Sir William Stewart
Sir Interna Care	644	Sir William Stewart
Cap. Chichefter Portefeus	548
Sap. Concepter Forsejens	44	Sir John Sherlock
Sie John Gifford	44	The Earl of Clanricard - 44
Cap. John Barry	44	Cap. John Ogle 44 it John Nettervile	44	The second secon 2
Thele Companies contain Off	icers-	2/63
Soldiers	18 m	204 In all \2297

Horse-Troops.

THE Earl of Leicest er Lord Lieute nant General, his Troop[confisting of Captain, Lieutenant, Cornet, an Horse men
The Barl of Ormondes Troop, like Officers, and Horfe-men The Barl of stoffords Troop, like Officers and Horfe-men Horse men - Proop, like Officers an Horfe-men Troop, like Officers and le-

rendge,

tof

hat

the be who inge rds, d fo

Remulrenot
and es, it take abon
fide-

new acchethis Excaugh Coler, as tores es of llery

OI MAI	miter, the	int-Legur,
Lord Lord	Viscount Viscount	Moor, th Grandison, at Cromu	e like	_ 5ª
Cap.	Arthu C	bichefter.	the like	二:
Jir Fo	bn Borlac	worth, the the like	Page 19 April 19 Apri
Six 44	am Loftu	s, the like		1 18

Hories men 90: In all }-943

These were so frrangly dispersed most of them into the remote parts of the Kingdom, for the guard of feveral Forts & other places as it fell out to be in a manner most impessible to draw a considerable number of them together in any time, either for the defence of the City, or the making head against the Rebels in the North; and besides it was much to be suspected, the companies lying severally so remote, and ill furnithed with municion, could with little fafety march to Dublin. Yet the Lords fent Potents prefently away to require feveral Companies of Foot, and Some Troops of Horse presently to rise and March up from their several Garrisons towards the City of Dublin. And now it was held high time to give an accompt unto His Majesty then at Edenburg in his Kingdom of Scotland, and to the Lord Lieutenant continuing fill at London (the Par-Letters from liament still sitting there)of the breaking out of this Rebellion, the ill frices and Council to the Lord Lieutenant.

the Lords Ju-condition of the Kingdom, the wants of the State, and the Supplies abfolutely necessary for their present defence & preservation. And because the Letter to the Lord Lieutenant doth most clearly represent severalparticulars which may much conduce to the knowledge of the affaires, L have thought fit to infert a true Copy of it, which here followeth.

May it please your Lordship.

N Friday the two and twentieth of this month, after nine of the clock at. night, this bearer Owen Conally, servant to Sir John Clotworthy Knight, came to me the Lord Justice Parsons to my house, and in great secrecy (as indeed the cause did require) discovered unto me a most wicked and damnable conspiracy, plotted, contrived, & intended to be also acted by some evil-affected Irish Papiles here. The Plot was on the then next morning, Saturday the 23 of October, being St. Ignatius day, about nine of the clock to surprize His Majesty's Castle of Dublin, His Majesty's chief strength of this Kingdom, wherein allo is the principal Magazine of His Majesty's Arms and Munition, and it was agreed it seems amongst them, that at the same hour all other His Majesty's Forts and Magazine of Arms and Munition in this Kingdom, should be surprized by others of those Conspirater, and further, that all the Protestants and English throughout the whole " angdom, that would not joyn with them, should be cut off, and so those Papists should then become possessed of the Government and Kingdom at the same instant.

Affoon as I had that intelligence, I then immediatly repaired to the Lord Justice Borlace, and thereupon We instantly assembled the Council, and baving fate all that night; as also all the next day, the 23 of October, in regard of the Short time left us for the consultation of so great and weighty a matter, although it was not possible for us upon so sew hours warning to prevent those other great mischiefs which were to be acted, even at that same hour, and at so great a distance as in all the other parts of the Kingdom. Tet such was our industry therein, having caused the Castle to be that night strengthned with armed men, and the City guarded, as the wicked Counsels of those evil persons, by the great mercy of God to us, became deseated, so as they were not able to Att that part of their Treachery, which indeed was principal, and which, if they could have effected, would have rendred the rest of their purposes the more easy.

Having so secured the Castle, We forthwith laid about for the apprehension of as many of the Offenders as We could, many of them having come to this City but that night, intending it seems the next morning to all their parts in those treacherous and bloody crimes.

L

ıt.

e-

Med

4-

in it

ts

m, r,

The first man apprehended was one Hugh Mac-Mahon Esquire (Grandson to the Traitour Tyron) a Gentleman of good fortune in the County of Monahan, who with others, was taken that morning in Dublin, having at the time of their apprehension offered a little resistance with their swords drawn, but sinding those We imployed against them more in number, and better Armed, yielded. He upon his Examination before us at first denyed all, but in the end, when he saw we laid it home to him, he confessed enough to destroy himself, and impeach some others, as by a Copy of his Examination herewith sent, may appear to your Lordships, We then committed him until We might have further time to examine him again, our time being become more needful to be imployed in Action for securing this place, then in examining. This Mac-Mahon had been abroad, and served the K. of Spain as a Lieutenant Colonel.

Upon tonference with him and others, and calling to mind a Letter We received the week before from Sir William Cole, a Copy whereof We fend your Lordship here inclosed, We gathered that the Lord Mac-Guire was to be an actor in surprizing the Castle of Dublin, wherefore We held it necessary to secure him immediately, thereby also to startle and deter the rest, when they found him laid fast. His Lordship observing what we had done, and the City in Arms, sted from his lodging early before day, it seems disguised, for we had laid a watch about his lodging, so as we think he could not pass without disguising himself, yet he could not get forth of the City, so surely guarded were all the Gates.

There were found at his lodging hidden some Hatchets, with the Helves newly cut off close to the Hatchets, and many Skeans, and some Hammers.

In the end the Sheriffs of the City, whom we imployed in strict search of his D 2

Lordship, found him hidden in a Cocklost, in an obscure house far from his lodging, where they apprehended him, and brought him before Us.

He denyed all, yet so, as he could not deny but he heard of it in the Country, though he would not tell us when, or from whom; and confessed that he had not advertised Us thereof, as in duty he ought to have done. But We were so well satisfied of his guiltiness by all circumstances, as We doubted not upon surther examination when We could be able to spare time for it to find it apparent, wherefore We held it of absolute necessity to commit him Close-prisoner; as We had sormerly done Mac-Mahon, and others: where We lest him on the three and twentieth of this month in the morning, about the same hour they intended to have been Masters of that place, and this City.

That morning also We laid wait for all those strangers that came the night before to Town, and so many were apprehended whom We find reason to believe to have hands in this Conspiracy, as We were forced to disperse them into several Goals: and We fince found that there came many Horse-men into the Suburbs that night, who finding the Plot discovered, dispersed themselves immediatly.

When the hour approached, which was designed for surprising the Castle, great numbers of strangers were observed to come to Town in great parties several ways; who not sinding admittance at the Gates, staid in the Suburbs, and there grew numerous; to the terrour of the Inhabitants. We therefore to belp that, drew up instantly and signed a Proclamation, commanding all men, not dwellers in the City or Suburbs, to depart within an hour, upon pain of death, and made it like penal to those that should harbour them; which Proclamation the Sheriss immediately proclaimed in all the Suburbs by Our commandment: which being accompanied with the example and terror of the committal of those two eminent men, and others, occasioned the departure of those multitudes: and in this case, all our lives and fortunes; and above all, His Majesty's power and regal authority being still at the stake, We must vary from ordinary proceedings, not only in executing martial law as We see cause, but also in putting some to the Rack to sind out the bottom of this Treason, and all the contrivers thereof, which we foresee will not otherwise be done.

On that 13. day of this month, We conceiving that as soon as it should be known that the plot for seizing Dublin Castle was disappointed, all the conspirators in the remote parts might be somewhat disheartned, as on the other side the good Subjects would be comforted, and would then with the more considence stand on their guard; did prepare to send abroad to all parts of the Kingdom this Proclamation which we fend you here inclosed: and so having provided that the City and Castle should be so guarded as upon the Sudden We could promise. We concluded that long continued consultation.

On Saturday at 12 of the clock at night the Lord Blany came to Town and brought Us the ill news of the Rebels seizing with two hundred men his bouse at Castle-Blany in the County of Monaghan, and his Wife, Children, and Servants, as also a house of the Earl of Essex called Carrickmacross with two hundred men, and a house of Sir Henry Spotswood in the same County, with two hundred men, where there being a little Plantation of British, they plundred the Town and burnt divers houses, and it since appears that they burnt divers other Villages; and robbed and spoiled many English, and none but Protestants, leaving the English Papists untouched as well as the Irish.

On Sunday morning at three of the clock, We had Intelligence from Sir Arthur Terringham, that the Irish in the Town had that day also broken up the Kings Store of Arms and Munition at the Newry, where the store of Arms hath lien ever since the Peace, and where they found sourscore and ten Barrels of Powder, and armed themselves, and put them under the command of Sir Con. Magennis, Knight, and one Creely a Monk, and plundred the English there and disarmed the Garrison. And this, though too much, is all that We yet hear is done by them:

However We shall stand on our Guard the best We may to Defend the Castle and City principally, those being the pieces of most importance. But if the Conspiracy be so Universal as Mac-Mahon saith in his Examination it is, namely, That all the Counties in the Kingdom have Conspired in it, which we admire should so fail out in this time of Universal peace, and carried with that secrecy, that none of the English could have any friend amongst them to disclose it, then indeed we shall be in high extremity, and the Kingdom in the greatest danger that ever it underwent, considering our want of Men, Money, and Arms, to enable Us to encounter so great multitudes as they can make, if all should jown against Us, the rather, because we have pregnant cause to doubt that the combination bath taken force by the incitement of Jesuites, Priests and Fryers.

All the hope we have here, is, the old English of the Pale, and some other parts, will continue constant to the King in their fidelity, as they did in former Rebellions.

And now in these straits, we must under God depend on aid forth of England for our present supply with all speed, especially Money, we having none; and Arms which we shall exceedingly want; without which, we are very doubtful what account we shall give to the King of his Kingdom.

But if the Conspiracy be only of Mac-Guire and some other Irish of the kindred and friends of the Rebel Tirone and other Irish in the Counties of Down, Monaghan, ntry,

had re so re furrent: We three ended

night we to weral that great veral there drew n the t like mmeccommen, ll our nly in find oresee

ild be inspifide dence

that الإ

naghan, Cavan, Fermanagh and Armagh, and no general revolt following thereupon, we hope then to make head against them in a reasonable measure, if we be enabled with Money from thence, without which we can raise no Forces, so great is our want of Money, as we have formerly written, and our Debt so great to the Army: nor is Money to be borrowed here, and if it were, we would engage all our Estates for it: neither have we any hope to get in his Majesty's rents and subsidies in these disturbances, which add extreamly to our necessities.

On Sunday morning 24. We met again in Council, and fent to all parts of the Kingdom the enclosed Proclamation, and iffied Patents to draw hither feven Horse-Troops as a farther strength to this place, and to be with us in case the Rebels shall make head and march hitherward, so as we may be necessitated to give them Battle. We also then sent away our Letters to the President of both the Prowinces of Munster and Conaught: And we likewise then sent Letters to the Sheriffs of the Five Counties of the Pale, to consult of the best way and means of their own preservation. That day the Lord Vice Com. Gormanitown, the Lord Vice Co. Nittervile, the Lord Vice Co. Fitz-williams, and the Lord of Houth, and fince the Earls of Kildare, and Fingal, and the Lords of Dunlany, and Slane, all Noblemen of the English Pale came unto us, declaring that they then and not before heard of the matter, and professed Loyalty to his Majesty, and concurrence with the State, but said they wanted Arms, whereof they desired to be supplied by us, which we told them we would willingly do, as relying much on their faithfulness to the Crown: but we were not yet certain whether or no we had enough to arm our strength for the guard of the City and Castle; yet we supplied such of them as lay in most danger, with a small proportion of Arms and Munition for their Houses, lest they should conceive we apprehended any jealouhe of them. And we commanded them to be very diligent in sending out watches, and making all the discoveries they could, and thereof to advertise us, which they readily promised to do.

And if it fall out that the Irish generally rise, which we have cause to suspect, than we must of necessity put Arms into the hands of the English Pale in present, and to others as fast as we can, to sight for desence of the State and themselves.

Iour Lordship now sees the condition wherein we stand, and how necessary it is, first, that we enjoy your presence speedily for the better guiding of those and other the publick affairs of the King and Kingdom. And secondly, that the Parliament there, he moved immediately to advance to us a good Summ of Money, which being now speedily sent hither, may prevent the expence of very much Treasure and Blood in a long continued War. And if your Lordship shall happen to stay on that side fide any longer time; we must then define your Lordship to appoint a Lieutenant General to discharge the great and weighty burthen of commanding the Forces here.

Amidst these consustons and discords fallen upon Us, We bethought Us of the Parliament, which was formerly Adjourned to November next, and the Term now also at hand, which will draw such a concourse of people hither, and give opportunity under that pretence, assembling and taking new Councils, seeing the former seems to be in some part disappointed, and of contriving surther danger to this State and People: We have therefore found it of unavoidable necessity to Prorogue it accordingly, and to direct the Term to be Adjourned to the surfl of Hillary Term, excepting only the Court of Exchequer for hastning in the King's Money if it be possible. We desire upon this occasion your Lordship will be pleased to view our Letters concerning the Plantation of Conaught, dated the 24th of April last, directed to Mr. Secretary Vane in that part thereof, which concerns the County of Monaghan, where now these sires do first break out.

In the last place we must make known to your Lordship, that the Army we have, consisting but of 2000 Foot and 1000 Horse, are so dispersed in Garrisons in several parts, as continually they have been since they were so reduced; as if they be all sent for to be drawn together, not only the places whence they are to be drawn, (and for whose safety they lie there) must be by absence distressed; but also the Companies themselves coming in so small numbers may be in danger to be cut off in their march; nor indeed have we any money to pay the Soldiers to enable them to march. And so we take leave and remain from His Majesty's.

Caftle of Dublin 25 of October, 1641.

ces,

reat.

ents

fthe

even

Re-

give

Pro-

the

ns of

Lord

uth.

and then

and

ared

much

OF 70

et we

s and alou-

ches,

obich

peet,

efent,

ry it

other

irlia-

which

e and that

fid

Your Lordships to be Commanded William Parsons. John Borlace.

Richard Bolton, Can. R. Dillon, Anthony Midensis, John Raphoe, R. Digby, Ad. Loftus, Ger. Lowther, John Temple, Tho Rotheram, Fran. Willoughby, Ja. Ware, G. Wentworth.

POSTSCRIPT.

He said Owen Conally, who revealed the Conspiracy is worthy of very great consideration, to recompense that Faith and Loyalty which he hath so extreamly to his own danger expressed in this business; whereby under God there is yet hope left us of deliverance of this State and Kingdom, from the wicked purposes of those Conspirators. And therefore we beseech your Lordship that it be taken into consideration there so as he may have a mark of His Majesty's most Royal bounty which may largely extend to Him and His posterity, we not being now able here to do it for him:

W. Parsons.

To the Right Honourable our very good Lord Robert Earl of Leicester, L. Lieutenant Gen. and General Governour of the Kingdom of Ireland.

"He dispatch sent to his Majesty was addressed to Sir Henry Vann, Principal Secretary, and carried by Sir Henry Spot Swood, who went by Sea directly into Scotland; And the Letters to the L. Lieutenant were fent to London by Owen O Conally, the first discoverer of the Plot.

The Lords now with all care and diligence applied their further en-The Lords Julices cause deavours towards the preventing as much as was possible, the destructithe Proclama- on intended against all the British Inhabitants of the Kingdom, as well as tions to be the fecurity of the City and the places round about it. A work of large dispersed Let. extent, and wherein they met with many difficulties, by reason of their ters to be written and o own wants both of men and money. They having formerly fent away ther means to and dispersed the Proclamations into several parts of the Country, now he used for fent Letters by express Messengers unto the Presidents of Muniter and the prevention of the ri-Conaught, and to several principal Gentlemen in those two Provinces as also to others within the Province of Leinster, giving them notice of fing of the Irif in the the discovery of the Plot, and advising them to stand upon their guard. North, but and to make the best provision they could for the defence of the Counall so no purtry about them. They fent another express to the Earl of Ormande, pole.

then at his house at Carick, with Letters to the same effect and withal The Lords of defired his Lordship presently to repair unto them at Dublin with his Troop of Horse. They sent likewise Commissions to the Lords Viscounts the English Tale repair to of Clandeboys, and of the Ardes, for railing of the Scors in the Northern the Councilparts, and putting them into Arms, as they did also foon after to Sir mard, and William Stewart, and Sir Robert Stewart, and feveral other Gentlemen of there declare their Loyal Quality in the North. And as they gave them order for profecution of fedions to the Rebels with fire and fword, fothey gave them power to receive fuch of The English they were enforced to fend all by Sea, the Rebels having flopped up the passages. them in as should submit to His Majesty's grace and mercy. But these dispatches Pale is a large and hindered all manner of entercourse with that Province by Land.

Circuit of The Lords of the Pale having been at the Council board, and there declared to the land poffer. Lords Juftices, with great protestations, their Loyal affections unto His Majesty; d at the together with their readiness and forward concurrence with their Lordships in this me of the Service, came unto them again within two or three days after with a Petition's first Conquest wherein they offered unto their Lordships, the deep sense they had of an expression of tretain by in the late Proclamation, let out upon the discovery of this great Conspiracy intenthe English, & ded, as it is there let down, By some coil affected Irish Papists, which words they sear ever fine in-ed might be by fome mit-interpreted, and fuch a conftruction put upon them, as might habited by reflect upon their persons, as comprehended under them. Whereupon the Lords dem , it can Juffices and Council thought fit, to descend so far to their satisfaction, as not only to him served remonstrate the cleaness of their intentions towards them, but that it might appear counties of sunto the world, they extertained not the least jealous thoughts of them, they caused Courties a new Proclamation to be fet out by way of explanation of the former, which I have Dublin, thought fit here to infert, that it may appear how far they were from giving any of the choic Lords and Gentlemen occasion to break out into those Rebellious courses, they there, bet from afterwards took to their own deftruction.

By the Lords Justices and Council.

W. Parfons. John Borelace, dv 22 and Soil single ent

ere

en-

cti-

Was

rge

heir

way

and es;

e of

ard,

-nuc

nde,

thal his unts

hern

Sir

n of

n of

chof

tches ages.

o the

this

ion 3

fion nten-

fear-

ords

ily to pear pled

bave

ny of they

By

THereas a Petition hath been perfered unto Us by divers Lords and Gentlemen of the English Pale, in behalf of themselves and the rest of the Pale, and other the old English of this Kingdom, shewing that whereas a late Conpiracy of Treason is discovered of ill affected persons of the A Proclamaold Irifb, and that thereupon a Proclamation was published the fatisfaby Us; wherein among other things, it is declared that the flion of the faid Conspiracywas perpetrated by Irish Papists without distin-Gentlemen of ction of any; and they doubting that by those general words the English of Irish Papists, they might seem to be involved, though they Pale. declare themselves consident that We did not intend to consider clude them therein, in regard they are none of the old Irilb. nor of their faction, or confederacy; but are altogether averse and opposite to all their designs, and all others of like condition; We do therefore to give them full fatisfaction, hereby declare and publish to all His Majesty's good Subjects in this Kingdom, That by the words, Irish Papifts, We intended only fuch of the old meer Irish in the Province of Ulfter, as have plotted, contrived, and been actors in this Treason, and others who adhere to them; and that We did not any way intend, or mean thereby any of the old English of the Pale, nor of any other parts of this Kingdom, We being well affured of their fidelities to the Crown, and having experience of the good affections and fervices of their Ancestors in former times of danger and Rebellion. And We further require all His Majesty's loving Subjects, whether Protestants or Papists to forbear upbraiding matter of Religion, one against the other, and that upon pain of His Majesty's indignation. Given at His Majesty's Castle of Dublin, 20th of October. 1641.

R. Ranelagh, R. Dillon, Ant. Midensis, Ad. Losius, Geo. Shurly, Gerrard Louther, I. Temple, Fr. Willoughy, Ja. Ware.

God Save the King, and the state of the same

Imprinted at Dublin, by the Society of STATIONERS.

E

But

D

b

f

C

h

Till to return now to the Northern Rebels, who fo closely purfued on Deheir first plot as they beginning to put it in execution in most of the chief places of firength there upon the 23. of Off, the day appointed for the furprizal of the Castle of Dublin, had by the latter end of the same month gotten into their possession all the Towns Forts, Castles, & Gen. tlemens houses within the Counties of Tyron, Dones al Fermanagh, Armach part of vilber Cavan, London, Derry, Monaban, & half the County of Down, excepting possessed by the Cities of London-Derry & Coleraion, the Town & Castle of Ennishiller the Northern and some other places & Castles which were for the present gallantly de fended by the British undertakers, though afterwards for want of relief furrendred into their hands. The chief of the Northern Rebels that firl appeared in the execution of this plot within the Province of Ollan were Sir Phelim O Neal, Turlogh O Neal, his brother, Roury Mac-Guin brother to the Lord Mac-Guire, Philip O Rely, Mulmore O Rely, Sir Com The names Mac-Gennis, Col. Mac-Brian, Mac-Mahon; these having closely com bined together, with feveral other of their accomplices, the chiefe the several Septs in the several Counties, divided their forces into se of the chief Rebels, in Ulfter.

Rebels.

Several Forts and other places fudzed by the Rebels.

veral parties; and according to a general affignation made among them felves at one and the fame time, furprized by treachery the Town and Caftle of the Newry, the Fort, of Dong annon, Fort Montjey, Charlemon Tomrages Catricke Mac-Roffe, Cloughenter, Caftle Blamy, Caftle of Ma waghan; being all of them places of confiderable ftrength, and in fever denly furpri, al of them companies of foot, or troops of horse belonging to the stand ing-army. Besides these they took a multitude of other Castles. Houseso strength, Towns, and Villages, all abundantly peopled with British in habitants, who had exceedingly enriched the Country as well as them felves by their painful labours. They had made for their more comfort table subsistance, handsome and pleasant habitations, abounding with corn cattel, and all other commodities that an industrious people could draw out of a good inland foil. They lived in great plenty, and fome of them very well stored with plate and ready money. They lived likewife in as great security, being quiet and carless, as the people of Last little suspecting any treachery from their Irish neighbours. The English well knew they had given them no manner of provocation; they had entertained them with great demonstrations of love & affection. No flor can ever flew that in any Age fince their intermixed cohibitation, the role up fo fecretly to do them mischiet. And now of late they lived in peaceable & lovingly together as they had just reason most confidently to believe, that the Irish would never upon any occasion generally rife up a gain to their descruction. This I take to be one main and principal reason that the English were so easily over-run within the Northern Counties, and so suddenly swallowed up, before they could make any manner of relion the

for

me

en. gb, ing

llen.

de

Srf

lfter

HITT Office OCCI-

fo

om Ma

nd

50

in-

em-

for

vith

old

ke-

eift, en-

OTY

dío

y to

D 2-

for

ies, rol reli-

refiffance in the very first beginnings of this Rebellion. For most of the The great fe-English having either Irish Tenants, Servants, or Landlords, & all of them confidence of Irilb neighbours their familiar friends; as foon as the fire brake out, and the English in the whole Country began to rife about them, fome made their recourse the Irib, a presently to their Friends for protection, some relying upon their neigh, great cause of bours, others upon their Landlords, others upon their Tenants & Servants defruction. for preservation or at least present safety; and with great confidence put their lives their wives their children, and all they had, into their power. The English But these generally either betrayed them into the hands of other Rebels, betrayed and he or most perfidiously destroyed them with their own hands. The Priests murdered by had now charmed the Irilb & laid fuch bloody impressions in them as it their Irilb washeld, according to the maxims they had received, a mortal fin to give friends, ferany manner of relief or protection to any of the English. All bonds and Tenants. ties of faith & friendship were now broken; the Irish Landfords made 2 prey of their English Tenants, Irish Tenants and Servants a Sacrince of their English Landlords & Masters, one Neighbour cruelly murdered by another: the very Irill children in the very beginning fell to ftrip and kill English children: all other relations were quite cancelled & laid aside. and it was now effeemed a most meritorious work in any of them that could by any means or ways what foever, bring an English man to the flaughter. A work not very difficult to be compassed as things then stood mixture of the For they living promiscuously among the Britis, in all parts having from English atheir Priests received the watchword both for time & place, rose up; as mong the bilb it were actuated by one and the same spirit, in all places of those Coun-a main cause ties before mentioned at one & the same point of time; & so in a moment of their sudfell upon them, murdering some striping only, or expelling others out of den defirutheir habitations. This bred fuch a general terror & aftonishment among the English as they knew not what to think, much less what to do or which way to turn themselves. Their servants were killed as they were plough. ing in the fields. Husbands cut to pieces in the presence of their Wives. their childrens brains dasht out before their faces, others had all their goods & cattel feized & carried away, their houses burnt, their habitations laid wast, & all as it were at an instant before they could suspect the Irish for their enemies or any ways imagine that they had it in their hearts or in their power to offer so great violence, or do such mischief unto them.

Now for such of the English as stood upon their guard, & had gathered together, though but in small numbers, the Irish had recourse to their ancient stratagem, which as they have formerly, so they still continued to make frequent use of in this present Rebellion. And that was fairly to offer unto them good conditions of quarter, to assure them their lives, their goods, and free paffage, with a fafe conduct into what place foever

The Iris fal they pleased, and to confirm these Covenants sometimes under these Hands and Seals, fometimes with deep Oaths and Proteffations; and Proteflations then as foon as they had them in their power, to hold themselves dif-obto the English liged from their promises, and to leave their Soldiers at liberty to defpoil, ftrip, and murder them at their pleasure. Thus were the poor Eng. and after quarter given lish treated, who had shut themselves up in the great Cathedral Church them in feveat Armagh by Sir Phelim O Neat, and his brother Turlogh Thus were ral places, murder and fuch of the English used by Philip O Rely, who had retired themselves deftroy them. to Belterbet, the best planted Town in the County of Cavan. And after the fame barbarous manner were fuch of the English drawn out to the

cies used by the Irish to prevent the Baglish from flaughter, as had gotten into the Caltles of Longford, the Caltle of Jullogh in the County of Fermanagh, or the Church of Newtown in the fame County, and feveral other places; as appears by feveral examinations taken upon Oath, from perfons that hardly escap'd thence with their And befides these other policies they used, some to diffract and Several poli- discourage them, others to dif-inable them to fland out to make any defence. As in several places the Irish came under divers pretences, and borrowed such Weapons and Arms as the English had in their houses; and no fooner got them into their hands, but they turned them out of rifing against, their own doors, as they did at Glaslough in the County of Monaghan : or the scots And by the same means they very gently and fairly got into their polles. to joyn in ... from all the English Arms in the County of Cavan : The High Sheriff their defence, there being an Irishman and a Papist, pretending that he took their Arms to fecure them only against the violence of fuch of the Irish as he underfrood to be in Arms in the next County. And that they might the more eafily effect the deftruction of the English, and keep off the Soors from giving them any affiltance; they openly professed to spare, as really they did at the first, all of the Scorish Nation; and pretended they would fuffer them, as likewise all English Papist, to live quietly among them; hoping thereby to contain all of that Nation from taking up Arms, till they had Mastered all the English, and that then they should be well enough enabled to deal with them! Thus were the poor English prepar The English red for the slaughter, and so exceedingly diffracted with the tumultuous frand upon out joyning together in one body, the Rebels.

rifing of the Irish on all fides about them, as they could never put themthe defence of felves into any posture of defence. And although in many places they houses with made small parties, and betook themselves into several Churches and Castles, some of which were most gallantly long defended by them, yet did they not draw together in any fach confiderable body, as would enable them to make good their parry in the field, against the numerous whereby they forces of the Rebels. The truth is, they did not very readily endeavour, advantage to of dexteroully attempt it in any part of that Province, as I could hear of; every every man betaking himself the best he could to the care of his own house, and feeking how to save his own family, his goods within, and his Cattel without. And fo while they kept fingly apart, and fingly frond up for their own private prefervation, not joyning their forces together for the common fafety, they gave the Rebels a fair opportunity, and a fingular advantage, to work out with great facility their common des ftruction, Whereas, if they had deferted their houses upon the first notice of the riling up of the Irif, and in the feveral Counties put themfelves into feveral bodies, under the commands of the chief English Gentlemen round about them, they had undoubtedly (how ill foever they were provided of Arms and Munition) been able to have encountred the Irish, and to have beat them out of many parts of the Country, or at least, to have put them to fowe stand in their Enterprize. Whereas, by the course they took, they most readily, without almost any resistance. exposed themselves to the merciles cruelty of the Irish, who at the very first (for some few days after their breaking out) did not in most places murder many of them; but the course they took, was to seize upon all their Good and Cattle, to strip them, their Wives, and Children naked, and in that miferable plight, the weather being most bitter cold and frofty, to turn them out of their houses, to drive them to the Mountains, to wander through the Woods and Bogs; and if they by any means procured any other clothes, or but even ordinary rags to cover their nakedness, they were presently taken from them again, and none suffers ed to give them any kind of shelter by the way, relief, or entertains ment, withour incurring the heavy displeasure of their Priests and chief Commanders. And so they drove such of the English, whose lives they thought fit at that time to spare clear out of the Country. Some of them took their Journey towards Cariefergus, others towards Colrain, Derry, and other of the Northern Ports. Many who had gotten together and food upon their Guards, came to composition with their bloody affailants, and gave them their Goods, Plate and Money, for leave to come up to the City of Dublin. And having bought their Lifence at fo dear a rate, had Paffes and Convoys affigned them by the chief Captains of the Rebels, and so came on their way in great Troops of Men. Women, and Children. Out of the County of Cavan, as M. Creighton (who by his charitable relief of great numbers of them, preserved them from perishing) tell fies in his Examination, there palled by his house in one compamy 1400 persons, in another 500, from Newtown in the County of Eermanagh, in others leffer numbers; all without any weapons, or any thing elfe but the very clothes on their backs, which they suffered them not to carry away with them; but many were most barbarously stripped of

S

n

d:

I

11

13

-

d

t

-

IS

r, y fill

ng ijh

ef

but

or I

OT I

ad

as ny

ties

pre

he

no

ill

inc

COL

la

Fo

the

it

tie

fel

th

th

W

in

th

18 f

in

C

Dut to return now to the Northern Rebels, who foclofely purfued a Deheir first plot, as they beginning to put it in execution in most of the chief places of frength there, upon the 23. of Ott. the day appointed in the furprizal of the Castle of Dublin, had by the latter end of the same month gotten into their possession all the Towns, Forts, Castles, & Gen The greater tlemens houses within the Counties of Tyron, Donegal, Fermanagh, Arman part of vilber Cavan, London: Derry, Monaban, & half the County of Down, excepting Rebels.

possessed by the Cities of London-Derry & Coleraign, the Town & Castle of Ennishila the Northern and some other places & Castles which were for the present gallantly de fended by the Bruish undertakers, though afterwards for want of rela furrendred into their hands. The chief of the Northern Rebels that fit appeared in the execution of this plot within the Province of Ulh were Sir Phelim O Neal, Turlogh O Neal, his brother, Roury Mac-Gui brother to the Lord Mac-Guire, Philip O Rely, Mulmore O Rely, Sir Com The names Mac-Gennis Col. Mac-Brian, Mac-Mahon; these having closely con bined together, with feveral other of their accomplices, the chief of the chief Rebels, in Ulfter.

and other places fudzed by the Rebels.

the several Septs in the several Counties, divided their forces into veral parties; and according to a general affignation made among them selves at one and the same time, surprized by treachery the Town an Castle of the Newry, the Fort, of Dongannon, Fort Montjey, Charlemon Several Forts Tonrages Catricke Mac-Roffe, Cloughouter, Caftle Blany, Caftle of M naghan; being all of them places of considerable ftrength, and in seve denly furpri. al of them companies of foot, or troops of horse belonging to the stand ing-army. Besides these they took a multitude of other Castles, Houses strength, Towns, and Villages, all abundantly peopled with British in habitants, who had exceedingly enriched the Country as well as them felves by their painful labours. They had made for their more comfor table subsistance, handsome and pleasant habitations, abounding with corn, cattel, and all other commodities that an industrious people could draw out of a good inland foil. They lived in great plenty, and form of them very well stored with plate and ready money. They lived like wife in as great fecurity, being quiet and carlefs, as the people of Land little fuspecting any treachery from their Irish neighbours. The English well knew they had given them no manner of provocation; they haden tertained them with great demonstrations of love & affection. No for can ever fiew that in any Age fince their intermixed cohibitation, the role up fo fecretly to do them mischiet. And now of late they lived peaceable & lovingly together as they had just reason most confidently believe, that the Irish would never upon any occasion generally rife up gain to their descruction. This I take to be one main and principal reason that the English were so easily over-run within the Northern Counties and so suddenly swallowed up, before they could make any manner of fishance in the very first beginnings of this Rebellion. For most of the The great senglish having either Irish Tenants, Servants, or Landlords, & all of them curity and confidence of ilb neighbours their familiar friends; as foon as the fire brake out, and the English in e whole Country began to rife about them, some made their recourse the Irib, a refently to their Friends for protection, some relying upon their neigh- great cause of ours, others upon their Landlords, others upon their Tenants & Servants their sudden or preservation, or at least, present safety; and with great confidence put heir lives, their wives their children, and all they had, into their power. The English the these generally either betrayed them into the hands of other Rebels, betrayed and most perfidiously destroyed them with their own hands. The Priests murdered by ad now charmed the Irilb, & laid fuch bloody impressions in them, as it their Irish was held, according to the maxims they had received, a mortal fin to give friends, ferny manner of relief or protection, to any of the English. All bonds and Tenants, and ties of faith & friendship were now broken; the Irish Landlords made a prey of their English Tenants, Irish Tenants and Servants a Sacrince of their English Landlords & Masters, one Neighbour cruelly murdered by nother; the very Irish children in the very beginning fell to strip and ill English children: all other relations were quite cancelled & laid aside. and it was now esteemed a most meritorious work in any of them that could by any means or ways whatfoever, bring an English man to the laughter. A work not very difficult to be compassed as things then stood The inter-

For they living promiscuously among the British, in all parts having from mixture of the English a their Priests received the watchword both for time & place, rose up; as mong the bilb it were actuated by one and the same spirit, in all places of those Coun-a main cause ties before mentioned at one & the same point of time; & so in a moment of their sudfell upon them, murdering some, striping only, or expelling others out of den deftrutheir habitations. This bred fuch a general terror & aftonishment among the English as they knew not what to think, much less what to do, or which way to turn themselves. Their servants were killed as they were plough. ing in the fields, Husbands cut to pieces in the presence of their Wives, their childrens brains dasht out before their faces, others had all their goods & cattel feized & carried away, their houses burnt, their habitations laid wast, & all as it were at an instant before they could suspect the Irish for their enemies, or any ways imagine that they had it in their hearts, or in their power, to offer so great violence, or do such mischief unto them. Now for fuch of the English as stood upon their guard, & had gathered together, though but in small numbers, the Irish had recourse to their ancient stratagem, which as they have formerly, so they still continued to make frequent use of in this present Rebellion. And that was fairly to offer unto them good conditions of quarter, to assure them their lives, their goods, and free paffage, with a fafe conduct into what place foever

The Irish fal- they pleased, and to confirm these Covenants sometimes under their fifie their Oaths and and after

Hands and Seals, Sometimes with deep Oaths and Protestations; and Proteflations then as foon as they had them in their power, to hold themselves dif-ob. to the English liged from their promises, and to leave their Soldiers at liberty to despoil, strip, and murder them at their pleasure. Thus were the poor Eng. quarter given lish treated, who had shut themselves up in the great Cathedral Church them in feveat Armagh by Sir Phelim O Neal, and his brother Turlogh Thus were ral places, murder and fuch of the English used by Philip O Rely, who had retired their selves destroy them. to Belterbet, the best planted Town in the County of Cavan. And after the fame barbarous manner were fuch of the English drawn out to the flaughter, as had gotten into the Caltles of Longford, the Castle of Ini-logh in the County of Fermanagh, or the Church of Newtown in the same County, and several other places; as appears by several examinacies used by the Irish to prevent the English from to joyn in tions taken upon Oath, from perfons that hardly escap'd thence with their And befides these other policies they used, some to diffract and Several poli- discourage them, others to dif-inable them to stand out to make any defence. As in feveral places the Irish came under divers pretences, and borrowed such Weapons and Arms as the English had in their houses; and no fooner got them into their hands, but they turned them out of rifing against, their own doors, as they did at Gl. flough in the County of Monaghan: or the scots And by the same means they very gently and fairly got into their possess. fion all the English Arms in the County of Cavan: The High Sheriff their defence, there being an Irishman and a Papist, pretending that he took their Arms to fecure them only against the violence of such of the Irish as he understood to be in Arms in the next County And that they might the more easily effect the defruction of the English, and keep off the Scots from giving them any affiltance; they openly professed to spare, as really they did at the first, all of the Scotish Nation; and pretended they would fuffer them, as likewise all English Papist, to live quietly among them; hoping thereby to contain all of that Nation from taking up Arms, till they had Mastered all the English, and that then they should be well enough enabled to deal with them. Thus were the poor English prepas

The English red for the flaughter, and fo exceedingly distracted with the tumultuous ftand upon out joyning together in one body, the Rebels.

rifing of the Irish on all fides about them, as they could never put themtheir private felves into any posture of defence. And although in many places they houses with made small parties, and betook themselves into several hurches and Castles, some of which were most gallantly long defended by them, yet did they not draw together in any fach confiderable body, as would enable them to make good their parry in the field, against the numerous whereby they forces of the Rebels. The truth is, they did not very readily endeavour, advantage to or dexteroully attempt it in any part of that Province, as I could hear of;

every

ever

hou

Cat up f

for fing

ftru

tice

felv

Gen

they

the

at I

by !

exp

ver

pla

all

ked

and

tail

pro

nak

ed

me

Co

tho

toc

and

fto

lar

up rai

Re

an ch

in ny

F

th n

every man betaking himself the best he could to the care of his own house, and seeking how to save his own family, his goods within, and his Cattel without. And so while they kept fingly apart, and fingly stood up for their own private prefervation, not joyning their forces together for the common fafety, they gave the Rebels a fair opportunity, and a fingular advantage, to work out with great facility their common des ftruction, Whereas, if they had deferted their houses upon the first notice of the rifing up of the Irifh, and in the feveral Counties put themfelves into feveral bodies, under the commands of the chief English Gentlemen round about them, they had undoubtedly (how ill foever they were provided of Arms and Munition) been able to have encountred the Irish, and to have beat them out of many parts of the Country, or at least, to have put them to some stand in their Enterprize. Whereas. by the course they took, they most readily, without almost any resistance. exposed themselves to the merciles cruelty of the Irish, who at the very first (for some few days after their breaking out) did not in most places murder many of them; but the course they took, was to seize upon all their Good and Cattle, to strip them, their Wives, and Children naked, and in that miferable plight, the weather being most bitter cold and frosty, to turn them out of their houses, to drive them to the Mountains, to wander through the Woods and Bogs; and if they by any means procured any other clothes, or but even ordinary rags to cover their nakedness, they were presently taken from them again, and none suffers ed to give them any kind of shelter by the way, relief, or entertains ment, without incurring the heavy displeasure of their Priests and chief Commanders. And so they drove such of the English, whose lives they thought fit at that time to spare clear out of the Country. Some of them took their Journey towards Cariffergus, others towards Colrain, Derry, and other of the Northern Ports. Many who had gotten together and flood upon their Guards, came to composition with their bloody affailants, and gave them their Goods, Plate and Money, for leave to come up to the Ci y of Dublin. And having bought their Lifence at fo dear a rate, had Paffes and Convoys affigned them by the chief Captains of the Rebels, and so came on their way in great Troops of Men, Women, and Children. Out of the County of Cavan, as M Creighton (who by his charitable relief of great numbers of them, preserved them from perishing) tell fies in his Examination, there paffed by his house in one company 1400 persons, in another 500, from Newtown in the County of Fermanagh, in others leffer numbers; all without any weapons, or any thing elfe but the very clothes on their backs, which they fuffered them not to carry away with them; but many were most barbarously stripped bei

and

Re

n t wil

wa

tra

bef

efte

eft

his

ne

th

va

10)

be an

of

W

of

be

fa

in fe!

T

W

M

af

fe

fu

tl

as

A

T

u

C

C

being

of them, by those who undertook to give them fafe conduct, or perfidioully betrayed by them into the hands of other Rebels, by whom fome were killed, others wounded; and all in a manner whatfoev r they had to cover their nakedness, taken from most of them; as may appear by the examination of Adam Clover of Slonofy in the County of Cavan, who being duly fworn, deposeth inter alia. That this deponent and his company that were robbed, observed, that 30 persons or thereabouts, were then most barbaroully murdered and flain outright, and about 150 more persons cruelly wounded; so that traces of blood issuing from their wounds, lay upon the high way for 12 miles together, and many very young children were left and perished by the way, to the number of 60 or thereabouts; because the cruel pursuit of the Rebels was such, that their Parents and friends could not carry them further. And further faith, that some of the Rebels vowed, That if any digged graves wherein to bury the dead children, they should be buried therein themselves: So the poor people lest the most of them unburied, exposed to ravenous beasts & fowls,& some few their Parents carried a great way to bury them. And this deponent further faith, that he saw upon the way a woman left by the Rebels striped to her smock, set upon by three women & some Irish children, who miferably rent & tore the faid poor English woman, and stripped her of her smock in a bitter frost and snow, so that she fell in labour under their hands, and both she and her child died there. Thus did their mercy, in sparing those miserable souls in this manner prove by much a far greater cruelty then if they had fuddenly cut them off, as they did afterwards many thousand of British that fell into their hands. For now they starved and perished in multitudes upon the ways as they traveled along; and to those that outlived the misery of their journy, their limbs only served to drag up their bodies to Christian Burial there denied unto them. For many of the men, and most of the women & Children that thus escaped, either to Dublin or other places of fafety in the North, not long outlived the bitternels of their passage; but either overwhelmed with grief, or outwearied with Travel, contracted those diseases which furthered by hunger, cold, nakedness, ill lodgings, and want of other necessaries, struck deeply into bodies that had lived long at ease with much plenty, and foon brought them with forrow to their graves.

These were the first-fruits of this Rebellion which now began to dilate it self into the other Provinces, having covered over the northern Parts of the Kingdom with searful desolations. The first Plotters were yet undiscovered, but the great active instruments appointed for the execution of this horrid design fully appeared, & had already deeply imbrused their hands in the bloody massacree of the English, Sir Phelim O Neal being the chief of that Sept, & now the person remaining of nearest alli- sir Phelim o ance to the late E. of Tyron, assumed to himself the chief power among the Neal's pro-Rebels in Ulfter; & by his directions guided the rest of his complices on, in the destruction of all the English there. He was own of very mean parts without courage or conduct; his education for a great part of his youth was in England; he was admitted a Student of Lincolns Inn, and there trained up in the Protestant Religion, which he soon changed after, if not before his return into Ireland, lived loofely, and having no confiderable estate, by reason of the great engagement upon it, became of very little efteem in all mens opinions Yet fuch were the over zealous affections of his Countrymen in this cause, their secrecy in attempting, their suddenness in executing, as by their forwardness to destroy the English and get their goods, he quickly over-run that part of the Country. He had prevailed so far within seven days after he first appeared in this Rebellion. by feizing most treacherously at the very first upon Charlemont, where the L. Caufield lay with his Foot-company, the Forts of Dongannon & Montjoy, as that in his Letter written to Father Patrick O Donnell his Confessor, bearing date from Montjoy, the 30. of Octob. he was able to brag of great and meny victories. And prefently after he had gotten such a multitude of rudefellows together, though in very ill equipage, as he marched down with great numbers of men towards Lisnagarvy, near the chief Plantation of the Scots; (for that part of their plot to spare them, as they did in the beginning, they found now too gross to take, therefore they resolved to fall upon them without mercy) and yet left sufficient forces to come up into the Pale, to take in Bondalie in the County of Lowth. Which was a Frontier Town in the last wars against Tyron, and so well defended it Dondolke felf, as with all the power he had, he could never recover it into his hands, taken by the There lay now a Foot company of the old Army, but the Lieutenant the beginwho commanded it, having neither his men in readiness, nor Arms or ning of No-Munition, made little or no relistance, easily giving way to the forward vember, 1641 affections of the inhabitants who delivered up the Town into the pofsession of the Rebels about the beginning of Novamber, 1641.

The Rebels presently after their taking in of Dondalke marched on The Rebels further into the County of Lowin, & possessed themselves of Ardee, a lit-march up totle Town within seven miles of Tredagh, anciently called Drohedagh. So wards Tredagh as it was now high time to provide for the fafety of that Town. The L. Moor had already retired thither from his house at Millifont, and there remained with his troop of horse and two companies of foot. One was under the command of Sir John Nettervile, eldest Son to the Lord Viscount Nettervile. He discovered in the very beginning much virulency in his affections by giving false frights and raising false rumours and making all manner of ill infusions into the minds of the Towns.men. who as it afterwards appeared, were but too forward to take part with the Rebels. It is verily believed they had in the very beginning some plot to cut off the Lord Moor and seize upon his Troop; and that Sir John Netterviles part was to begin a mutiny, which he attempted that night he was to be upon the watch, by giving ill language, and endeavouring to make a quarrel with his Lordfhip, which he very discreatly passed over, and so carefully looked to the guard of the Town, as they could take no advantage to put on their defign. Howsoever the Towns-men were extreamly frighted with the thoughts of their present danger, and the The ill con-greater part of them being Papilts, were ready to declare themselves for dition of Tre- the Catholick cause; only their desires were, things might be so ordered, as fev

Pee

iest

all

tog

Lo

eft

in

fhi

bit E v

th

m

fa

T

fo

ar

L

CE

cl

V

I

ti

W

u

fi

1 í

L. Iuftices

digh, repre-would administer unto them specious pretence of necessity for the same sented by the That Alexander advantagement unto the Alexander Indiana advantagement unto the Indiana advantagement L. Moor to the The L. Moor gave present advertisement unto the Lords Justices and Council, of the ill condition and most imminent danger he found the Town to be then in, that it was not possible to preserve it out of the hands of the Rebels without further strength both of horse & foot. I hat in case the enemy should ake any sudden approaches, or attempt to furprize the Town, he found fuch poor preparatives for defence within, fuch apparent figns of difloyalty in the Towns-men, and all things in fuch a desperate confusion, as they should not be able by the best endeavours raifed by the they could use to give any good account of that place. Hereupon their L. Juffices at Lordships presently resolved, to leavy in the City of Dublin a Regi-Dublin, and ment of foot, and to place them under the command of Sir Henry 1 ich. fent down un-born for the defence of I redagh. And for this purpose there was very opportunely in the hands of the Vice-treasurer 3000 li in a readiness to be at that time fent over into England, for the facisfaction of a publick born, for the engagement there. This the Lords thought fit to make use of, for the levying and fetting out of those men which Sir Henry Tichborn got together in very few days, and having a Commission of government for the Town, with some other private instructions, he marched away with great alacrity and diligence the 3. of November, and happily arrived next day at Tredagh der the command of Sir Henry Tichdefence of Tredigh Nowember. 3.

A Regiment

The Lords granted another Commission to Sir Charles Coor to levy ? raised by sir thousand men more, which he nost carefully endeavoured, and within a Charles Coot. very fhort time made up his Regiment, wherein very many of the English, who came up stripped and despoiled out of the North; lifted themselves; for most of the men which escaped from thence with their lives, being better able to suffer then the woman and children, out lived the miseries of their journy, and putting themselves into several companies, some of them had the contentment to revenge the barbarous cruelty used by the Rebels towards them.

1

d

-

V

Pon the 5 of November, the Lords made their 2d dispatch unto His The second Majesty, still at Edenburgh in Scotland: At the same time they fent dispatch made Reveral Letters into England, to the L. Keeper, Speaker of the house of by the Lords Peers, to the Speaker of the house of Commons, to the Lords of His Man Justices and Peers, to the Speaker of the house of Commons, to the Lords of His Ma-Council into iefty's most Hon. privy Council, and to the L. Lieutenant of Ireland; in England, all which they did with much earnestness declare their present dangers, Nov. 5. together with the necessity of fending sudden relief. In their Letter to the Lords of the Council they did more particularly fet down the miserable estate of the whole Kingdom, and the large progress that the Rebellion had in few days made fince it broke out. They represented unto their Lordthips the great outrages the Rebels had committed upon the British inhabitants in Ulfter, that they had feized upon all their estates and houses in five Counties of that Province, possessed their Arms, detained many of the principal Gentlemen prisoners; That they had already flain many, most barbarously hewed some to pieces, that they have exposed thoufands to want and beggery, who had good estates and lived plentifully: That the Rebillion began then to diffuse it self into the Counties of Longford and Letrim, and to threaten the English plantations in the King and Queens County: that the Inhabitants of the Counties of Meath and Lowth began to fall upon the English near about them: that they conceived there could not be less then 30000 who had already openly declared themselves in this Rebellion, and were assembled together in several great parties; that they understood their design was, having got Dundalk, to take in Tredagh, and so to come up immediately to befiege the City and Castle of Dublin; that they gave out publickly, their put pose was to extirpate the English and Protestants, and not to lay down Arms until the Romish Religion were established, the Government settled in the hards of the Natives, and the old Irish restored to the lands of their fuppof d ancestors. That they held it their duty to acquaint their Lordships with the lamentable estate wherein the Kingdom stood, that his Majesty and the Parliament might understand it, and so speedily provide for fending over to their relief 10000 Foot, 1000 Horse, together with fome able Commanders, 100000 l in money, and further provisions of Arms: That unless these were presently sent to them (they craved leave to repeat it again & again) the Kingdom would be utterly loft, all the English & Protestants in Ireland destroyed, the peace of the Kingdom of England disturbed by the Irish from thence, and so England enforced to make a new conquest of it, for that a politick reformation would then be impossible. But now before I pass further, I shall here give an accompt of the arrival of these and the former Letters of the 25 of October, addressed by the Lords Justices and Council to the L. Lieutenant of Ireland. Owen

The proceed-O Connally, the happy discoverer of the first Plot (who carried the first ings of the Parliament of Englind upon evening delivered those Letters to his Lordship, who having read them the first ad over, and received from him full Information of all other particulars vertifements within his knowledge, repaired the next morning to the Council-board, brought unto and having there acquainted the Lords of His Majesty's Privy Council them of the with them, he was required by their Lordships to communicate them unto Rebellion raifed in Ireland. the Lords of the upper house of Parliament, which he did accordingly the very same morning: and they considering the high importance of the Lords of the upper house of Parliament, which he did accordingly the very same morning: and they considering the high importance of them, as soon as they had perused them, Ordered that they should be presently sent down to the house of Commons, by the Lord Keeper, the L. Privy Seal, L. High Chamberlain, L. Admiral, L. Marshal, L. Chamberlain, Earl of Bath Earl of Dorset, Earl of Leicester, Earl of Holland, Earl of Berks, Earl of Bristel, L. Viscount Say, E. Mandevile, L. Goring, L. Wilmor, all of them being of His Majesty's most honorable Privy Council. There were Chairs provided for these Lords in the house of Commons, and they sat down there till the Letters were read, and then having informed the house of such other particulars as they had received concerning the general Rebellion in Ireland, they departed without any further conference or other debate upon them, leaving the house of Commons to consider surther of them: Who presently Ordered,

That the House forthwith should be resolved into a Committee, to take into consideration the matter offered concerning the Rebellion in Ireland, as likewise to provide for the Safety of the Kingdom of England.

This being done, they fell into a most serious debate of this great business then before them, they fully considered what means were fittest to be used at present for the prevention of the further spreading of that hideous Rebellion in Ireland, as well as stopping of the ill influence it might make upon their affairs in England, where great troubles even then began to appear within view. And after much time spent in this to bate, they came to these several Conclusions, which being put to the question, were affented unto by the Committee, and so resolved as tolloweth;

1. That 50000 l. be forthwith provided.

2. That a Conference be desired with the Lords, to move them that a felect Committee of the Members of both Houses may be appointed to go to the City of London, and to make a Declaration unto them of the state of the business in Ireland, and to acquaint them that the lending of monies at this time will be an acceptable for vice to the Common-wealth. And that they propose unto them the Loan of 50000 l. and to assure them that they shall be secured both of the Principal and Interest; by Act of Parliament.

3. That the af

4

100 rision

be sec

mitte Th

in or the q

Irela:

Lord

for t

And

that ars

rial

ferve

then. T

Irela

the ctio

the land

que

the

ing

rai

me

e ad

3 That a fele& Committee may be named both Houses to consider of the affairs of Ireland.

4. That Owen O Conady, who discovered this great treason, shall have too I. presently paid him, and 200 I. per annum pension, until provision of land of inheritance of a greater value be made for him.

5 That the persons of Papists of quality within this Kingdom, may be secured within the several Counties where they reside.

6 That no person whatsoever, except those who are Merchants, shall be admitted to go over into Ireland, without Certificate from the Committee of both Houses appointed to consider the affairs of Ireland,

These with several other particulars concerning Ireland, and tending in order to the safety of the Kingdom of England, were resolved upon the question, and Master Whitlock appointed to report them to the House is heads of conference desired with the Lords concerning the affairs of Ireland, which was accordingly had with their Lordships the same day; At which conference the L. Keeper did express the very great sence the Lords had of the exceeding great care taken by the house of Commons for the prevention of the further spreading of the Rebellion in Ireland. And his Lordship by command of the Lords did further let them knows, that their Lordship did think sit to agree with them in all those particulars presented unto them by the house of Commons without any material alteration, only adding such further things as they conceived might serve to further and expediate their desires in the more speedy putting them in execution.

The house of Commons having proceeded thus far in the affairs of Ireland, upon the two first days after the discovery made unto them, of the Rebellion there raised, did not with standing their own present distrations, set a part some portion almost of every day that they sate, during the whole month of November, for the considering of the affairs of Ireland; and so upon the third and fourth of the same, resolved upon the question, and accordingly ordered these particulars following:

1 That the house holds fit that 20000. li. be forthwith supplied for the present occasions, of Ireland.

2 That a convenient number of thips thall be provided for the guarding of the Sea: coafts of Ireland.

3 That this house holds fit that 6000 foot and 2000 horse shall be raised with all convenient speed, for the present expedition into Ireland.

4 That the Lord Lieutenant shall present to both houses of Parliament, such Officers as he shall think fit to fend into Ireland, to command any forces to be transported thither.

5 That Magazines of victuals shall be forthwith provided at West-chefter to be fent over to Dublin, as the occasions of that Kingdom shall require.

That the Magazines of Arms, Ammunition, Powder, now in Car.

lifle, shall be forthwith fent over to Knockf rgus in Ireland.

7 That it be referred to the Kings Council, to consider of some sit way and to present it to the House, for a publication to be made of rewards to be given to such as shall do service in this Expedition into Ireland.; & for a pardon of such of the Kebels in Ireland as shall come in by a time limitted, & of a sum of mony to be appointed for a reward to such as shall bring in the heads of such principal Rebe sas shall be nominated.

8 That Letters shall be for the ith first to the Justices in Ireland to acquaint them how sensible this House is of the affairs of Ireland.

That the Committee of Issh affeirs shall consider how, and in what manner this Kingdom shall make use of the friendship and assistance of Scotland in the business of Ireland.

10 That directions shall be given for the drawing of a Bill for the pressing of men for this particular service of Ireland.

These particulars, together with several others, being resolved upon the question, they passed an Ordinance of Parliament, enabling the Earl of Leicester L. Lieutenant of Ireland, to raise 3500 Foot, and 600 horse, for the present service there. And they further expressed their resolution, not to-make use of the assistance offered unto them by their Brethren of Seotland surther for the present, then for the surnishing them with 1000 Foot, which they desired might be transported out of Seotland into the North of Ireland. And on the same day they ordered, that the Master of his Majesty's Ordinance should deliver to L. Lieutenant of Ireland the number of 1000 Arms for Horse & 8000 Arms for Foot, and ten last of powder, to be presently sent into Ireland. And that the L. Admiral should suddenly provide shipping for the transporting of Men, Arms, & Ammunicion, and other provisions according to the former resolutions of the House.

Now while both Houses of Parliament were taking order for raising men, Money and sending provisions and other necessaries for Ireland, there arrived those other Letters of the 5 of November, formerly mentioned, which being addressed to the Lords of his Majerty's Privy Council, were communicated to both Houses of Parliament, & after a conference upon them, took further resolutions for the speedy sending a way supplies into Ireland. And such were the forward affections & zeal of the House of Commons, to promove what concerned the service of Ireland, as they thereupon voted 200000 li. to be raised for the suppressing the Irish rebellion, & for securing of the Kingdom of England, & payment of the publick debts.

And

of me

be co

enco

faction this

diyo

vice

Irifh

atten

fent

risfie

for o

ment Prov

cial

Sumi

perso

any

for

the

mo

had gua

atte

ous

for

the

Con

fta

by

and

an

Fr

And that they might facilitate this great work of railing such a summ of money, upon credit of an Act of Parliament, before the money could be collected throughout the Kingdom; they thought sit, for the better encouragement of the City of London, and for the giving them full satisfaction in point of security for the moneys formerly lent them, to make this Order following.

THe Lords and Commons in this present Parliament assembled, having a due regard to the good affection of the City of Lindon, expressed upon funs dry occasions, by the advancing and lends g of great summs of money for the fervice of this Commonswealth, & particula I, the summ of 50000 li. lent for the brish affairs; or the summ of 50000 li. more len. by the faid City unto the Peers attending his Majesty in the Northern parts before the beginning of this prefent arliament, which are not yet paid, or otherways secured, shall be fully faisfied & repaid unto the Suid City of London, with interest of 8 li. per cent. for one year, out of such moneys as are or shall be raised by Authority of Parliament. And for that purpose an Act of Parliament to be passed with all expedition. Provided always that this present Ordinance shall not in any ways be prejudicial to any Members of the said House of Commons, who have formerly lent any summs of money to this Parliament, nor to the Northern Counties, nor to any persons whatsoever, to whom both Houses of Parliament, on the said House of Commons have formerly ordered the payment of any summs of money, nor to any security given to them, before the making of this Ordinance,

But I shall now return to the affairs of this Kingdom, and the serious consultations and means used here by the Justices and Council for the securing of the City and Castle of Dublin, which by reason of the present consustance, weakness, and wants, were in very great, and most apparent danger of a sudden (urprize.

And first for the Castle, Sir Francis Wistoughby being made Governour, had a Company of an 100 men well armed, assigned for the constant guard of that place, besides the ordinary Warders, who gave their usual attendance there. And because the Lords conceived it might be dangerous in such desperate times to admit such a multitude of suitors of all sorts into the Castle, as had daily occasion to attend the Council-board, they presently transferred the place of their meeting in Council to Cork House, where they continued to sit a good time after, not withstanding the great danger their persons were continually exposed unto, by the consident resort in great numbers of several Lords, Gentlemen and others, who within sew days after declared themselves Rebels, and so we it out among them. It was Gods immediate providence that preserved them, and suffered not those persons, who soon after became fuch bloody Rebels, to lay hold on that opportunity. For certainly, they might with great ease have taken out of the way the Lords Justices and Council; & to have left all things in such confusion as would have brought on their long defired ends without any further contestation or trouble.

The next care was to provide victuals for the Castle in such proportions as might enable it to endure a fiege, in case the Town, either through treachery within, or by forces from without, should come to be surprized by the Rebells, who now carried all things fo clearly before them in the North, as they most confidently gave it out they would suddenly come down & make themselves masters of it. How to compass this, seem. ed a matter of great difficulty, in regard there was no money to be had for the performing this work so absolutely necessary in it self, and at that time so highly importing the safety & preservation, even of the whole Order taken Kingdom. Therefore the Master of the Rolles, upon whom the Lords were ling the Caftle pleased to impose this service of victualling the Castle; took the advantage of the strange frights fears, and little safety, all the English & Protestants, conceived both themselves and their goods to remain in at that time. He fent presently for some of the chief Merchants that were Protestants in the Town, & clearly represented unto them, the high necessicies of the State, the great danger of the Town, the publick benefit, and their own private fecurity, in laying into the Castle such of their provisions as they had lying by them even in unfafe places of the City. These impresfions took, and they rightly apprehending the common danger, that they could not out-live the ruins of the Castle; part y out of their own good affections to the fervice, partly out of a prudent care to secure their goods, were content to bring in great quantities of Beef, Herrings, and Corn upon the Master of the Rolles un sertaking to see them fatisfied, in case use were made of them, or otherwise certain restitution in kind to the feveral owners So as there were presently laid in by the English and Dutch Merchants, within the Verge of the Castle, above 2000 barrels of Beef, 2000 barrels of Herrings, & a good proportion of Wheat; provifions sufficient, not onely to victual the Castle for many months, but which did ferve to maintain the whole Army billered in the City a long time after, & their money they received within few months after, by certificate from hence upon the Chamber of London; according to an Order made by both Houses of Parliament in England; for present payment to be made to fuch as laid in any provisions for the Army in Ireland. There and gave great comfort and security to all the English & Protestants.

for victualof Dublin.

> for ther tain of S toge The COVE time > > s f

a ter

the

And

cra

but

bit

the

wa

bel

me

inft

wh

ent

wif

wel

ftro

off

Lo

nec

Wk

pre

fho

vale

amo

furi

lin

was then further Order taken to new dig & clear an old Well long edt fince stopped up within the Walls of the Castle; & to provide all other fear necessaries fit for a fiege. This was the first step to the safety of this place, ord Ray The

The Caftle being thus happily provided for, the Lords took it next into The I. Juftitheir care how to fecure the City in force fort, against any fudden attempts ces as to And this proved a work not easie to be effected, not only in regard of the the fatery of craziness of the walls, the large Suburbs, and weakness of the place; the City of but much more in respect of the corrupt ill affections of the Popish inha- Dubiin. bitants wi hin the City: So strangely were many of them deluded with the ill infusions of their Priests, as they did certainly (as we found afterwards by woful experience) do all that in them lay, to promote the rebellious deligns then fet on foot (as they believed) only for the re-fettlement of their Religion, and recovery of hen Liberties They were the instruments to conveigh away privately most of the chief Conspirators, who would have furprized the Castle on the 23d of Octob They secretly entertained many of the Rebels that came out of the Country, they likewife fent them relief that were abroad, by fecret ways, conveighing as well Ammunicion, as Intelligence of all passages from hence. And such ftrong aversions had they against all contributions for the maintenance of His Majesty's army; as in the very beginning of the Rebellion, when the Lords fent for the Mayor and Aldermen, and laying before them the high necessities of the State, together with the apparent danger of the City and whole Kingdom, defired to borrow a confiderable fumm of mony for the present, which they undertook to repay out of the next Treasure that should arrive out of England. The Popish party among them was so prevalent, as that after a most serious consultation and very solemn debate among themselves, they returned this answer, that they were not able to furnish above 40 l. and part of that was to be brought in in Cattle.

There remained at this time imbarqued within the harbour of Dublin four hundred Irish Soldiers, ready, as was pretended, to set Sail Several Irish for Spain, under the command of Colonel John Barry, who with some o-Soldiers imbarqued unther Irish Gentlemen had procured leave from His Majesty to leavy cer, der pretence: tain numbers of voluntiers to be transported over for the service of the K. of being carriof Spain. And those levied in other parts, as well as at Dublin, were broughted into spain, together just at the very time design'd for the execution of the great plot, at the very The pretence was specious, but certainly their intentions how finely soever first breaking cover'd over, were to have those men in a readiness together, at the very out of the Retime appointed for the first breaking out of these unnatural troubles, And bellion. is for those men which lay within the harbour of Dublin, they were so great a terror to all the Protest ant Inhabitants in the City, as it exceedingly perplexed the Lords how to despose so of them as might prevent the mischi-fjustly feared, in case of their landing Their Commanders had so handsomely ordered the matter, as tho' they were deligned for a long voyage, yet tay on Ship board any longer they could not, by reason they had no vi-

9

e

e,

he

ctuals.

Chals, not even enough to carry them out of the Harbour; and no man had order in the absence of Colonel Barry who retired himself some few miles out of the Town, the very Evening before the Castle should have been taken) to provide for the further supplying of them. To suffer them to land, was to add so many instruments of mischief to these already gathered within and about the City. Therefore it was resolved that the Captain of the King's Pinace then in the Harbour, should by force keep them from landing, which he did feveral days together, till it was apparent they would inevitably starve, if a course were not suddenly taken to afford them some relief. Whereupon the Lords having no means to Victual them aboard, gave them leave to land, having first taken order they should not come into the City.

Several Profued out by the Lords Juflices and ·Council.

The Lords Juflices and Council thought fit within very few days after clamations il- the landing of these men, the more to deter them, and all other ill-affected persons from repairing to the City of Dublin, to issue out a Proclamation for the discovery and present removal of all such as did or should come & continue there without just or necessary cause. But so careful were they in this, and all other their actions, not to give any distaste to the Irish or other inhabitants of the Country, as they forbare to inflict any punishment upon any that continued in the City contrary to their Proclamation, sparing several persons whom they had not only just cause to be jealous of, but who were brought before them, and convinced to have uttered speeches clearly discovering their ill affections. And having by late Proclamations prorogued the Parliament, and adjourned Michaelman Term, that under pretence of repair to either of them, unnecellary concourse of strangers might not be brought unto the Town, they proceeded on to some other Acts, which as they conceived would not only render great security to the City, but less n the distempers abroad, bring dately to the Pale, and keep the dang is at diffarce, and far off from them. And for this purpose they being informed, that a multicude of the meaner fort of people were ignorantly involved in the guilt of this Rebellion, and by the wicked seducement of the first Conspirators had been drawn on to despoil their English neighbour, they issued out a Proclamation about the beginning of the month of November, declaring unto all fuch as were not Freeholders within the Conney of Meath, West-Meath, Lowth, and Longford; that if they would come in and submit, make restitution of the goods so taken, they should be received to His Majesty's Mercy, and no further prosecution held gainst them.

Much about the time of the lending forth of this Proclamation, Iome of the chief of the Sept of the Rely's, and other prime Gentlemen in the County of Cavan fept up a kind of Remonfrance to the Lords Justices and Council. Whereunto they returned them a very fair answer, assuring them of their readiness

re

in

fte

of

ft

to pi

fo

ol

ne

ri

&

K

ha

th

af

of

fw fo

tir

th

do di

in 70

 T_{μ} of

fai

CO

fta

bo of

TO

eld

Vi Bi

L

the

readiness to give them all just redress of their grievances expressed there. A Remonin, so they would in the mean time retire peaceably to their houses, re-france sent ftore as they were able the English mens goods, & forbear all further Acts up to the Lords Justiof rapine & violence. And they did presently send over their Remon-ces and ftrance to the Lord Lieutenant, to be presented to His Majesty, according Council, to their desires. But these ways of moderation and peaceable perswasions, from the Reproved of very little effect, they had no manner of influence into the re-County of folved minds of the Leaders, or of opperation upon the hardned hearts Cavan. of the people; they were too deeply engaged, so slightly to retire. They had now drenched themselves in the blood of the English, & were greatly enriched with their spoils. It was not possible for them to make restitution, & they hoped to go through with the work, & by the united power of the Kingdom to draw the whole management of the affairs into their own hands.

And now likewise the Lords Justices, & Council, that they might shew the great confidence they had in the Lords & chief Gentlemen of the Pale & give them both opportunity & means to express their loyalty and Commissions affections to His Majesty's service, resolved (according as the constitution of martial Law of their affairs then required) to do some such Acts as might clearly per-granted unto fwade them of the great trust they really reposed in them. And there-several perfore first they gave out several Commissions of Martial Law, for execu-fons by the ting(without attending a proceeding according to the ordinary course of ces. the Common Law) of fuch Traitours & Rebels as should be apprehended doing mischief in any parts of the Country about them. And these they directed to the most active Gentlemen, though all Papists, inhabiting in the several Counties, as To Henry Talbot in the County of Dublin, John Bellew Esq; in the County of Lowth, Richard Dalton and James Tuit Esq; in the County of West-meath, Valerian Westy in the County of Meath, James Talbot in the County of Cavan.

Next they made choice of the chief persons of quality residing in the Commissions faid Counties of the Pale, and others adjacent to them, to govern and of governcommand fuch forces as should be raised by them, and armed by the ment of the feveral Counftate for the defence of the Country , and illaed out from the Council-ties within the board feveral Commissions of government unto them. As One to the Earl Pale, granted of Ormande and the L. Viscount Montgarret, for the County of Kilkenny; to several to Walter Baynall Esq; for the County of Catherlagh; Sir Jam, Dillon the Lords and elder and Sir James, Dillon the younger for the County of Lord ford. I elder, and Sir James Dillon the younger for the County of Longford; L. without di-Viscount Cotaloe for the County of Mayo, Sir Robert Talbot & Garrat finction of Birne for the County of Wicklew; Sir Christopher Bellew for the County of Religion, Lowth; Earl of Kildare for the County of Kildare; Sir Thomas Nugent for the County of West-meath; Nicholas Barnwell for the County of Bublin; L. Viscount Gormanstown for the County of Meath. All these were made choice

choice of without diffinction of religion, the Lords holding it fit at that time to put the chief persons of power in the County into those places of trust; hoping they might prove good instruments to oppose the threatening incursions of the Northern Rebels which they knew them well enabled to perform if they would really joyn in the fervice, or at least be kept by this their great confidence in them, from giving any entertainment or affiltance to their rebellious defigns

The Commission directed to the L. of Gormanston, I have thought fit here to infert. It was found afterwards in his study by some of His Majesties army, when he and all the rest of the Governours that were of the Romish Religion, thus chosen, deserted their houses, and openly declared themselves in actual rebellion. The other Commissions were all of the fame tenour.

M

in

tog ma div do We fire and ing and for Aff Ho the the Chi Lea bef low by rate cre pro Ha it h to Ho

By the Lords Justices and Councel.

W. Parsons. John Borlace.

D Ight trusty and well beloved, We greet you well. Whereas divers most Disloyal and Malignant persons within this Kingdom have Traiterously Conspired against His Majesty, His Peace, Crown and Dignity; and many of them in Execution of their Conspiracy, are Traiterously Assembled together in a Warlike manner, and have most Inhumanely made Destruction and Devastation of the Persons and Estates of divers of His Majesty's Good and Loyal Subjects of this Kingdom, and Taken, Slain, and Imprisoned great numbers of them. We out of Our Care and Zeal for the common Good, being defirous by all means to Suppress the said Treasons and Traitors, and to Conferve the Persons and Fortunes of His Majesty's Loving Subjects here in Safety; and to prevent the further spoil and Devastation of His Majesty's good people here, do therefore hereby Require and Authorife you, to Levy, Raife and Assemble, all, every, or any the Forces, as well Foot-men as Horse-men within the County of Meath, giving you hereby the Command in Chief of all the faid Forces, and hereby further Requiring and Authorizing you as Commander of them in Chief, to Arm, Array, Divide, Distribute, Dispose, Conduct, Lead, and Govern in Chief the faid Forces, according to your. best Discretion; and with the said Forces, to Resist, Pursue, Follow, Apprehend, and put to Death, Slay, and Kill, as well by Battel as other ways, all and fingular the faid Conspirators, Traitors and their Adherents, according to your Difcretion; and according to your Conscience and Discretion to proceed against them, or any of them, by Martial Law, by Hanging them or any of them till they be dead, according as it hath been accustomed in time of open Rebellion; and also to Take, Waste, and Spoil their, or any of their Castles, Holds, Forts, Houses, Goods, and Territories, or otherwife wife to preferve the Lives of them, or any of them, and to receive them into His Majesty's Favour and Mercy, and to forbear the devastation of their, or any of their Castles, Forts, Houses, Holds, Goods, and Territories afore-mentioned. according to your Discretion: Further hereby Requiring and Authorizing you to do, Execute, and perform all and fingular fuch other things for Examination of persons suspected, difcovery of Traitors and their Adherents, Parlying with, and granting Protections to them or any of them, taking up of Carts, Carriages, and other conveniencies, Sending and Retaining Espials, Victualling the said Forces, and other things whatfoever conducing to the purpose afore-mentioned, as you in your Difcretion shall think fit, and the necessity of the fervice Require; further hereby Requiring and Authorizing you, as Commander in chief, to constitute and appoint such Officers and Ministers respectively, for the better performance and Execution of all and fingular the premises, as you in your Discretion shall think fit. And We do hereby Require and Command, all and fingular His Majesty's Sheriffs, Officers, and Ministers, and Loving Subjects, of and within the County of Meath, and the Borders thereof, upon their Faith and Allegiance to His Majesty, and to His Crown, to be Aiding, Helping, and Affifting to you, in the doing, and Executing of all and fingular the Premises; This our Commission to continue during Our pleasure only, and for the so doing, this shall be your sufficient Warrant.

Given at His Majestiy's Castle of Dublin, Novemb. 1641.

R. Dillon. Jo. Temple. Ja. Ware. Rob. Meredith.

To our very good Lord Nicholas Vic. Com. Gormanstown.

In

thei

ther

thev

as a tud

DOV

not enfo

Con

tre

hav

for

fafe

def

the

Mo

Lo

ATI

fan

the

Do

the

feli

dif

Co

Wi

all fai

br

IN these Commissions it is very observable, that there was power given to these Lords and Gentlemen to whom they were directed. not only to use Fire and Sword, for the destruction of the Rebels and their Adherents, but also to preserve the lives of any of them, to receive them, or any of them into His Maj fty's Favour or Mercy. This plainly thews the very great confidence the Lords were pleased to repose in them; as also their delires to make them instruments, to deliver those multitudes of people that engaged themselves in this Rebellion, from the power, either of His Majefty's Arms, or Civil Justice. They intended nothing but the reducing of a Rebellious Nation; and they at the first applied lenitives, which failing in the Cure, they were afterwards then enforced to have recourse to more violent Medicines.

That these Governours thus constituted, might be the better enabled Arms and according to the authority and power given unto them by their feveral Munition de-Commissions, to undertake the defence of the Country in this high ex-livered out to tremity of the near approaching dangers; The Lords took order to the Lords and have delivered unto them a certain proportion of Arms, to be imployed men of the for the arming of some men to be raised in each County for the common pale, by the fafety, besides the Arms they gave them, and other Gentlemen, for the Lords Justices defence of their own private Houses. As to the Lord of Gormanstone and Council. there were delivered Arms for five hundred men, for the County of Meath. There were also delivered Arms for three hundred men for the County of Kildare. Arms for three hundred men for the County of Lowth. Arms for three hundred men for the County of West-Meath, Arms for three hundred men for the County of Dublin. And about the fame time there were fent down four hundred Muskets, to the Lords of the Ardes and Clandeboys, for the arming of the Scots in the County of Down. All of these had Powder, Lead, and Match, proportionable to their Arms, at the same time delivered unto them:

But now the poison of this Rebellion which had hitherto contained it Several Counfelf within the Northern Counties, and the confines of them, began to be ties within diffused into other parts of the Kingdom. It had already infected the of Leinster de-Counties of Letrim, Long ford, W st-Meath, and Lowth, lying contiguous clare themunto them. And upon the 12th of Novemb, the Irish in the County of selves for the Wicklow brake out most furiously, Despoiling, Robbing, and Murthering Rebels. all the English Inhabitants within that territory. They burnt all their fair well-built houses, drove away their Cattle, and laid Siege to Fort Carew, wherein was a foot Company of the old Army. The News being brought to the Lords Justices the roof, they well considered the importance of the place, and that if it were in the hands of the Rebels, and that whole County in their possession, they could expect little quietness; or even fafety in the City, by reason of their near neighbourhood; Whereupon they were most desirous to have fent down forces for the relief of it. But when they came on the other fide to confider their want of means for the performance of that service, that they had no money, but few men, and many of them not to be trufted; that it would be very dangerous to divide their small forces, and so to leave the City in a manner unguarded, they were enforced to lay aside that resolution, and with great grief to fit still & suffer the poor English in those parts to be expos'd to the merciless cruelties of those barbarous Rebels who went on furioufly with the work, and quickly clear'd all that County of the English inhabitants, Within few days after, the Irish in the Counties of Wexford and Caterlagh began to rife likewise, & to follow the bloody examples of their neighbours. There were now also great appearancies of the disloyalty of the County of Kildare, who with large protestations under the pretence of doing fervice had gotten into their hands the Arms and Munition defigned for them by the State. And so mysterious and doubtful was the carriage of the Lords and chief Gentlemen of the English Pale, giving no manner of Intelligence to the State of the proceedings of the Rebels, nor making any kind of preparatives against them, as their affections began even then to be justly suspected.

b

1

.

P

tl

tl

fo

m

k

T

fo

e iı

A

h

V

ir

cl

tl

g

0 ſ

t

fi

C

City of Dublin.

So as the City of Dublin being the receptacle of the whole State, the The fad con. Magazine of all the arms, munition and other provisions for the army, and dition of the the chief fanctuary of all the English and despoiled Protestants, was now reduced to a very fad condition, desperately encompassed on every side the Northern Rebels being come down in two feveral parties with great forces, within 20 miles of it on the one fide, & the Rebels of the County of Wisklow infesting it on the other side; which with the great resort of strangers, & the continual rumours of new plots and devices to surprize the Town, possessed the Protestants with extraordinary fears of their present danger. But that which made their condition appear much more formidable unto them, was the daily repair of multitudes of English that came up in troops, stripped, and miserably despoiled, out of the North. Many perfons of good rank and quality, cover'd over with old raggs, and some with out any other covering then a little twifted fram to hide their nakedness: Some reverend Ministers & others that had escap'd with their lives, forely wounded Wives came bitterly lamenting the murders of their Husbands, Mothers of their children barbaroufly destroyed before their faces, poor infants ready to perish and pour out their souls in their Mothers bosom: fome over-wearied with long travel, & fo furbated, as they came creeping on their knees; others frozen up with cold, ready to give up the Ghost in the ftreets : others over-welm'd with grief, diftraced with their loffes, loft also their sences. Thus was the Town within the compass of a few days The resort of after the breaking out of this rebellion filled with thefe mof lamentable multitudes of spectacles of forrow, which in great numbers wandred up and down in men, women all parts of the City, defolate, for faken, having no place to lay their heads to the City of on, no clothing to cover their nakedness, no food to fill their hungery bel-Dublin, in a lies. And to add to their miseries, they found all manner of relief very most miserdisproportionable to their wants, the Popish inhabitants refusing to misable posture nifter the least comfort unto them: so as those sad creatures appeared like living Ghosts in ever street. Many empty houses in the City, were by special direction taken up for them Barns, Stables, & out houses file led with them, yet many lay in the open Streets, and others under stalls and there most miserably perished. The Churches were the Common receptacles of the meaner fort of them, who stood there in a most doleful posture, as objects of charity, in so great multicudes, as there was scarce any passage into them. But those of better quality, who could not frame themselves to be common beggars, crept into private places, and some of them that had not private friends to relieve them, even wasted filently away. & fo died without noise. And so bitter was the remembrance of their former condition, and so insupportable the burthen of their present calamity to many of them, as they even refused to be comforted. I have known of some that lay almost naked, & having clothes sent, laid them by refuling to put them on. Others that would not stir to fetch themselves food though they knew where it stood ready for them, But they continued to lie nastily in their filthy raggs, and even their own dung not taking care to have any thing clean, handsome or comfortable about them: And so even worn out with the misery of their journy and cruel usage, having their spirits spent, their bodies wasted, & their sences failing, lay here pitifully languishing; and foon after they had recovered this Town, very many of them dyed, leaving their bodies as monuments of the most inhuman cruelties used towards them. The greatest part of the women & children thus barbarously expelled out of their habitations, perished in the City of Dublin: & so great numbers of them were brought to their graves, as all the Church-yards within the whole Town were of too narrow a compass to contain them. So as the Lords took order to have two large pieces of new ground, one on each fide the River, taken in upon the out Greens, & fer apart for burying places These were the memorable spectacles of mercy, and of the great commiseration the Rebels used to those English, to whom they gave their lives for a prey. But what their fufferings were, before they could get out of the hands of those bloody Villains, what strange horrid inventions they used towards them, torturing & massacting those they there murder'd, is reserved to be more ful-

5,

1:

g

b

W

di

be

ne

DI

ce th

th

m

an ex

the diff

fea

CO

pr

Vic

the pe

afi mo

qu WE pu the hir

me

Bu the Wer.

in I

ly related in its proper place. They are left upon record to posterity. under the oaths of many that escaped, and mentioned here to no other purpose, then to shew the strange horror & amazement the beholding of them bred in all the English & Protestant inhabitants of the City . They feeing the Rebels prevail so mightily, expected if they continued here to be undoubtedly exposed to the famecrueltis. And they now understood by those who were come up from among them, that their design was; As foon as they had taken in Tredagh, to come and feize upon the City and Cassle of Dublin, and so to make a general extirpation of all the English, root and branch, not to leave them name or posterity throughout the Kingdom.

It is easy to conjecture what a sad confused countenance the City then had; what fears, terror, and aftonishment, the miserable spectacles within, and the approches of the Rebels without, raised in the minds of an affrighted, distracted people. The English inhabitants looked upon all the horrid cruelties exercised abroad, all the calamities and desolations fallen upon their Country-men in other parts of the Kingdom, as arrive ed at these gates, and now ready to enter : the Avenues all open, neither hope nor means, neither Rampires nor Trenches to keep them out. Not-

The fears and diffractions within the withstanding the careful travels and endeavours used by the Lords Justi-City of Dubling ces and Council to make provision for the common safety, no money could be raifed, few men gotten together: the Papifts well furnished with arms closely conceiled, and desperately animated by their Priests to ail manner of mischief:no Fortifications about the Suburbs, nor any manner of defence for the City, but an old ruinous Wall, part whereof fell down in the very height of these distractions. And so careless were the Citizens, and fo flowly went they about the making up that breach, as under precence of want of money, they let it ly open till the Lords fent unto them 40. li. toward the reparation. All things tended to a fudden confufion; the very face of the City was now changed, and had such a ghaftly aspect, as seemed to portend her near approaching ruin : the means of Safety appearing very flender and inconfiderable; the applications by reas fon of the strange aversions of the Popish party of a very slow and weak operation. Every man began to consider himself and his own private preservation. Those that lived in the Suburbs removed, with their families into the City. The Privy Councellours and persons of quality into the Castle, which became a common repository of all things of value. The Rolls were by special order removed thither: the Records of several other Offices were likewise brought in, But upon the Rebels advance Tomewhat nearer, and their frequent alarms, many of those who had there taken fanctuary, began to suspect the strength of those old crazy walls, and therefore to make fure, resolved to quit the Kingdom, imbarquing barquing themselves and their goods with all possible speed. Some who were detained with contrary winds in the Harbour chose rather to endure all excremities on Shipboard, then to hazard themselves a moar again. The Scotch Fishermen, who lay with their Boats in great numbers within the Bay, fishing for Herrings, have with much forwardness made an offer to the State to bring 500 of their men a shoar to be put in Arms and do present service (a proposition at that season most acceptable) were fo strangly affrighted one evening with a faile alarm, as that in the night, on a sudden, they put to Sea, and quite disappeared on these Coasts till the year following. The Papist on the other side being most consident that the City would be taken and sack'd by the Rebels, and fearing left happily they might be mistaken in the tumult and ferce execution, removed themselves and their goods with the same speed into the Country. And that which heightened the Calamity of the poor Engdifb was their flight in the Winter, in fuch a difmal, formy, tempertuous feason, as in the memory of man had never been observed formerly to continue fo long together. Yet the terror of the Rebels incomparably prevailing beyond the rage of the Sea, most of those who could provide themselves of shipping, though at never so excessive rates, deserted the City; and fuch was the violence of the winds, fuch continuing impetuous ftorms, as feveral Barques were cast away; some in three months after their going from hence could recover no Port in England; and almost all that then put to Sea, were in great danger of perishing. The iniquities of the English Nation, which were very great in this Kingdom, were now full : Heaven and Earth feemed to conspire together for the punishment of them. God certainly declared his high indignation against them for their great fins wherewith they had long continued to provoke him in his land, and suffered these barbarous Rebels to be the instruments of mischief and cruel executioners of his fierce wrath upon them, But because they have taken vengeance with a despightful heart to destroy Ezek, 25. 15. them, for the old hatred, He will certainly in His own time execute great 17, vengeance upon them with furious rebukes, as he threatned the Philistians in the like cafe.

anten Coult ou book on and the Conten mendover; is tides they knew u

e

e-

ad

zy

n-DE

ly cer die red yet tha COD Co For

of i

inte ceiv

in a hat who

Coi the nun

Cles

ove

Rel

arti

the

ac

for

the

in

bee

in

of: 27

270

the

thi

be ref

Ci

. 21

The Particulars of the first PLOT of the Irish Rebellion: Together with a brief Narration of the most Notorious Cruelties, and Bloody Maffacrees which enfued in feveral parts of this Kingdom.

HUS we see what a great height this Rebellion was grown up unto, within the space of less then one Month, after the very first appearance of it; What horrid Murders, crud Out-rages, and fearful Desolations it had already wrough in one Province, and what a powerful Operation the Cruelties there Acted had upon other parts. But before I pais further, or come to the first Plot declare the universal dilatation of it throughout the whole Kingdom, of the Rebel- and how it pleased God even Miraculously to bless the painful endeavours of the State, in the preservation of the City and Castle of Dublin, till the arrival of their long expected fuccours out of England : I hold it not amils to look back, and (as far as the late discoveries and dark glimmer. ings we have into the first Plot will admit) to trace it up to the first beginnings we find of it within this Kingdom of Ireland.

Concerning the first Original of this great Conspiracy, as like wise the first Plotters and Contrivers of it, I must ingenuously confess, that I am my self much unsatisfied in the first conceptions of this Monstrous Birth, and therefore shall not now be able clearly to re-Who were folve others therein: I cannot yet determine who were the very first Contrivers, where the first Debates were entertained, or who first satein clearly disco. Council about it. This, as all other works of this nature, had its four dation laid in the dark, and Sealed up no doubt with many execrable Qaths, the great Engines of the ferimes, to bind up the Consciences as well as the Tongues of men from discovery : Besides, they knew well enough, that the Plot being most abominable in it felf, to be carried on with fuch the Plotters of it not yet vered.

lion.

deteftable cruelty should it take and be fully executed (which commons ly gives to all other treasons applause & highest commendation) would certainly render the first Authors, as well as the bloody actors, most or dious & excecrable to all Posterity: Therefore it is not much to be wondred that the first beginnings so mysterious and obscurely laid remain as yet concealed with fo great Obstinacy: But yet I am very confident. that upon view of feveral examinations, any reasonable man will conclude with me, that the very first principles of this inhuman Conspiracy, were roughly drawn and hammered out at the Romish Forge, powerfully fomented by the treachery and virulent animolities of some of the chief Irish Natives, and so by degrees, by them moulded into that ugly shape wherein it first appeared: There certainly it received the first life and motion, whether at Rome, whether in Ireland, or in any other place, I cannot yet determine: But my meaning is, it was first hatched and fet on foot by those most vigilent and industrious Emissaries, who are fent continually abroad by the power of that See with full Commission, per fas & nefas, to make way for the re-establishment of the Romish Religion in all parts where it hath been suppressed. Great numbers of these wicked Instruments (the Laws against all of the Romish Clergy, being of late laid aside, and tacitely suspended execution) came over into Ireland. The main Ground-work, and first predispositions to a Rebellion in General; were most undoubtedly with great dexterity and artifice laid by them; their venemous infusion taking such deep roots in the minds of a blind, ignorant, superstitious people, as made them ready for a change, the great ones mischievously to plot & contrive, the inferiour fort tumultuously to raise up & execute whatsoever they should comand.

And if we will give credit to feveral examinations taken, many of them from those of their own, we must believe the plot for a Rebellion in Ireland, of a very ancient date, as well as of a large extent: It had been long in contriveing, and howsoever, peradventure first thought on in Ireland, yet received large contributions towards consummation out of England and other Forreign parts.

I have feen an Examination of one, who affirms he heard it confidently The general averaged by Malone a Prieft, one that filled himself Chaplain Major within Plet for a Rether Pale, that he himself had been feaven years imployed in bringing on belion in Irethis plot to perfection, that he had travelled into several parts about it. land of an anticology of the parts about it.

Master Goldmith a Minister in Conaughs told me, that he did, a fully ear before the Rebellion brake out, receive a Letter from a Brother of his residing at Brussels, wherein he gave him notice thereof, though so obscurely, as he well understood is not till afterwards.

Patrick O Bryon, of the Parish of Galleem, in the County of Ferma-nash, affirmeth upon Oath, that all the Nobles in the Kingdom that were Papifts, had a hand in this Plot, as well as the Lord Mac-Guire.

and Hugh Oge, Mac-Mabown; that they expected aid out of Spain by Owen Roe O Neal, and that Colonel Plunker, one of those that was to be an Actor in the Surprize of the Castle of Dublin; told him, that he knew of this Plot Eight years fince, and that within these Three years veril, Efq; his he hath been more fully acquainted with it. Francis Sacheveril, Efq; Examination, hath Deposed, that at several times shortly after the beginning of this Rebellion, he hath heard four feveral Popish Priefts, viz. Hingh Rely of the County of Down, Edmund O Tunnah of the County of Armach. Morise Mac: Credan, of the County of Tyrone, and James Hallegan, of the County of Armagb, fay, That the Priefts, Jesuits and Fryers of England, Ireland, Spain, and other Countries beyond the Seas, were the Plotters, Projectors and Contrivers of this Rebellion and Infurrection, and that they have been thefe fix years in agitation and preparation of the same, and that the said Priests did then express a kind of joy that the fame was brought to fo good effect: He also further deposeth, That at several times Ever Boy Mac-Gennis in the County of Down Gent, and Hugh O Hagan in the County of Armagh Gent. did brag and fay, That they doubted not but that they should shortly conquer the English in the Kingdom, and enjoy the same quietly to themselves, and that they would not rest to content, but they would raise strong Armies to invade and conquer England, Roger Moor one of the prime Conspirators, told Mr. Colely, then prisoner with him, that the Plot had been in framing feveral years, and should have been executed several times, but they were still hindred. By Letters fent from Rome to Sir Phelim O Neal, and the Lord Mac-Guire, which were Intercepted and brought to the Lord Parlens, though the Fryer that writ the mooth not express any certain knowledge of this very Plot, yet thus much appears by them, that they had long defired to hear of the rifing of the Irilb, that the News of Sir Phelim O Neal's taking Arms was very acceptable to the Pope and his two Cardinal Nephews, affering him of all affigunce from thence wand further deliring him to fend over an Agent to Roma, and to imploy feveral perfore of his own Nation, whom hethere named, then reliding at Mudril Paris, and with the Emperour, they being fit Instruments, and such as at might make use of for the procuring succours from those Princes whom The Irif he affured him would joyn to give him all affiftance in this action.

have had it Belides thefe, we have very many other prefumptions that the Irish long in defign fince they found their own firength, and thet they were able to draw to fhake off together fo great numbers of men, as their feveral Septs fo ftrangely Government, multiplied during the late peace can now afford; have long had it in de-

fign

S

t

L

ti

C

h

A

to

as

gi K

de

pl

Sc

CE

W

de

M

hu

or

in ma

B

OU

pe

bτ of me ge

23

C

lat

hi

104

the 7710 to all

peedy

fign to hake off the English Government, to fettle the whole power of the State in the Hands of the Matives, and to re-posses them of all the Lands now enjoyed by the British throughout the Kingdom ! And that in this plot they did but go about to actuate those confused general notions, and to put them in a way of execution. Now they supposed there could never be offered unto them a fairer opportunity then this most uns happy conjuncture of the affairs of Great Britain, when Scotland lately in Arms, had by their own proper and wife managements, drawn his Majesty to condescend to their entire farisfaction, as well in their Church discipline, as the liberties of that Kingdom. And in England, the diffractions being grown up to some height, thro' the great mis-understanding betwirt the King and his Parliament, Ireland was at this time left naked and unregarded, the Government in the hands of Justices, the old Army dispersed in places of fo great diffance, as it could be of little advantage, the common Soldiers most of them Irish, and all the old Commanders and Captains, except some few, worn out and gone: This, as the first plotters thought, was the time to work out their own ends; and masking their perfidious defigns under the publick pretences of Religion, and the Defence of His-Majesty's Prerogative, they let loose the reins of their own vindictive humour and irreconcileable hatred to their British Neighbours.

I will not prefume to fay, they knew what would fall out in England or what miferable embroilments that Kingdom was ready to break out into; for undoubtedly the first plot was laid, and most exactly formed: many months before the War brake out between the King and his people. But thus much I shall be bold to affirm, that upon the very first breaking out of this Rebellion, they did frangely conjecture, and beyond all appearance of reason, even somewhat positively Divine, of the dismal! breach and fearful diftempers which afterwards follow'd to the difabling of the Kingdom of England from applying remedies towards the reducement of Ireland. For the attestation of this truth, I could produce the general concurrence of feveral circumstances, many private Discourses. and Advertisements, as also a particular Letter which I had long by me. written as it feems, from a very intelligent Papift, a great Zealot in the Cause, unto a Nephew of Sir Toby Matthew's, then in Dublin, who tho? lately Converted, retained yet a great friendship among them. He tells him in the beginning of the Letter; I hat he was defired from some well wishing Friends, to advise bim, as he tendred his Safety and Security, upon the fight of those, instantly to for sake and abandon that Troublesome and most Unfortunate Kingdom, for God and Man had speedily resolved to Afflick and Punish the over-grown Impicises of these Prophane Times, all Hearts and Hands happily Conspiring to it; and that he should be as speedy in his passage as was possible, and rather, as the case stood, hazard all dangers by Sea, then the least at Land, to be fure not to stop in England. especially at London, that fink of Sin (as he calls it) and center of disorders. for by that time be arrived there, he (hould be fure to find nothing but Tronbles, Factions and desperate Distempers; that he should dispatch therefore for Paris, or rather Brussels, where there should be order taken for the removal of all miffakes betwirt him and his Uncle. This Letter was witten about the beginning of November, 1641. which was fome few days after the breaking out of this Rebellion, and full fix months before the taking up of Arms in England. A gi on A, mobalited used to zoir ion

m

The Plot for a Ireland Erft discovered to the Lord Mac-Guire and othe time of Mr. John Bellew's return out of England, with Commission to continue the Parliament in Ire-Sand, which was in Jan. 3640.

Now for the very time when this great Plot received its first form, Rebellion in though I conceive it of somewhat a more ancient date, yet by all the examinations I have hitherto feen, I can carry it up no higher then the Month of January, 1640 and that it was about that time communicated to some of the chief Gentlemen of Olfter the Lord Mac. Guire doth sufthers, about heiently testify as well in the relation written with his own hand in the Tower, and delivered by him to Sir. John Coniers, then Lieutenant, to be presented to the Lords in Parliament, as also in his Examination taken before the Lord Lambart and Sir Robert Mereduh Knight, in Ireland, March 26, 1642. In both thefe he acknowledgeth, that he being in Dublin, in Candlemas Term, about the time when Mr. John Bellew came out of England with the Commission for the continuance of the Parliament in Ireland; Roger Moor acquainted him, that if the Irish would rife, they might make their own conditions for the regaining of their Lands, and Preedom of their Religion; and further faith, that he had spoken with fundry of Leinster to that purpose, who would be ready to joyn with them, as likewife a good part of Conaught, and that he found all of them willing thereto, if so be they could draw to them the Gentlemen of Ulfter:

> Now for the manner of putting this Plot in execution, the faid Lord Mac-Guire, doth further testify in his relation aforesaid, that the said Roger Moor having the next day acquainted Philip O Rely, Tunlagh O Neal Brother to Sir Phelim O Neal, Mafter Coffee, and Mac. Mahon herewith, did propose, that first every one should endeavour to draw his own friends into that Act, at least those that did live in own Coun. try with them, and that when they had so done, they should fend for the Irish in the Low. Countries and in Spain, to let them know of the day and resolution, so that they might be over with them by that day, or foon after with supply of Arms and Munition, that there mould be a fet day appointed, and every one in his own Quarters fould rife out that day, and feize upon all the Arms he could get in his own County, and this day to be near Winter, fo that England could

1

h

C

n

t

t t

n

ti

C P

O d

9 could not be able to fend Forces into Ireland, before May, and by that time there was no doubt to be made, but that they themselves would be Supplied by the Irish from beyond the Seas. Then he told them further, that there was no doubt to be made of the Irish joyning with them, and that all the doubt was in the Gentlemen of the Pale; but he faid, for his, own part, he was really affured, that when they had rifen out, the Pale, Gentlemen would not fray long after, at least they would not oppose any thing; and that in case they did, that they had men enough in the Kingdom without them; Moreover, that he had spoken to a great man (who then should be nameless) who would not fail at the day appointed to appear and to be seen in the Act, but that till then he was sworn not to reveal him, but yet that upon their importunity, he afterwards told them, it was the Lord of Mayo, who was very powerful in the command of menin those parts of Conaught, where he lived : he further faith, that in Lent. following, Master Moor, according to his promise came into Ulser, but. that nothing was done there, but all matters put off till May follows. ing, where they met at Dublin, it being both Parliament and Term time, and that from thence they dispatched one Tooly Conley, Parish Priest. to Master Moor, to Colonel O Neal, in the Low-Countries, who within few months after arrived with this answer from the faid Colonel desiring them not to delay any time in rising out, but to let. him know of the day when they intended it, and that he would not fail to be with them within fourteen days of that day, with good aid. also desiring them by any means to seize on the Castle of Dublin if they could. And further he taith, that during the time of these their private meetings, there landed at Dublin, Colonel Birn Colonel Flanket, Captain Brion O Neal, and others, who came with directions to carry menaway, and that these were acquainted with the Plot, and did offer their. fervice to bring it on, and that they would raife their men under colour. to carry them into Spain, and then seize on the Castle of Dublin, and with the arms found there, arm their Soldiers, and have them ready for any action that should be commanded them. He further also faith, that they had divers private confultations about the carrying on of the confpiracy. not only at Dublin; but in several other places in the Province of Ulfter. that they had fet down several days for the putting of it in execution; but meeting with some obstacles did not come to conclude of the certain time till about the beginning of September, and that then they peremptorily resolved on the 23. of Ollober, for the day to exeoute this long defigned plot in; and that they had respect unto the day of the week, which did fall on Saturday, being the Market day, on which there would be the less notice taken of people up and

h

ti

f ti

F

d

tl

ti

d

it

E

0

h

St

fe

ei bi

G

at

re

C

to

th

to

DI

fir

OI

te

ra

W

of

th

fa

i (h fu

ot

m

H

64

down the ffreets; that they then fettled what numbers of men should be brought up out of the several Provinces for the surprize of the Castle, & what Commanders should lead them on, that seeing the Castle had two Gates, that the Leinster men should undertake to seize upon the little Gate, which lay nearest to the place where the arms and munition was placed; & that the great Gate should be undertaken by those of Ulfer, and that Sir Phelim O Neal mould be there in person; but that he excus'd himfelf, because he resolved at the same time to seize upon Londonderry, and that thereupon by the importunity of the undertakers, it was impos'd upon him the faid L. Mac Guire, to be there in person at the taking of the Caftle of Dublin. That it was further resolved what number of Forces should be brought up out of the other Provinces to make good those plas ces if possessed by them, & that Sir James Dillon did undertake to be there with 1000 men within four days after the taking of the Caftle; as also that it was refolved that every one privy to that matter in every part of the Kingdom, should rife out that day and seize on all the Forts and Arms in the feveral Counties; as likewife on all the Gentry, and make them prisoners, the more to assure themselves against any adverse fortune and not to kill any but where of necessity they should be forced thereunto by opposition. These particulars, together with many other circumstances very considerable, are set down in the relation given in by the Lord Mac Guire, while he remained prisoner in the Tower of London; but I have thought fit to forbear to relate them at large, because I find that relation published by authority, and so presented to the common view. We shall find also, that Mac Mahon in his examination taken when he was first apprehended by the Lords Justices and Council here, doth testify that all the chief of the Nobility and Gentry in this Kingdom were acquain ed with the first Plot, and particularly, that all the Popish Party in the Committee fent into England, as likewise in both Houses of Parliament knew of it: In the Examination of William Fitz Gerald, it is there affirmed, That Sir Phelim O Neal fending for him five days after his rising in Arms, told him, what he did was by Directions and Confent of the Prime Nobility and Gentry of the whole Kingdom; and that what he had done in the Northern parts, the same was Executed at Dublin, and in all other Forts and Towns throughout Ireland : As being a Course resolved upon among the Lords and Gentry, for the preservation of His Majesties Prerogative, their own Religion and Liberties, against the Puritan Faction in England, Scotland, and Ireland; And that the Lord of Gormanitown knew of this Plot while he was in England, is Testified by Lieutenant Colonel Read in his Examination, as also by the Lord Mae-Guire in his relation, who saith that Colonel Plunket told him, that he being at London, had acquainted some of the Irish Committee, & particularly the L. of Gormanstown, with this plot, and that they approved it well: Col. Flunket in his Letter to Father Patrick Barnwal, L. Abbot of Mellisons (as he stiles him) doth seem much to glory in the means he had used to incite the Lords and Gentry of the Paleto appear in that blessed cause (as he terms it) & assures him that the L. of Gamonstown, whom he there calls L. General, will go bravely on. And now it will be no difficult matter to resolve what were the secondary steps and motions of this great Plot, as well as by what Persons it was wrought out in Ireland, and carryed on to the very point of Execution. And first it is to be observed, that howsoever Sir Phelim The first com-O Neal, the Lord Mac-Guire, Philip O Rely, Colonel Mac-Brian, trivers of the Hugh Mas-Mahon and their Adherents, chief of the Irish Septs in Rebellion Ulfter, and other Counties near adjacent, did first appear upon the openly ap-Stage, and by their Bloody Execution, notoriously declared them-pear in it. felves chief Actors in this horrid Tragedy: Yet this Rebellion was either altogether not originally plotted by them, most of them had but subordinate notions of it, and they as other of the chief Nobility & Gentry throughout the Kingdom, had several parts affigned them to act at feveral times, in feveral places, and did but move according to the first refolutions taken, and fuch directions as they had received from the first Conspirators: I take it to be most probable, after the general plot came to be reduced into form, that as the Lord of Gormanstown was one of the first and chief movers in it, so he and the chief of the Pale joyned together to draw in (as they had done in all former Rebellions) the principal Septs of the old Irish, to engage themselves, and to appear first in the business: And after they had joyned together, and so finely order'd the matter, as they had made it a general rifing, as Sir Phelimo Neal terms it, of all the Catholicks throughout the Kingdom, with the general confent of the prime Nobility and Gentry thereof; then, as it were with one general voice, they founded forth from all the four Provinces of Ireland the same language, they used the same Remonstrances, and made the very same pretences for their justification, they began the very selffame course, first in stripping, then banishing and murdering the British and Frotestants, only in the North, they drove on somewhat more furiously, and spilt much more innocent blood, then in any of the other three Provinces: They agreed likewise in recalling their Commanders, all the four Provinces had their particular Emissaries abroad; Those of Leinster brought back Colonel Preston, a Branch out of the House of Gormanstown, who had long lived with good reputation in Flanders.

Planders, and him they made General of their Forces there; but of Ulfter they fent into Flanders likewise for Owen Boe O Neal , upon whom they conferred the same charge in that Province: The Munfter men brought over Garrat Barry, whom they made General of their forces . And those in Conaught drew back one of the Burks, to whom they gave the chief command of fuch men as they were able to draw together for the advancement of the common defign; All these held a due correspondency, and in all their actions had a just concurrency towards the main end.

Roger Moor the chief Pertween the Rebellion.

The great instrument chiefly imployed in this work of drawing the fon imployed meer Irish into a firm combination with the old English (as appearsby to make a con- the Lord Mac : Guire's relation before mentioned) was Roger Mon junction be Esquire, a person of broken fortune, by descent meerly Irish, and iffued out of the chief family of the O Moors in the County of Leax, but meer Irifo and by inter-marriages allied to some of the principal Gentlemen of the for raining a Pale; He Treated with them about the Affociation; he first broke the design to the Northern Irish, he was the man that made several journeys in Leinster, into Ulfter and Conaught: Sundry messages were in: terchangeably fent and returned the Summer before the breaking out of the Rebellion by his means and entercourse between them, And all things were fo ordred for their agreement, as they were to go hand in hand together; some of the principal Centlemen of the Pale, as Colonel Plunket, Captain Fox, and others, were designed to joyn with the Lord Mac: Guire, Mac-Mahon, Brion O Neal Con O Neal, Hugh Birn, for the surprize of his Majesties Castle of Dublin, Cartan Major Domito Owen O Neal in Flanders, in his Examination taken February 1641, tells, among many other remarkable passages, of several preparatives to this Rebellion; as that Con O Neal, brother to Daniel O Neal, was fent by Owen O Neal into England, and that while he resided there he received letters from the President Rosse (which was Sir Phelim O Neal) and that he affured him he went on very well in his bufiness; for Brabant and Valence were joyned together, which as he affirms, fignified in those Characters Ulfter and Leinster, and that he expected the coming of Lewes Lenoy, viz. Dansel O Neal: Besides, as James Talber Esq; testifies in his Letter of the 9 of November 1641 writ: ten to the Lords Justices out of the County of Cavan, that he understood from Philip Mac Mulmore O Rely, that there were certain Covenants paffed between the Lords of the Pale and the Northern Irish, for the advancing of the the Rebellion; and that the Remonstrance from the print cipal Irish in the County of Cavan, unto the Lords Justices and Council fent by Dean Jones, and Mafter Waldrone, there thon Prisoner, was framed in the Pale and brought unto the faid Irish by Colonel Plunket, one

one long

or c or c

and

the 28 tell

De

Tra

oth lur

har

Ga

tra bee

ma

ma the

of .

and

fu

bo

the

pr

ke

til

the

T fo

al

12

of

th an fo

W

0

tl

one of their own: And this was in the very beginning of the Rebellion. long before any jealouses were entertained by the State of the adherence or conjunction of the old English with the Irish. What those Covenants or contracts were, I cannot fay, but it is most certain, some there were, and some Covenants also entered into, between the Northern Irish and the Lords and Gentlemen of the chief of both the other Provinces, as well as Leinster, and these were signed with their blood, as Doctor Maxwell testifies in his examination, he heard Sir Phelim O Neal fay on the 19 of December 1641 in his own house, and in the hearing of Master Foseph Travers and others: If the Lords and Gentlemen (meaning the Papifts of other Provinces)then not in Arms, would not arise, but leave him in the lurca for all, he would produce his Warrant, figned with their own hands and written in their own blood which should bring them to the Gallows. And certainly, had there not been some very strange and extraordinary engagements, and more then I can well imagine, it had not been possible that so many persons of quality, having great possessions and many Children, should have declared themselves, after they saw the main part of the plot for the surprize of the Castle of Dublin to fail, and the power of the Northern Rebells begin to decline, that the Parliament of England had with great alacrity and readiness undertaken the War, and not only engaged themselves to his Majesty to send over powerful supplies both out of England and Scotland but by their publick Order of both Houses, sent over to the Lords Justices, and Printed at Dublin in the Month of November; fully declared their resolutions for the vigorous profecution of the War of Ireland: Nay, the Cities of Galway and Limerick, kept their defigns very covertly, not doing any open acts of hostility. till after the arrival of some Forces at Dublin out of England, and that the siege of Drogheds or Tredagh was raised, and those bold perfidious Traitors beaten back into the North the Lords of the Pale banished by force of his Majesty's Arms out of their own habitations, which were all spoiled and laid waste.

Now that then they should declare themselves, is more then a Miracle to me, and such a mystery, as I should not know what to think of, but that I find in the Lord Mac-Guire's relation before mentioned, that they were acquainted with the sirst beginnings of this great Plot, and had a particular interest from time to time in the carriage of it on, so as I think I shall not wrong them positively to determine, that they were too deeply engaged slightly to retire; and that howsoever upon the failing of it in the main piece, they at first stood at a gaze, and were put to take up second Counsels; yet such was the strength of the conspiracy, and their great considence in the power of their

toge

Eng

conf

upo

a lo

Aut

gula

mer

Kin

gav

reig

upe

the Par

> del fit

Th

We

fan

ye! bel

by

af

An

ter

ri

di

P

W

lif

n

th

fo

Arms, as made them appear in due time to entertain their feveral affignations, and all their parts with great diligence and industry. The wife of Philip O Rely in the County of Cavan, told James Talbos (as he open, ly related it to the Lords Justices at the Council-board) that she wondred very much the Lords and Gentlemen of the Pale did not rise and joyn with them in the very beginning of this Rebellion, adding these words, or to this effect; That if they would have let us alone, and not fet us on, we were so well at ease as we would never have begun this trouble-some work. It cannot certainly be imagined, that those of the English Pale (unless they had been the first projectors, or deep adventurers) would have yielded that the meer Irish should have seized upon the City and Castle of Dublin, places of refuge for them in all former troubles, and which would now have given them Protection and Safety against the Incursions of the Irish.

the Incurious of the Irish.

But I hold it not necessary to produce further evidence in this particular, I purpose now to declare how those great Instruments of mischief, that were the supream conductors of this wicked design, mov'd forwards so successfully in the beginning, toward the accomplishment of their long intended artispation of all the British and British and Providence of the King intended extirpation of all the British and Protestants out of the Kingsdom. I find two sorts of persons who did most eminently appear in laying those main fundamentals whereupon their bloody superstructures were cherry and after wards easily reared up: And these were such of the Popish Lamyers the Popish as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Popish Clergy of seventh as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Kingdom as were Natives of the Kingdom, and those of the Kingdom as were Natives of t instruments in the first now began to stand up like great Patriots for the vindication of the li-carrying on berties of the Subject, and redress of their pretended grievances, and the Rebellion. having by their bold appearing therein, made a great party in the House of Commons, here then sitting, some of them did there magisterially obtrude, as undoubted maxims of Law, the pernicious

The Lift be full of virulency, and tending to Sedition, yet so strangely were a great party many of the Protestants and well meaning men in the House blinded in the House with an apprehension of Ease and Redress, and so stupissed with their of Commons bold accusations of the Government, as most thought not fit, others to adhere to durst not stand up to contradict their fond affertions; so as what them, they spake was received with great acclamation, and much appliance by most of the Protestant Members of the House; many of which under specious pretences of publick zeal to this Country, they had inveigled into their party: And then it was, that having Impeachinveigled into their party: And then it was, that having Impeached Sir Richard Belton, Lord Chancellour of Ireland, of High-Treason, together

The Romifb Clerity and the Popilh Lawyers great inftruments in the first Plotting and carrying on Lawyers draw a great party in the House of Commons to adhere to them, together with other prime Officers and Ministers of State that were of English birth, some of those great Masters took upon them with much confidence to declare the Law. to make new expositions of their own upon the Text, to frame their Queries, challenges fitter to be taken to a long, wilful, over-grown milgovernment, then to be made against an Authority, that had for many years struggled against the beloved irregularities of a stubborn people, and which had prevailed far beyond former times, towards the allaying of the long continued diffempers of the Kingdom: they disdain'd the moderate qualifications of the Judges, who gave them modest answers, such as the Law and duty to their Sove reign would admit. But those would not serve their turn, they resolved upon an alteration in the Government, and drawing of it wholly into the hands of the Natives, which they knew they could not compais in a Parliamentary way, and therefore only made preparatives there, and delivered fuch desperate maxims, which being diffused abroad would fit and dispose the people to a change: As they declared it to be Law, That being killed in Rebellion, though found by matter of record, would give the King no forfeiture of estates: That though many thoufands food up in Arms in a Kingdom, working all manner of diffruction. yet if they professed not to rise against the King, that it was no Rebellion: That if a man were out-lawed for Treason, and his Land there: by vested in the Crown or given away by the King, his heir might come afterwards and be admitted to reverse the Out-lawry, and recover his Ancesters estate. And many other positions of a perilous consequence, tending to fedition and disturbance, did they continue to publish during that Seffion, and by the power and strength of their party, so far did they prevail at last, as they presumed to attempt a suspension of Poynings Act, and indeed intended the utter abrogation of that Statute, which remains as one of the greatest ties and best monuments the Eng = lish have of their intire dominion over the Irish Nation, and the annexion of that Kingdom to the imperial Crown of Englands They further assumed power of Judicature to the Parliament in criminal and capital offences: A right which no former age hath left any prefident for, neither would this admit the example.

And thus carrying all things before them, they continued the effion of Parliament begun in May, till about two months before the first breaking out of this Rebellion; it being very ill taken, that even then they were adjourned. And this they have fince aggravated as a high crime against the Lords Justices, and as one of the chief moving causes to the taking up of Arms generally throughout the Kingdom.

But to let those things pass, how finely soever these proceedings were

of

tel

6.

tre

ho

ha

Va:

ing

of

gre

the im

ful

bre

fel

ble

an na

pe

an

CO

all

ge

of

cie

th

La

th

G

lic

of

bo

m ill

as

W

ly

were carried on, and being covered over with pretences of zeal and publick affection, passed then current without any manner of suspition; yet now the eyes of all men are opened, and they are fully resolved that all these passages, together with the other high contestations in Parlia. ment, not to have the newly raised Irish Army disbanded, the importunate folicitation of their Agents in England, to have the old Army in Ireland cashiered, and the Kingdom left to be defended by Trained Bands of their own Nation. As likewise the Commissions procured by feveral of the most eminent Commanders now in Rebellion, for the raising men to carry into Spain, were all parts of this Plot, Prologues to this enfuing Tragedy, Preparatives, such as had been long laid to bring on the suddain execution of this most bloody design, all at one and the fame time throughout the Kingdom.

The means used by the Priefts and Jesuits to fir to rebel.

Now for the Jesuits, Priests, Friers, and all the rest of the viperous fraternity belonging to the holy Orders; who, as I faid, had a main part to Act, and have not failed with great affiduity and diligence to up the people discharge the same. They lost no time, but most dexterously applied themselves in all parts of the Country to lay such other dangerous impressions in the minds, as well of the meaner fort as of the chief Gentlemen as might make them ready to take fire upon the first occasion. And when this Plot was fo furely, as they thought, laid, as it could not well fail, & the day once prefixt for execution, they did in their publick Devotions long before, recommended by their Prayers, the good fuccess of a great defign, much tending to the prosperity of the Kingdom, and the advancement of the Catholick cause. And for the facilitating of the Work, and stirring up of the people with greater animolity and cruekty to put it on at the time prefixed, they loudly in all places declaimed against the ProteRants, telling the people that they were Hereticks, and not to be fuffered any longer to live among them; that it was no more fin to kill an Englisheman, than to kill a dog; and that it was a most mortal and unpardonable fin to relieve or protect any of them, they represented with much acramony the levere courses taken by the Parliament in England, for the suppressing of the Romish Religion in all parts of the Kingdom, and utter extirpation of all profesors of it. They told the people that in England they had caused the Queens Priest to be hanged before her own face, and that they held her Majesty in her own person under a most severe Discipline: That the same cruel Laws against Popery were here ordered to be put suddainly in execution; and a defign fecretly laid for bringing and feizing upon all the principle Noblemen and Gentlemen in Ireland upon the 23 of November next easuing, and so to make a general Massacre ot of all that would not defert their Religion and presently become Protestants.

& And now also did they take occasion to revive their inveterate hatred and ancient animofities against the English Nation, whom they The Irish rerepresented to themselves as hard Masters; under whose Government, vive their anhow pleasent, comfortable and advantageous so ever it was, they would cient animohave the world believe they had endured a most miserable captivity & en, the English, vassalage. They looked with much envy upon their prosperity, consider, ing all the Land they possessed (though a great part bought at high rates of the Natives) as their own proper inheritance. They grudged at the great multitudes of their fair English Cattle; at their goodly Houses, though built by their own industry at their own charges; at the large improvements they made of their Estates, by their own travells & careful endeavours. They spake with much scorn and contempt of such as brought little with them into Ireland, and having there planted themfelves, in a little time contracted great fortunes : they were much troubled, especially in the Irish Countries to see the English live hansomely. and to have every thing with much decency about them, while they lay naftily buried, as it were, in mire and filthiness; the ordinary fort of people commonly bringing their Cattel into their own flinking Creates, and there naturally delighting to lie among them. These malignant considerations made them with an envious eye impatiently to look upon. all the British lately come over into the Kingdom. Nothing less then a general extirpation will now ferve their turn; they must have restitution of all the Lands to the proper Natives, whom they take to be the ans cient proprietors, and only true owners, most unjustly despoiled by the English, whom they hold to have made undue acquisitions of all the Land they pellels by gift from the Crown, upon the attainder of any of their Ancestors.

And so impetuous were the diffres of the Natives to draw the whole The ends Government of the Kingdom into their own hands, to enjoy the pub-proposed by lick profession of their Religon, as well as to disburden the Country the first of all the British inhabitants seated therein, as they made the whole the rebellion. body of the State to be univerfally disliked; represented thei several members as persons altogether corrupt and ill affected; pretended the ill humours and distempers in the Kingdom to be grown to that height as required Cauteriers, deep incisions; and indeed nothing able to work so great a cure, but an universal Rebellion. This was certainly the disease, as appears by all the symptoms, and the joynt concurrence in opinion of all the great Physitians that held themselves wile enough to propose remedies, and prescribe fit applications to fo desperate a Malady, In those Instructions privately fent over into England by the Lord Dillion of Costelez, presently after the breaking on of the Rebellion, the alteration of the Supream power in the government and fetling of it in the hands of the Earl of Ormand, giving leaveto the Grand Council of the Kingdom to remove such Officers of State, as they thought fit, and to recommend Natives to their places, were there politively laid down to be a more likely means to appeale these tumults then a confiderable Army. In the Remonstrance of the County of Long. ford, presented about the same time to the Lords Justices, by the same Lord Dillon, as also in the frame of the Common-wealth, found at Sir John Dungars House, not far from Dublin, and sent up thither out of Conought to be Communicated to those of Leinster; pieces which publickly appeared foon after the breaking out of the Rebellion, the main points infifted upon in them and feveral others, were restauration of the Publick profession of the Romish Religion; restitution of all the Plantation-lands unto the Natives, and settlement of the present Covernment in their hands. All the Remonstrances from several parts, and that came out of the several Previnces of the Kingdom to concur in these Propositions, with very little or no difference. And therefore that the defires with the first intentions of those who are now out in Rebellion. may more clearly appear; I have thought fit here to infert them as I found them, Methodically digested into certain Propositions, termed.

The true caufes of the Rebellion.

The Means to reduce this Kingdom unto Peace and Quietness.

Hat a general and free pardon without any exception be granted to all His Majesty's Subjects of this Kingdom; and that in pursuance thereof, and for strengthning the same, an Act of Abolition may pass in the Parliament here.

2 That all marks of National distinctions between English and Irish may be abolished and taken away by Act of Parliament.

3 That by several Acts of Parliament to be respectively passed bere and in England, it be declared that the Parliament of Ireland hath no subordination with the Parliament of England, but that the same hath in it self Supream Jurisdiction in this Kingdom, as absolute as the Parliament of England there bath.

4 That the Act of .12 Henry the second, commonly Called Poynings Act, and all other Acts expounding or explaining the same, may be respended.

5 That

ma

Qu

the

be thi

lick

bit.

tak

wil

or liv

fit

ges

H

Co

to l

bef

lia

or

the

ker

wo

and

the

do

do

bef

5. That as in England there past an Act for a Triennial Parliament, there may paß in Ireland another for a Sexennial Parliament.

6. That it may be enacted by Parliament, that the Act of the 2d. of Queen Elizabeth in Ireland; and all other Acts made against Catholicks, or the Catholick Religion, since the twentieth year of King Heary the eighth may be repealed.

7. That the Bishopricks, Deanaries, and all other spiritual promotions of this Kingdom, and all Frieries and Nunneries, may be restored to the Catholick owners, and likewise all impropriations of Tythes, and that the Scits, Ambits, and precints of the Religious houses of the Monks, may be restored to them; but as to the rest of their temporal possessions, it is not designed to be taken from the present proprietors, but to be left to them until God shall other wise incline their own hearts.

8. That such as are now entitled Catholick Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, or other Dignitaries in this Kingdom by donation of the Pope, may, during their lives, enjoy their spiritual promotions; with protestation nevertheless, and other sit clauses to be laid down for preservation of his Majesties rights of Patronages, First-fruits, and twentieth-parts in manner and quantity, as now his o That all inquisitions taken since the year 1634 to entitle his Majesty to Conaught, Thomond, Ormond, Eliogarty, Kilnemanagh, Duheara. Wicklow and Idvagh, may be vacated, and their estates secured, according to his Majesties late graces.

H ghness receives benefit thereby.

10. That an Act of Parliament may pass here for the securing the Subjects title to their several estates against the Crown, upon any title accrewed unto it before 60 years, or under colour or pretext of the present commotions.

11. That all plantations made fince the year 1610 may be avoid by Parliament, if the Parliament shall bold it just, and their possessions restored to them or their Heirs, from whom the same were taken, they nevertheless answering to the Crown the Rents and services proportionable, reserved upon the undertakers.

12, That the transportation of all native Commodities to all places of the world in peace with his Majesty, may be free and lawful, his sustoms first paid, and that the Statutes of 10, 11, & 13 of Queen Elizabeth, for restraining the exportation of native Commodities be repealed.

dom, that all preferments Ecclesiastical, Civil and Martial in this Kingsdom, that lie in his Majesties gift, may be conferred on Natives of this Kingsdom only, such as his Majesty shall think meet, without any distinction for Religion, Provided always that upon the Princes of his blood of England, he may bestow what places he shall think meet.

14. That a Marshal and Admiral of this Kingdom may be elected in it, to have perpetual succession therein with the Same Preheminence, Authority and Jurisdiction as they respectively have in England, and that the said places be ever conferred upon Noble:men, Natives of this Kingdom.

15. That there may be Trained Bands in all Cities, Towns Corporate, and Counties of this Kingdom, Armed and provided at the charge of the several Counties, Cities, and Towns, and Commanded by the Natives of the same, who shall be named by the Counties, Cities and Towns respectively.

16. That his Majesty may release all Tenures in Capite, and by Knight: fervice; in consideration whereof, he shall receive a settled Revenue of 12000 li. per annum, being double the Summ which he casually receives by them; Reliefs, Seisins, Licenses for Alienations, Escurge and Aids never. theless to remain.

17. That all Monopolies may be for ever taken away by Act of Parlia.

mens.

18. That such men Corporations, as have not the face of Corporate Towns, and were crecked to give voices in the Parliament, may be diffolved, and their Votes take n away, and hereafter no such to be admitted to Voices in Parliament.

19. That there may be Agents chosen in Parliament, or otherwise, as thought meet to attend continually His Majesty, to represent the grievances of this Nation, that they may be removable by such as did elect them; and in case of Death or Removance, others may be for ever successively substituted in that place, and that such Agents may enjoy the freedom of their conscience in Court, and every where elfe.

These are the means proposed by these Catholick Remonstrants, for reducing of the Kingdom to Peace; these the great obstructions they would have removed, and the constant Counsel they would have tollowed, in settling the tranquility, and present Government of this Land; fo as we need feek no further Evidence, nor make any more curious enquiries into the fecret causes of their first rising; we have here enough out of their own mouths, to refolve the most scrupulous un-The re-esta- believer of their first motives in this Rebellion. And now for the blishment of matter of Religion, howfoever I am very confident they ever really the Romish Re-interest of Rengion, howbover I am very confident they ever really ligion, only a intended the Re-establishment of that of the Church of Rome, with all pretence for the Rites and Ceremonies thereof, together with the utter extirpation the Rebellion of all of the Reformed profession: Yet considering the large indulgence, and free liberty they univerfally enjoyed at that time, in the full exercise of that their Religion throughout all the parts of the Kingdom; it may be most justly suspected (how zealously soever they now obtrude it) that this was only the bare outward cover-

25.01

ture

tu

no

th

25

an

to ur

M

fe

in

07

OF

m

th

in

de

fit

fa

th

fir

W OU

to liv

N

pi

ha

to

ti

p

th

m

K

ſ

0

0

ture made use of by the principal Undertakers, to draw on a poor ignorant superstitious people to sacrifice their lives in this quarrel. Neither can it by any reasonable man be ever presumed, that such persons as made no Conscience of committing Treason, so many cruel Murders, and all other kind of abominable Villanies, not to be parralel'd in any other Country, could be drawn meerly out of Conscience towards God, to act these for the regaining of the free and publick profession of their Religion.

This certainly was no more the true and main cause of their taking All the grieup Arms, then the redress of their pretended grievances, whereunto his vances of the Majesty had condescended, and out of his inclinations for their pre-dressed before fent relief, had given much more fatisfaction to their Agents lately the Rebellion in England, then ever they could in any other time expect to receive brake out. or hope to enjoy. Yet we see how little effect those great graces brought over not above two months before this Rebellion brake out, took among them: for presently after the return of their Agents with them, this most detestable Conspiracy, which had been long in hatching began to work, and to be put in execution. And if we shall consider their main design and chief ends therein, as they appear in their first principles, or will give credit to the several Speeches and Pasfages that we meet with among the Rebels, in the very beginning of their breaking out; as also to several other Testimonics that have fince privately fallen from fome particular persons among them, we must believe that their Design clearly was to Destroy and Root out all the British and Protestants planted within this Kingdom, to cut off the Sovereignty of the Crown of England, and so to deliver themselves from their long continued Subjection to the English Nation,

But to come to one main particular, taken into debate by the prime Movers and chief Incendiaries in this horrid Rebellion, they had a most serious Consultation what course to take with most safety A Consultation to themselves, for the disburdening of the Kingdom of those mul-held, whether titudes of English, which were in very great numbers dispersedly to murder, or planted among them. Some were of opinion that they should spare only to banish their Lives, not render themselves Guilty of the spilling of so all the British much Innocent Blood, but that they should Seize on their Goods, Execut of Ireland, pel them their Habitations, and after Banishing them out of the Kingdom, proceed as the Spaniards did with many Hundred thousands of the Moors, whom, as it were in a moment, they cleared out of their Dominions. Others there were who much opposed this kind of lenity and moderation, remonstrating the high inconveniencies

which

which would inevitably redound to themselves thereby. First . That the British were in so great numbers, as they could not either by disarming, imprisoning, or any other means possible, ever hope to secure them from mischief: Then that if they onely expelled them out of the Kingdom, they would remain fill as so many at instruments to be entertained in England, and from thence returned back full of revengefull thoughts to recover their loss; that by their long experience and knowledge in the Country they would be better guides, more deeply engaged to profecute the War; and having their bodies inured to this Climate, would prove much more able Soldiers then any new men that could be raifed, or any otherways brought over. How they determined this particular I shall not undertake to declare; my intelligence fails me, and I am able to deliver no more of the refult of this great Council then appears in the bloody effects and horrid executions acted in the first beginnings of their Rebellion. It is most probable they came to no positive conclusion, but left the chief Actors in this particular at large, to do as should seem good to themselves. We find their first proceedings and outrages committed upon the English very various and much differing in several place, some onely stripping and expelling of them; others murdring Man, Woman and Child without mercy. But this is certain, and of most unquestionable truth, that by one means or other, they resolved uni-

The Irish re. versally to root all the British & Brotestants out of Ireland. And that solve to root these were the first thoughts and bitter fruits of the long premeditated the English malicious intentions, sufficiently appears by their Actions, as well as out of I cland, by their virulent expressions uttered upon their first rising, when they thought the Kingdom their own. They then said openly that they meant Mafter to destroy the English, and that they had made a Covenant no Englishhis Examina. man should set footing among them. Some of the Irish would not tion. endure the very sound of that language, but would have penal-

The Irish in many places Killed English Cows and Sheep meerly because they were English; in some places they cut of their legs, or took out a piece out of their buttocks and so let them remain still alive. The Lord Montgarrat, Muster Edward Butlar; the Baron of Logmouth went with their Forces into Munster about the beginning of the rising of the Irish there, and while they remained about Callen and Mallow, they consumed no less then 50000 others say 100000 English Sheep, besides a great abundance of English ties inflicted upon them that fpake English, and all the English mames of places changed into the old Irish denominations; others professed that they would not leave an English man or woman alive in the Kingdom, but that all should be gone, no not so much as an English Beast, or any of the breed of them.

Fames

FA

did

tio

the

tar

fho

the

bo

En

the

te

m

fo

ha

lo

in

th pl of

W

th

th

le Ir

ri

m

of

th

N

fp

E

al

0

James Hallegan the Priest did read an Excommunication in the Church, which, as he alledged, came from their great Irish Metropolitane, and terrifying his Parishoners therewith he told them, that from that day forth, whosoever did har: bour or relieve any Scot, English or Welshman, or give them Alms at their doors, mould be Excommunicated, whereby as Master Sacheveril testifies in his Examination many were starved and died for want in those parts. We have it from Mafter Creighton, a reverend Minister, one long detained prisoner with. in the County of Cavan, that the Fryers exhorted the people with tears to spare none of the English; that the Irish were resolved to destroy them out of the Kingdom; that they would devour (as their very word was) the feed of the English out of Ireland, and when they had Knight, &C. James Show a Minister deposeth, That after the Ceffation, divers of the Rebels confessed the Priests had given them the Sacrament, upon condition they should not Spare Man, Woman nor Child that were Protestants; and that he heard divers of them say in a hragging manner, that it did them a great deal of good to wash their bands in the blood of the Protest ants whom they had sains Jurat. Jan. 7. 1643.

left in great multitude, finking, to the great anoyance of the County. This testifie by Henry Champart in his Examination taken before Sir Robert Meredith

Thomas Johnson Vicar of Tullah, of the County of Mayo, deposeth, that he heard Stephen Linoh Frior of Strade, being asked if it were not lawfull to kill this Deponent because he would not go to Mass; answered, That it was as lamful for them to kill him, as to kill a Sheep or a Dog : and divers of the rebellious Souldiers told him to his face, that they would no more care to kill him, then they would do a Pig-

John Addis of the County of West-meath deposeth, That Robert Magohagan Priest, Jaid to this Deponent, That it was no more pity nor Conscience to take Englishmens lives or goods from them, then to take a bone out of a Dogs month, Jurat, July 21. 1642.

rid them there, they would go over into England, and not leave the Mcmorial of the English Name under Heaven.

And so fond and vain were their imaginations, and to such a height of madness were they grown, as they could not terminate their thoughts in the reduction of Ireland under the power of their own Nation. But as foon as they had begun their Rebellion there, they spake confidently in all places of transporting their Arms into England, That they would fend 30000 men over into that Kingdom, and that they would draw in forreign Auxiliaries thither to joyn with them; and so by a high hand establish the free exercise A delign cerof the Romish Religion within that Kingdom. tainly K 3

hes of

to a

and do

not

for bai

por

the

tler

the

hun

the

the

ma

fen

wit

the

tha

of

AC

aga

tog

affe

par

par ties

and

the

wea

con

gan

aw:

bre

wei

hou

tainly which the Priests and Jesuits had taken up in their own thoughts. and by their correspondencies abroad intended powerfully to bring a. bout, as foon as they had fettled their affairs in Ireland. And if it had not pleased God in an Extraordinary way to bring the first Plot to light, and so to bless the weak endeavours of the State here, as to enable them by the affiftance of those small Forces they confusedly gathered together, to hold out till the arrival of the Succours fent out of Eng. land. I leave it to every one to confider with how much advantage they might have gone on that time towards the accomplishment of so desperate a Project. And for my felf, I must profess that I am clearly refolved, that had they at first over-mastered the unexpected difficulties and fatal impediments they met withall at home, and possessed them: Telves of the Arms and Munition within the Castle of Dublin, and so flesht and blooded in the flaughter of many thousands of the English Na: tion, had transported a numerous Army of Irish Robells, and suddenly landed them in some good Port within the Kingdom of England: They would have prevailed very far towards the miferable desolation and ruine thereof. It must be remembred in what a most unhappy discomposure the affairs were at that time there, what a diseased body the State then had, and what high diffempers then strongly working soon after brake out, what a strong party they might have found within, and with what great reputation they would have marched on under the glory of their late victories atchieved in Ireland, fignalizing the power of their Arms with fuch horrid cruelties and bloody butcheries, as would have wrought a strange terror among the people.

Thus we see what were the Causes and first Motives to this unnatural Rebellion; as likewise who were the chief Actors and the great instruments designed by the first Plotters to pre-dispose the people to a readiness to take Arms for the rooting out of the British in habitance from among them. The Preparatives being all made, the Plot in all points ripe for execution, it was carried on to the very levening before the day appointed for the taking of the Casse of Dublin without discovery. And though it pleased God to bring it then to light (as hath been declared) and so happily to disappoint it in the main Piece, yet it took in the Northern parts, being that very day sully executed in most of the chief places of strength within the Province of Ulster. And whereas the Priests did long before in their publick Devotions at Mass pray for a blessing upon a great design they had then in hand; so now, as I have heard, they did in many places, the very day before the breaking out of this Rebellion, give the people a dismis at Mass, with free liberty to go out, and take poffeffion of all their Lands, which they pretended, unjustly detained from them by the English; as also to Strip, Rob, The English and despoil them of all their Goods and Cattle. They had without Goods presendoubt, by one means or other, either private or publick lastructions, ted to the not to leave to the English any thing that might afford the least com-means to raise fort or hope of longer subsistance among them. This was the main them up abait used to draw on the common people; and this wrought far more gainst them. powerfully then all other perswasions, fictions, or wild Chimera'sthat they infused into them. It is most apparent, that the prime Gentlemen in all parts, as well as their Clergy, pressed them on to despoil the English of all the Goods and Cattle, well knowing their avaricious humour and greedy defires to get them into their possession, and that they could not possibly find out any other thing that would engage them more readily to undertake, or more desperately to execute all manner of villanies, then the hopes of enjoying fo rich a prey now pre- | The people fented unto them.

made believe by their

The people being now fet at liberty, and prepossessed by their Priests Priests that it with a belief that it was Lawful for them to rife up, and destroy all was a Meritothe Protestants, who, they told them, were worse then Dogs ; kill the Engthat they were Devils, and ferved the Devil; affuring them the killing lift.

of fuch was a meritorious Act, and a rare prefervative again the pains of Purgatory, gathered themselves together in great numbers, affembling in feveral companies through the feveral parts of the Northern Counties, with Staves, Sithes, and Pitch-forks, for at first they had not many better weapons: And fo in a most confused manner, they began tumultuously to drive

John Parry of Deurmosh, in the County of Armagh, deposeth, that O Cullan a Priest, told his Auditors at Mass, that the bodies of such as died in this Quarrel, should not be cold before their Souls should ascend up into Heaven, and that they should be free from the pains of Purgatory.

Margaret Bromly in her Examination deposeth, that Some of the Rebels would say, after their cruel butcheries, that they knew if themselves should now die, their Souls (hould go to Heaven, and that they were glad of the revenge they had taken of the English.

away at the first only the Cattle belonging to the English, and then to The Irish rife break into their Houses, and seize upon their Goods. It is true, there and first drive were some murders committed the very first day of their rising, and some away all the houses set on fire, but these as I conceive, were for the most part out longing to of the English.

of l

len

got

wei

upo

fed lea

as i am

do

nat

the

and fide

Mo

in

Ca

hel

rin

bei

por

the

nal

Re

the

Sm

Co

the

Tu

lon

in

to

the

the

an

fre

as they had from the Lord Mac-Guire, to kill Mafter Arthur Champion, a Justice of Peace in the County of Fermanagh, who with several other of his Neighbours, were Murthered at his own House, upon the 2; of Oftober in the Morning. But certainly that which they mainly intended at first, and which they most busily employed themfelves about. was the driving away the English-mens Cattle, and possessing their Wherein the common people were not the only Actors, but even the chief Gentlemen of the Irish in many places, most notoriously possess them appeared, and under plausible pretences of Securing their Goods from the Rapine and Spoil of the common fort, got much peaceably into their hands: And so confident were the English of their good dealing at first, as many delivered their Goods by Restail unto them, gave them particular Inventories of all they had, nay digged up such of tence of fecu-their best things as they had hidden under ground, to deposite in their custody. Much likewise they got by fair promises and deep engagements to do them no further mischief, to suffer them, their Wives and Children quietly to retire and leave the Country . But others, and especially the meaner fort of people fell more rudely to work, at the very first, breaking up of their houses, and using all manner of > force and violence, to make themselves Masters of their Goods. And having thus feized upon all their Goods and Cattle, ranfackt their Houses, gotten their persons under their power; the next thing they did, was to strip Man, Women and Child, many of them stark naked, and fo to turn them out of their own doors, not permitflark naked, ting them in some places so much as to shelter themselves under Bushes, or in the Woods, and strictly prohibiting all the Irish under great penalties, to give them Entertainment, or any kind of Kelief, as they passed on upon the High-ways. And certainly their design in manner of re this, most notoriously appears to have been no other then that all such lief forbiddenas they would not lay their hands upon, and cruelly Murder in cold to the English blood, might miserably perish of themselves through Cold, Nakedness as they passed and Want; and therefore as fast as any of them so stripped got old rags to cover their Nakedness, they endeavoured to strip them again, and ftripped and again; as may appear by the Examination of John Gourly, who deposeth, that some were stripped twice, some thrice, as fast as they could get any old rags to cover their Nakedness, the next Irish-women or even the Children that met them would take them off: And he and his Wife further depose, that when their house, together with the Town of Armagh were fet on fire by the Rebels, the was stripped

The Irish Gentlemen selves of the Goods belonging to the English, under prering them.

The next Act was to firlp the English, man, woman, and child and to turn them out of their own doors. All High-way despoiled of all they had. of her Clothes seven several times after she got other Clothes; and at The manner length, they lest her not so much as her Smock or Hair-lace, and that she of stripping got to a place and hid her self in a hutch for three or four days, and after went to find out her Children, two of which had the Small Pox visibly upon them. Jurat. Nov. 8 1642.

How infallibly this course succeeded, and how surely they compassed their Devilish ends hereby, is but too well known; The English leaving sufficient Monuments in the High-ways as they passed, as well as in the Towns wherein they arrived, of the dismal mortality it bred The miseries among them. And for the fuller satisfaction of any one who shall and mortality doubt thereof, I have thought sit to insert these two ensuing Exami-among them nations.

James Redfern, of the County of London-derry, Deposeth, That in the Town of Colerain, since the Rebellion began, there died of Robbed and Stripped people that fled thither for Succour, many hundreds, besides those of the Town who had Anciently dwelt there, and that the Mortality there was such, and so great, as many thousands died there in two days, and that the living, though scarce able to do it, laid the Carcases of those dead persons in great ranks, into vast and wide holes, laying them so close and thick, as if they had packed up Herrings together.

Magdalen Redman, late of the Dowris in the Kings-County, Widow. being Sworn and Examined, deposeth and faith; That she this Deponent and divers other Protestants her Neighbours, and amongst the rest 22 Widows, after they were all Robbed were also Stript stark naked, and then they covering themselves in a House with Straw; the Rebels then and there lighted the Straw with Fire, and threw amongst them, of purpose to burn them, where they had been Burned or Smothered, but that some of the Rebels more pittiful then the rest, Commanded these cruel Rebels to forbear, so as they escaped: Yet the Rebels kept and drove them naked into the wild Woods, from Tuesday until Saturday in Frost and Snow, so as the Snow unmelted long lay upon some of their skins, and some of their Children died in their Arms: And when as the Deponent and the rest endeavoured to have gone away for Refuge to the Burre, the cruel Rebels turned them again, faying, they should go towards Dublin; and when they endeavoured to go towards Dublin, they hindered them again; and faid, they bould go to the Burre; and fo toffed them to and fro; Yet at length, such of those poor stripped people as died not before they got away out of the hands of the Rebels, escaped to the Burte, where they were harboured and relieved by one William Parfons Efg: And yet there died at the Barre of those fript persons, about for Men, Women and Children. And this Deponent and those other ftript people that survived, lived miserably at the Burre aforesaid, until they with the rest, had quarter to come from thence to Dublin.

> Jur. 7 March 1642. Joh. Watson. Will. Aldrich.

cie

of

we

the all

ed

At

wit

15 dre

fire

Mo

the

the of adn ver Rou

poli fes (

wit beg

mol

Swe

wit

fems

oth

per

Sco

the

DO

the

wit

did

Wa:

Bri of a v

mo

Mabel, the Reliet of Christopher Porter, late of Dowris in the Kings County, Sworn and Examined, Deposeth and Saith, in all the particulars above-mentioned as Magdalen Redman before Examined, being her Neighbour.

Some of the most Notorious Cruelties, and Barbarous Murthers Committed by the Irifb Rebels, attested upon Oath, as they appear in feveral Examinations annexed in the Margin.

TATE may in these poor Souls, as it were, in large Characters, behold the miseries of all those multitudes of Men. Women and Children, that were in all parts of the Kingdom thus Inhumanly stript, and so exposed to the same want, cold and nakedness. The mercies of the wicked are cruel; how bitter was their compassion to all those Brit-A particular ish that thus suffered? How Horrid, Barbarous, and Insupportable was Enumeration the Commiseration they thus expressed towards them? Yet these were Bloody Maffa. as they told them at first, but the beginnings of their forrows : For when cres and hor-the Northern Rebels began to find their own strength, and that partly rid cruelties, by Treachery, partly by Force they had possessed themselves of all the exercised up chief places of strength in Ulfer, Disarmed the English, Robbed them on the British, of their Goods and Cattel, Stripped them of their Clothes, and had all restified upon Oath, and their persons now under their power, and all this without any consitaken out of derable refiftance made by them; then they could contain themselves feveral Exa- no longer but in a most fierce outragions manner, furiously broke out, minations, acting in all places of that Province, with most abominable cruelty, those which are in hourid Maffacres and execrable Murders, as would make any Christian Ear to tingle at the fad Commemoration of them . Then they began Margin.

to appear in their own colours, & with great delight to satisfate their ancient implacable malice, in their long wished & often plotted destruction of all the British Inhabitants. Within the County of Fermanagh multitdes killed in cold were presently killed in cold blood, some taken at the Plough, others as blood, they sate peaceably in their own houses, others travelling upon the ways, all without any manner of provocation by them given, suddainly surpriz-ed and unexpectedly cut off. At the Castle of [1] Lilgool within that County above 150 men, women and children almost all consumed by fire. At the Castle of [2] Moneah, near 100 British there flain all together: And the fame bloody company of Rebels were no fooner admitted into the Castle of [3] Tullab, which was delivered up into the hands of Roury Mac-Guire, upon com. polition, and faithful promifes of fair quarter, but that within the very court they began to strip the people, & most cruelly put them to the Sword, murdering them all without mercy. [4]. At Lifsenskeab they hanged or otherwise killed above 100 persons, most of them of the Scotch Nation; for after once they had the English in their power, they spared none of them, but used all the Scors with as much cruelty as they did the English. This County was very well planted by the British undertakers, and all of them and their Tenants in a very short space after a most horrible manner quite

0

[1] Thomas Wenslaw & John Simson, of the County of Fermanagh, Gentlemen, depose and say, That in the Castle of Lisgool, there were 152 men, women and children burnt, or smothered, when the said Castle was set on fire; not above two or three escaped, as appears in their Examination. Jurat. Jan. 12. Anno Dom. 1641.

[2] Thomas Wenslaw further deposeth, that at the Castle of Moneah, there were ninety Protestants more slain and murthered: And that from the [3] Castle of Moneah, the Rebels marched to the Castle of Tullah, where by their own confession, they promised those Protestants that were there fair quarters: But when they had delivered up their Arms and the Castle; those Rebels in the Bawn of the Castle, first stripped them all of their clothes, and then, and there most cruelly murdred them.

Richard Bourk, Batchelour in Divinity, of the County of Fermanagh deposeth, that he heard and verily believesh the burning and killing of one hundred at least in the Castle of Tullah, and that the same was done after fair quarter promised. Jurat July. 12, 1643

[4] Robry Mac-Guire, upon the 24 of October 1641, came with his Company unto Lissenskeah, and desired in afriendly manner to speak with Master Midleton, who had the keeping of the Castle. The first thing he did, as soon as he was entred therein, was to burn the Records of the County, whereof Master Midestroyed dleton was the keeper, being Clerk of the Peace, which be enforced him to deliver unto him; as likewise one thousand pounds he had in his hands of Sir William Baulfours; which as soon as he had, he compelled the said Middleton to hear Mass, swear never to alter from it, and immediately after cansed him, his wise and his children to be hanged up, and hanged and murdered one hundred persons besides, at least in that Town. These particulars and several other set down at large in a Relation sent me in by Sir John Dunbar Knight, one of the Justices of Peace within the County of Fermanagh.

destroyed, or utterly banks shed from their Habitations. In the Counties of Armagh and Tyrone, where the British were much more numerous, and Sir Phelim O Neal, and his Brother Turlagh O Neal, the principal actors, the murdeer of the British were much more multiplied and committed with greater cruelty, if it were possible, then in any other places.

E

€a

of

OU

go

N

for

CU

dr

had

or any use efc

Am

Ge

Wa:

for tot

no.

fur

arn

reb

to I

8 3

late

to t

fo t

tog

dra

of

mai

allt

by

with

Tor the

There were (5) one thousand men, women and children carried out at several times in several troops, & all unmercifully drowned at the bridge of Portnedown, which was broken down in the midst, and so driving and

(5) 1000 Men women and children drowned in one place. This number is deposed in Doctor Maxwels Exami: nation taken the 22 of Aug. 1642.

(6) This number of so many persons drowned within the County of Armagh, is deposed by Thomas Green and Elizabeth his wife, as appears by their Examinations taken November 10. 1643.

(7) William Clerk of the County of Armagh Tanner, saith, That he with 100 men, women and children, or thereabout, were by the Rebels driven like hogs about fix miles, to a River called the Band: in which space the foresaid Christians were most barbarously used, by forcing them to go fast with Swords and Pikes, thrusting them into their sides, and they murder d three by the way, and the rest they drove to the River aforesaid, and there for ced them to go upon the bridge, which was cut down, and with their Pikes, and Swords, and other weapons, thrust them down headlong into the said River and immediatly they perished, and those who assumed to swim to the shore, Turat. Jan. 7-1641.

forcing them on threw them into the River : And as other Relations gave it in, (6) four thousand persons were drowned within the feveral parts of that County. (7) The Rebels in a most barbarous manner drove on many of those miserable stripped Christians unto the place of their fufferings like Swine, and if any were flack in their pace, they fometimes pricked them forwards with their iwords and pikes, often haftening on the rest either by killing or wounding some of their fellows in the way.

the Rebels food and shot at.

Mary the wife of Ralph Corn deposeth, That 180 English were taken by the Irish, and driven like Cattel from Castle Cumber to Athy

[8] Other

[8] Other companies they carried out under pretence of giving them fafe conduct out of the Country, and fo got them to go cheerfully on by vertue of Sir Phelim O Neals Pass, until they came at some place fit for their execution. [9] And if they drowned them, then they had some prepared to shoot or knock down with Poles any fuch as could fwim, or uled any other means to escape out of the water. [10] Amongst many other, a Gentlewoman whose name was Mistris Cambell, being forcibly brought by them to the River, and the finding no means to escape their. fury, fuddainly clasped her arms about one of the chief rebels that was most forward to thrust her into the water, & as I find it credibly related upon Oath, carried him to the bottom with her, and so they were both drowned together [11] The Cathedral Church and Town of Armagh were burnt, many Towns laid waste, all the fair Plantations made by the British left deso-

[8] Elizabeth the wife of Captain Rue Price of the Town and County of Armagh, depofeth, That five of her Children, together with 110 other Protestants out of the Parishes of Armagh, Laughaul, and other places were fent away with passes from Sir Phelim O Neal with promise to be safely conveyed over to their friends in England: That their Conductor was Captain Manus O Cane and his Souldiers, who having brought or rather driven them like sheep or Beasts to the Bridge of Portnedown there forced or threw all those poor prisoners into the water together with the Deponents five children, and then and there arowned most of them. [9] And those who could swim and came to the shore, they either knocked them on the head, and so after drowned them, or else shor them to death in the water. Jurat Jan. 29.01641. 1091

Christian Stanhaw, the relict of Hen. Stanhaw. of the Parish of Laughaul, in the County of Armagh deposeth, That upon the drowning of 140 Protestant one time at Portnedown-Bridge, after they had thrown them. in some of them swiming to the shore the Rebels with their muskers knocked out their brains. Jurat. July. 23.1642. [10] James Shaw of Market-hill in the County of Armagh, deposeth the manner of Mistress Cambels pulling the Rebel into the water, and how he was drowned with ber Jurat Aug. 14, 1642.

[11] Captain Parkin deposeth, That Sir Phelim ONeal flying from Dundalk, went to Armagh, where he began his bloody maffacres, causing Manus O Cane to get together all the Protestants which were left thereabouts to conduct them to Colerain; but before they were scarce a days journey from him, they were all murdered, and fo were several others by special direction from Sir Phelim O Neal and his Brother Turlagh, notwithst anding they were protected by them All the aged people in Armagh were by the same directions carried away, but murdred also as Charlemount. And presently after, his Brother and he with their adherents, maliciously set on fire the goodly Cathedral Church of Armagh, and Town of Armagh, and murdered and drowned there 500 persons young and old. As the Parish of Killaman 48 Families were then murdered by directions from Sir Phelim, who had remained protected by him three quarters of a year, Jurat, March 8, 1643, [12] Jane Grace the wife of Nicholas Grace late of Kilmore, in the County of Armagh, deposeth, That there were two and twenty English Protestants burned in one House, within two miles of Kilmore; and that the Rebels stripped, killed, or murthered all, or the most of the Engl sh of that Parish, which consisted of two bundred Families. That they set many in the Stocks until they confessed their money, and when they could get no more, that then they murdred them.

Some horrid inhuman

-cruelties

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

-collection of fome other horrid inhuman cruelties, which I find were used

(13) Edward Saltinglass of the County of Armagh Gent. deposeth, and saith, That George Lawlis a reb left the said County, resolving to kill John Cowder, told him he would kill him, but bid him first say his Prayers; mberenpon the said Cowder kneeling atom to pray, the said Lawlininstantly cut off his head as he was upon his huces, Jurat, Jun. 1. 1642.

Elizabeth Price deposeth, That whenas divers of the English were about to be murdered, and desired the Rebels on their knees first to admit them to make their prayers to God; the Rebels bave often, in her the deponents hearing, in Irish answered and said, bequeath your sould to the Devil; and at other times the Rebels would say, why should you pray, your soul is with the Devil already? and with those words in their mouths mould shughter and put them to death. Jutat, ut supra.

(14) Edward Banks of Cassel, in the County of Tipperary, Clerk, deposeth, That the Rebels there on the first day of January killed sifteen men and women, all English Protestants, at Cassell, and that they entred and took the Town, and having the same, that they took this deponent and other Clergy men, and then and there forthwith caused them to be put in the Dungeon, where they continued twelve weeks in most miserable slavery.

Jurat. April 21. 1642.

Parish of Levilegish, there were divers English-men cruelly murdered, some twice, many thousands perished in short time by Sword, Famine, Fire, Water, and all other manner of cruel deaths, that rage & malice could invent. as a little further, & out of some ich I have perused) present a brief late in fome Parifhes [12] two hundred Families murdred and destroyed, the whole County, as it were a common Butchery, & thorough all parts ofit very pain, by no means allowing them leave, or (13) time to make their prayers; for others, they held a fudden death too easy a punish. ment : Therefore imprisoned (14) some in most beastly Dungeons, full of dirt and mire, and their clapping bolts on their heels, fuffered them to perish at leasure; others they barbaroufly (15) mangled, and left languishing upon the Highways, crying out but for so much mercy as to be delivered out of their pain.

Others they buried [16] alive, a manner of death they nfed to feveral British in feveral places: and [17] at Clewnis within the County of Fermanagh, there were 17 perfons having been hanged till they were half dead, cast together into a Pit, and being covered over with a little earth, lay pittifully, fending out most lamentable groans for a good time after. [18] fome were deadly wounded and so hang'd upon Tentorhooks [19] Some had ropes put about their necks, and fo drawn through the water; fome had withes, and fo drawn up and down thorow Woods & Bogs; others were

f

d

y ir

1g

(i)

10 en

h.

ev

in ns,

nd

eir

to

ers

angh-

but

That:

life

ame,

very.

2 she wice,

for

fome thrice hanged up, and others wounded and left half dead, crying out tamentably for fome to come and end their miseries by killing of them. Jurat, Jan. 7. 1641.

[16] William Parkinson of Castle-Cumber in the County of Kilkenny, Gent. deposeth, That by the eredible report both of English and some Irish, who affirmed they were Eye-witnesses of a bloody Murder committed near Kilseal in the Queens-County, upon an Englishman, his Wise, four or sive Children, and a Maid. All which were Hanged by the command of Sir Morgan Cavanah, and Robert Harpool, and afterneads put all in one hole, the youngest Child being not fully dead, put out the Hand and cryed Mammy, Mammy, when without mercy they Buried him alive, Jurat. Feb. 17. 1642.

Elizabeth Price deposeth, That Thomas Mason, an English Protestant of Laugal, being extreamly beaten and wounded, was carried away by his Wife and some others; for revenge of which, the Rebels most cruelly hacked, stashed and wounded them; and that done, dragged the said Mason unto a hole, and then and there threw Earth, Stones and Rubbish upon him, and with the weight thereof kept him under, so as the said Mason's Wife told this Deponent, he cryed out and languished till his own Wife, to put him out of his pain, rather then hear him cry fill; syed her Hand-kerchief over his mouth, and therewith stopped his breath, so as he died. Jurat. Jun. 29.

[17] This particular, concerning the Seventeen men Burjed alive at Clewnis, was testified unto me by Mrs. Aldrich, who was then kept Prisoner in the Town by the Rebels, and heard their pittiful vies.

[18] William Parkinson, late of Castle-Cumber in the County of Kilkenny, deposeth, that he saw Lewis O Brenan, with his Sword drawn in the said Town, pursue after an English Boy of Eight or Nine years of age, or thereabouts, by name Richard Bernet, into an House, and saw the said Lewis lead the said Boy forth of the House, the Blood running about his Ears, in a Hair Rope, and led the Boy to his Faibers Tensors, and there Hanged him with John Banks another little Boy. Jurat ut supra.

[19] Edward Saltingstone, of the County of Armagh Gent. deposeth, that Manus O Cane, Bryan O Kelly, Shane O Neil, Neil Oge O Neil, Gent. did sake William Blundel of Grange, in the County of Armagh Teoman, and put a rope about his neck, and threw him into the Black water at Charlemount, and drew him up and down the water to make him Confess his money, who thereupon gave them 21 pounds, yet within 3 weeks after hanged be, his Wife, and seven Children were drowned by the Rebels: And further saith, that Samuel Law of Grenan, in the Parish of Armagh, was by the said Neil Oge O Neil, and others, brought to a Wood, and that then, they there put a With about his neck, and so drew him up and down by the neck, until he was glad to promise them ten pounds. Jurat. ut supra.

Margaret Fermeny in the County of Fermanagh, Deposeth, That the Rebels bound her and her Husbands hands behind them, to make them consess their Money, and dragged them up and down in a Rope, and ent his Throat in her own sight with a Skein, having sirst knocked him down, and striped him, and that being an Aged Woman of 75 years old, as she came up afterwards to Dublin, she was stripped by the Irish seven times in one day, the Rebels bidding them go and look for their God, and bid him give them Clothes. Jurat.

[20] Edward Wilson of the County of Monaghan, Deposeth, That among other cruelties used by the Rebels to the English, they hung up some by the Arms, and then backed them with their Swords, to see how many blows they could endure before they died. Jurat.

[21] Anne the Wife of Mervin Madesly, late of the City of Kilkenny, Gent. Sworn and Examined, deposeth, That some of the Rebels in Kilkenny aforesaid, Aruck and beat a poor English-woman until she was forced into a Ditch, where she died, those Barbarous Rebels having first ript up her Child, of about Six years of age, and let her Guts run about her heels. Jurat.

James Geare of the County of Monaghan deposeth, That the Rebels at Clewnis Murdered one James Nettervile, Prostor to the Minister there, who, although he was diversly wounded, his Belly ript up, and his Entrails taken out and laid above a yard from him, yet he bled not at all, until they listed him up and carried him away; at which this Deponent being an Eye-witness, much wondred; and thus Barbarously they used him after they had drawn him to go to Mass with them. Jurat. April 6. 1642.

[22] Owen Frankland of the City of Dublin, Deposeth, That Michael Garray told this Deponent, that there was a Scotch-man, who being driven by the Rebels out of the Newry, and knockt on the Head by the Irish, recovered himself, and came again into the Town naked. Whereupon the Rebels carried him and his Wise out of the Town, cut him also pieces, and with a Skein ripped his Wives Belly, so as a Child dropped out of her Womb.

men threating yes them 25

Jurat. July 23. 1642.

hanged up and taken down and hanged up again feveral times, and all to make them confess their money, which as foon as they had told, they then dispatched them out of the way. [20] Others were hanged up by the Arms, and with many flashes and cuts they made the Experiment with their Swords how many blows an English-man would endure before he died. Some had their [21] Bellies ript up, and so left with their guts running about their heels. But this horrid kind of cruelty was principally referved by these inhuman Monsters for [22] Women, whose fex they neither pitty'd nor spar'd hanging up feveral Women, many of them great with child,

E

t

. 1

ki

fr

W

R

the

the

ani

Ap

child, whole [23] bellies they. ripped up as they hung, and fo let the little Infants fall out; a courle they ordinarily took with fuch as they found in that fad condition. [24] And fometimes they gave their Children to Swine; [25] Some the Dogs eat; and some [26] taken alive out of their Mothers Bellies, they cast into ditches. And for lucking Children, and others of a riper age, some [27 | had their Brains knockt out; others [28] were trampled under foot to death.

e

1

ts

S.

u-

ed

ers

fex

מייו

en,

ith

s in

to 4

bent

vnis

was yard

bich

lhim

told fthe

to the im al

Tomb.

child,

[23] At Ballimcolough within four miles of the City of Rols, in April 1642. John Stone of the Grige, bu son, bu two sons-in-Law, and his two daughters, were hanged; one of his daughters being great with child, ber belly-was ripped up, her child taken forth, and such barbarous heaftly actions used to her, as are not sit to be mentioned.

[24] Philip Taylor, late of Portnedown, deposeth, That the Rebels killed a Dyers Wife of Ross-trever, at the Newry, and ript up her Belly, she being great with child of two children, and threw her and her children into a ditch, and that he this Deponent drove away Swine from eating one of the Children. Jurat.

[25] John Montgomery of the County of Monaghan, sworn and examined saith, That one Brian Mac Erony, Ringleader of the Rebels in the County of Fermanagh, killed Ensign Floyd, Robert Worknum, and sour of their Servants, one of which they having wounded; though not to Death, they buried quick. As also, that he was excelibly informed, that the Daughter-in law of one Foard in the Parish of Clownish, being delivered of a child in the Fields, the Rebels, who had formerly killed her Huband and Father, killed ler and two of her children, and suffered the Dogs to eat up and devour her new born child.

Jurat. June 26. 1642.

[26] Katherine, the Reliat of William Coke; of the County of Armagh, Carpenters, de poseth. That the Rebels of the said County robbed fripped and murthered a great company of Protestants, some by hurning, some by the sword, some by hanging, and the rest by starving and other deaths. And this Deponent, to shuntheir rage, and save her poor life, his her self in a ditch of water, and sat there among high Rushes solong, as that she was almost frozen and starved to death, and then crawled away secretly. And surther saith that some of the Rebels that escaped and shed from the hattel of Lisnagarvey, meeting one Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Frankland, both great with shild, and six of their children with them, those Rebels then and there with their pikes killed and murdred them all, and after ripped openibe Gentlewomens Bellies, took out their children, the one of them being quick, and threw them into a ditch, in the sight of Jane this Deponents Daughter, who escaped because shake Itish, and said she was an Itish woman. Jurat. Febr. 24. 1643.

there took Isabel Stevenson, Clerk. of the County of Letrim, deposeth, That the Rebels there took Isabel Stevenson, a young thild, left at Fostering, with one Hugh Mic Arran, and enquiring whose child it was, they told him it was a Scotish-mans child, whereupon they took the child by the heels and run and heat the Brains of it out against a Tree. Jurat.

April 20. 1643.

(28) Ann Hill, Wife of Arthur Hill, in the County of Catcelagh, depofeth, That as she passed through the County of Wicklow, William the Plaisterer, with nine or ten Rebels more, pulled off her back a young Child of one year and a quarter old, threw it on the ground, trod on it that it died, stripped her self and sour small shildren, who by the cold they thereby got, fince died. Jurat.

(28) John Stubs of the County of Longford, Gent. deposeth, That he heard by some of the Sheriffs men, that Henry Mead and his Wife, John Bigel, William Stell, and Daniel Stubs the Deponents brother, were put to death by Lisagh Fatrols, and Oli. Fitz-Gerralds men, who hanged them upon a Windmil, and when they were half dead, they cut them in pieces with their Skeins. Jurat. Novemb. 21. 1641.

(28) Some they cut in gobbets and pieces, (29) others they ript up alive; (30) some were found in the fields, sucking the Breasts of their murdred Mothers; others lay stifled in Vaults and Cel-

El. Price deposeth, That a great number of poor Protestants, especially of Women and Children, they pricked and stabled with their Skeins, Pitchforks and Swords, and would slash, mangle and cut them in their heads, breasts, faces, arms, and other parts of the body, but not kill them out-right, but leave them wallowing in their blood, to languish, starve and pine to death; and whereas those so mangled desired them to kill them out of their pain, they would deny it; but sometimes after a day or two, they would dash out their Brains with stones, or by some other cruekway, which they accounted done as a favour, of which she hath in many Particulars been an Eye witness. Jurat. June 29.1642.

(29) William Parkinson of Kilkenny Esq; deposeth, That the Wise of John Harvey told him, That she being at Kilkenny, and having there turned to Mass to save her Life, was notwithstanding stripped again, together with her Children, and one Purcell a Butcher, after be had stripped her daughter of sive years of age, ripped up her body till her instails fell out, whereof she died that night; whereof she complaining to the Major of Kilkenny, he bid away with her and dispatch her; so as not only the Butcher, but many others did beat and wound her, fo as she hardly escaped with her life, Jurat. ut supra.

(30) Elisabeth Champion late Wife of Arthur Champion in the County of Ferminagh Esq; deposeth, That when the Castle of Lisgool was set on fire by the Rebels, allow man leaping out of a Window to save her self from burning, was mirrored by the Rebels; and next morning her Child was found sucking her breast, and also murdred by them. Justi April 26. 1642.

Charity Chappel, late Wife of Richard Chappel Esq; of the Town and County of Aimagh, deposeth, That as she hath credibly beard, the Rebels murdred great numbers of Protestants, and that many Children were seen lying murder'd in Vaults and Cellars, whither they fled to bide themselves. Jurat. July 2. 1642.

Thomas Fleetwood, late Curate of Kilbergan in the County of West meath, deposeth, That he both heard from the mouth of the Rebels themselves of great cruelties acted by them: And for one instance, that they slab'd the Mother, one Jane Addis by name, and left her little sucking child, not a quarter old, by the dead corps; and then they put the breast of its dead Mother into its mouth, and hid it suck English-bastard, and so lars: others [31] starved in Caves, crying out to their Mothers rather to send them out to be killed by the Rebels, than to suffer them to starve there.

'n

6-

rs

ne

ds,

rieir

ers

cl-

and

pluc

ody,

and

pain,

rains

phich

arvey

Life;

tcher,

trails

enny,

d beat

erma-

a Wos

s; and

Jurate

of Ar-

of Pro-

phicher

, depo-

es acted

manie,

bey put and o

lars:

Multitudes of [32] Men, Women and Children, were found drowned, cast into ditches, hoggs and turf=pits; the ordinary Sepultures of the Brittish Nation. Thoufands died of cold and want in all parts of the Countrey, being neither permitted to depart, nor relieved where they were enforced to stay. Multitudes enclosed in Houses, which being set on fire, they were there most milerably confunied. [33] Some dragged out of their left it there to perifh. Jurat. March 22. 1642.

[31] Mary Barlow deposeth, That ber Husband being by the Rebels hanged before her sace, she and six children were stripped stark naked, and turned out a begging in frost and snow, by means whereof they were almost starved, having nothing to eat in three weeks, while they lay in a Cave, but two old Calf-Skins, which they beat with stones, and so eat them, hair and all; her Children crying out unto her, rather to go out and be killed by the Rebels, than to starve there. Jurat.

[32] John Duffield of the County of Armsgh Gent, deposeth, That the Rebels wounded John Ward and Richard Duffield, so as they thereof died, and that their Wives and the said John's six Children, being all stript, died of want and cold. And further saith, That many thousands of Protestants, Men, Women, and Children, being stripped of their Cloaths, died also of cold and want in several parts of the Country. Jurat. Aug. 9. 1642.

* Jane the Wife of Gabriel Constable, late of Drumcad in the County of Armagh, Gent. sworn and examined faith, That her Husband and his Mother about 88 years old, and his Brother, being murdred by the Rebels in the Parish of Kilmore, that a greatnumber of Protestants were about Candlemas 1641. by the means and instigation of Joan Hemskin, formerly a Protestant, but a meer It shoman, and lately turned to Mass, and of divers other her assistants, forced and thrust into a thatch'd House within the Parish of Kilmore, and then and there, the Protestants being almost naked, covered with Rage only, the same House was by that bloody Woman and her barbarous assistants, set on sire in several parts thereof, the poor imprisoned parties (who were by armed parties kept here lock din) were miserably burned to death, and at length the House fell upon them; and the combustible part of the House being consumed before the bodies of all those miserable wretches were burned to ashes; the bodies of many of them lay there in holes, to the great terror of the beholders that were Protestants, three only escaped out of a bole of the House, and the rest that attempted to escape the stames, were then and there forced and thrown in again, and so burned to death. Just. June 16. 1642.

[33] Katharine Madeson of the County of Fermanagh. deposeth, That they drew some lying sick of Fevers, out of their Beds, and hanged them; and that they drove before them of Men, Women and Children, to the number of sixteen, and drowned them in a Boggy-pit, knocking such on the Head with Poles, as endeavoured to get ent.

fick-

fick beds to the place of execution, (34) children enforced to carry their aged Parents to the places designed for their flaughter, (35) nay, some Children compelled most unnaturally to be the Executioners of their own

Parents, Wives to help hang their Husbands, (36) Mothers to cast their own Children into the Water; and yet after theleenforced acts, which no doubt were performed out of hopes and affurance to have their own Lives faved, always murdered. And fuch was the malice and most detestable hatred born to the English by the Irish, as they taught their (37) Children to kill English Children, and

(34) Thomas Green in the Parish of Dumcres in the County of Armagh Teoman, and Elizabeth his Wife, (worn and examined, faith, That the Deponent Thomas Green bardly escaped away with his Life, but that the other Deponent and fix Children were all left among the Rebels, and so stripped of their Cloaths, and bunger: flarved, that five of the Children dyed, and fhethis Deponent being put to beg among the merciless Rebels, was at length rescued from them by the Scotish Army : She further faith, that the Rebels did drown in a Bog 17 Men, Women, and Children, at one time within the faid Pavife; and fhe is verily perswaded that the Rebels at several times and places within the County of Armagh, drowned above 4000 Protestants, enforcing the Sons and Daughters of those very aged People, who were not able to go them felves, to take them out of their Beds and Houses, and carry them to drowning, especially in the River of Toll, in the Parish of Loghgall. Jurat. November 10. 1643.

(35) John Rutledge deposeth, That such were the barbarous and inhumane Cruelties of the Rebels, that sometimes they enforced the Wife to kill the Husband, the Son to kill the Father, and the Daughter to kill the Mother, and then they would hang or put to death the last Blood-

Shedder. He further saith, That of his knowledge the Rebels in the Town of Slego, forced one Lewes the younger to kill bis Pather, and then hanged the Son; and in Mogne, in the County of Mayo, the Rebels forced one Simon Lepers Wife to kill ber Huband, and then caused her Son to kill her, and then they banged the Son.

(36) This is deposed in Mr. Goldsmith's Examination, which is set forth at large in the Pages following.

(37) Ann Read the Relict of Helchiah Read, of the County of Lettim, deposeth, That she being stripped of all she had, some of her Children died of want and samine, and that one of her sons called Stephen Read, being about six years of age, was about the 10 of February, 1641, in the House of James Gray of the County of Cavan, and going forth to play, there then gathered about him six Irish Children of that Town, who suddenly fell upon him, and in such manner, that some with sticks, and some with stones put out his Eyes, and bruised his Body extreamly, so that he by means of those Children (which were none of them as she is persuaded above eight years of age) not long after died, and had been killed out-right in the place, had not an English Woman some thither, who took up the Dying Child from them, saying, she wonder'd they could find in their hearts so to deal with a poor Child; but they answered, They would do as much for her if they were able. Jurat, July 12, 1642.

the (38) Irish women did naturally express as much cruelty as the chiefest Rebels among them.

-

d

ed

he

wn

ng

ers

ren

ter

no

1UO

to

red,

uch

de

the

hey

ren

and

for-

gne,

and,

ge in feth,

nine,

et the

going

denly

t out

and

fo to were

the

If these be not sufficient, let us overslook the particular ends of some particular persons, and we shall yet in them behold more horrid cruesties than these beforementioned. What (39) shall we say to a child boyled to death in a cauldron, a (40) woman hanged on a tree, and in the hair of her head her own daughter hanged up with her; a woman (41) miserably rent and torn to pieces; (42) some ta-

(38) Dennis Kelly of the County of Meath, depofeth, That Garret Tallon of Cruisetown in the said County, Gent. (as it is commonly reported) hired two men to kill Ann Hagely, Wife to Edw. Tallon his Son, a Papist, and at that time absent from home; and the said two men did in most bloody manner, with Skeins, kill the said Ann Hagely and her Daughter, and her Daughters two Children, because they would not consent to go to Mass; and after they would not permit them to be buried in a Church or Churchsyard, but they sour were buried in a ditch. Jurat. Aug. 23. 1643.

John Griffel of the Queens County deposeth, That the women and Children in those parts, were as cruel and forward as the Men Rebels, the Children tho young, bee ing very bold in their Roberies, bidding this Deponent and the rest of the English be gone, or else they should be hanged.

Elizabeth Baskervile deposeth, That she heard the Wife of Florence Fitz-Patrick find much fault with her Husbands Soldiers, because they did not bring along with them the Greafe of Mrs. Nichollon, whom they had Jlain, for her to make Candles withal. Jurat. April 26. 1643.

Martha Gulin deposeth, That she heard some of the Irish themselves detest the cruelty of the Women who followed their Camp, and put them on in cruelty, saying, Spare neither Man, Woman, nor Child. Jurat.

(39) This particular deposed by Margaret Parkin, as also by Elizabeth Bursel, who faith, That the Child was of twelve years of age, being the Child of Thomas Straton of Newtown. Jurat. Jan. 19. 1641.

(40) The Wife of Jonathan Linn and his Daughter, were seized upon by the Rebels near the Town of Caterlagh, carried by them into a little Wood, called Stapletown-wood, and there the mother was hanged, and the Daughter hanged in the hair of her Mothers Head, as is deposed by James Shaw, Vicar of old Laughtin, Jan. 8. 1643.

(41) Adam Clover deposets, That he saw upon the high way a woman left by the Rebels stripped to her smock set upon by three women and some children, being Irish, who miserably rent and tore the said poor English woman, and stripped her of her smock in a bitter frost and snow, so that she sell in labour in their hands, and both she and her child died there. Jurat. Jan. 4. 1641.

(42) This cruelty was used to some English in the Province of Conaught, as was test :-

fied by the Lords Justices and Council, as doth appear by their Letters.

Tho: Fleetwood Curate of Kilbeggan, in the County of West-meath, deposeth, That the L. President of Conaught, caused an English womanwho could speak with, to ge toward Dublin with a Letter, but she was taken within five miles of the Town of Athlone, brought back and stoned to death by the women of the Town, dwelling on the hither fide of the Bridge. Jurat.

M a

[43] James of Hackets Town in the County of Catherlagh, deposeth, That an Itish Gentlewoman told him and others, that she turned an English woman away who was her servant, and had a Child; and that before the poor woman and child were gone half a mile, divers Itish women slew them with stones. Jurat. April 21.

1643.

[44] John Clerk of Knockback Gent. deposeth, That be heard credibly from Mr. Lightboun, Minister of the Naas, that the Rebels shot a Parish-Clerk near Kildare, through both his thighs, and afterwards digged a deep hole in the ground, wherein they set him upright on his feet, and filled up the hole in the earth, leaving out only his head, in which state and posture they left the poor wounded man, till he pined, languished, and so died. Jurat. Octob. 24. 1643.

[45] Katharine, the Relict of William Coke, of the County of Armagh, deposeth, That many of her Neighbours who had been Prisoners among the Rebels, said and affirmed, that divers of the Rebels would confess, brag, and hoast, how they took an English Protestant, one Robert Wilkinson at Kilmore, and held his Feet in the fire until they burned him to death: And the same Robert Wilkinson's own Son was present, and a Prisoner, when that cruelty was exercised on his Father. Jurat.

February 24. 1643.

[46] At Calhel in Munster, beside many Ministers which they there hanged after a most barbarous manner, they stript one naked, and drove him through the Town, pricking him forward with Darts and Rapiers, and so pursuing him till he fell down dead. Jurat.

ut fupra.

[47] Christian Stanshaw, the Reliet of Hen. Stanshaw, late of the County of Armagh Esq; deposeth, That a woman that formerly lived near Laugale, absolutely informed this Deponent, that the Rebels enserced agreat number of Protestants, men, women and children, into a House which they set on sire purposely to burn them, as they did, and still as any of them offered to come out, to shun the sire, the wicked Rebels with sythes, which they bad in their bands, cut them in pieces, and sast them into the sire, and burned them with the rest. Jurat, July 23, 1642.

ken by the Rebels, their eyes plucked out, their hands cut off, and fo turned out to wander up and down; [43] others Stoned to death; [44] aman wounded and fet upright in a hole digged in the earth, and so covered up to the very chin, there left in that miferable manner to perish: a [45] mans feet held in the fire till he was burnt to death, his wife hanged at his door [46] a Minister Stripped Stark naked, and so driven like a Beaft thorough the Town of Cashel, the Rebels following and pricking him forward with darts and rapiers: 47/2 company of men, women and children put into a houfe, and as they were burning; fome children that made an escape out of the flames were taken by some of the Rebels who flood by, cut them in pieces with fythes, and so cast them into the fire again.

Neither did these horrible Tortures, which they put these poor innocent Christians unto, aflack their fury, their malice towards them did not determine with their breath. But after fo many feveral bloody ways and cruel Inventions wherewith they rent their Souls from their wretched Bodies, even to their (48) dead carkaffes, in some places, they denied all manner of burial; some (49) they cast into ditches, others (50) they left to be devoured by dogs and fwine, others by fowls and ravenous birds: nay (51) feveral which had been formerly buried, they digged up, and left them to putrifie above ground.

yes

Cut

ın-

ETS

nan

n a

and cry

era-

till

his

46]

na-

Bealt

of wing

ward

7 2

men

oule,

ingi

e an

were

bels

n in

caft

ter a

urat.

nagh

this

chil-

any

they

with

ther

(48) Adam Clover of the County of Cavan, deposeth, That he observed 30 persons to be most barbarously murdered, and about 150 more cruelly wounded, so that traces of blood issuing from them, lay upon the bigboway for 12 miles together, and many very young children were left and perished by the way, to the number of 60, or theres abouts; because the cruelties of the Rebels were such, that their Parents and Friends could not carry them further. And surther saith, That some of the Rebels vowed, that if any digged Graves wherein to bury the dead Children they should be buried therein themselves: So the poor people left most of them unburied, exposed to ravenous beasts and sowls. Jurat. Jan. 4, 1641,

(49) Edward Saltinstale deposeth, That the Rebels killed William Loverden when he was naked, his Wife and children looking on, and cutting off his head, held it up to his Wife and Children; and his sorrowful Wife taking his Corps and burying of it in a Garden, Patrick O Dally a Rebel, took it up, and threw it into a Ditch. Ju-they digged up, and lest them (50) Thomas Green and Elizabeth bis Wife, depose, to purishe above ground. That the Rebels at several times murder'd, killed and destroyed the most part of the Protestants in the Parish of Dumcres, being about 300, and indeed most of the Protestants in all the County thereabouts did they kill and destroy by drowning, hanging, burning, the sword, starving and other deaths, exposing their staughtered bodies to be devoured by dogs, swine, and other ravenous creatures: And this Deponent Elizabeth, saw the dogs feed upon those dead carcasses. Jurat. Nov. 10. 1643.

rat ut lupra.

(51) Richard Bourk Batchelour of Divinity deposets, That he was informed, that Mr. Lodge, Archdeacon of Killalow, being buried about six years since, and divers other Ministers Bones were digged out of their Graves as Patrons of Heresie, by direction of the titular Bishop of Killalow, and Robert Jones a Minister was not admitted Christian Burial, by direction of some Popish Priest. Jurat. July 12. 1643.

David Buck deposeth, That in the Parish of Munrath in the Queens County, the Rebels digged up a number of English Mens Graves, and left the Corps above ground to be abused by Dogs, Hogs, or any other ravenous Creatures.

And these truly are but some of those ways, among many others which with most exquisite pains and cruel tortures, were used by these merciless (52) Rebels to let

(52) Arthur Agmoughty deposeth, That during the Siege of Casses Forbez, the Rebels killed poor children that went out to eat weeds or grass; and that a poor Weman whose Huband was taken by the Rebels, went to them with two Children at her feet, and one at lex breast, hoping to beg her Hubands life, but they sew ker and her sucking child, broke the neck of another of her children, and the third hardly escaped. Jurat. Sept. 23.

1643.

[53] Mr. Creighton deposeth in his Examination, That sometimes the chief of the Irish would make heavy moan for the evils they perceived were coming on their Country and Kindred, and said. They saw utter destruction at hand, for that they had covered so great a bitterness so long in their hearts against the English, and now so suddenly brokenout against them, that had brought them up, kept them in their houses like Children, and had made no districted between them, their English Friends & Kindred, by all which the English bad so well deserved of them, and they had required them so evil, that the English would never trust them hereaster; and now is remains that either they must destroy the English, or the English them. Jurat, ut supr in death among an innocent, unprovoking, unrefilt ng people, that had always lived peaceably with them, [53] administring all manner of helps and comforts to those who were in diffres, that made no difference betwirt them and those of their own Nation, but eyer cherished them as Friends, and loving Neighbours, without giving any cause of Unkindness or Distaste unto them. It is not possible to recollect or express the wickedness of their mischievous Inventions, or horrour of their bloody Executions, actuated with all kind of circum-stances that might aggravate the height of their cruelty towards them. Alas! who can comp shend the sears, terrours, anguish, bitterness and perplexity of their Souls, the despairing passions and consternation of their Mind! What strange amazed Thoughts must it needs raise in their sad Hearts, to find themselves so suddenly surprized without Remedy, and inextricably wrapt up in all kind of outward Miseries which could possibly by Man be insticted upon any humane Creatures! What Sighs, Groans, Trembling, Astonishment! What Schrieches, Ctier, and bitter Lamentation of Wise and Children, Friends and Servants, howling and weeping about them, all finding themselves without any manner of Hope or Deliverance from their present Misery and Pain! How inexorable were their barbarous Tormentors that compassed them eneverry side without all Bowels of Compassion, any sense of their Sufferings, or the least commisseration and pity, the common comforters of Men in Milery.

with other like bitter words. Jurat. Jan. 5.1643.

[54] Jane the Relict of Gabriel Constable, deposeth,

That the Rebels having half killed one E len Millington, and then put her into a dry hole made for a Well, and made her safe in with stones, whereof the languished and died.

[4] Fran. Barbour of Dublin, Gent. depofeth, That, at the beginning of the Rebellion, he beard several of the Rebels publickly far, That now the day was their own, or that.

they had been flaves to the English a long time, but that now t'ey would be revenged to the full, and would not leave before Chr stmas-Day, an English Protestant Rogue living,

It was no small addition to their Sorrows, to hear [54] the base Reviling Specches used against their country and coun-

country-men, some loudly threatning [55] all should be cut off, and utterly destroyed that had one drop of English Blood in them; the Irish Women crying out to spare neither man, woman nor child that was English; that the English was meat for dogs, and their children bastards.

nt,

ng

red

3]

of

ole

hat

Wixt

nw

hed ving

Ving

s or not

EX:

their 10 cum-

Alas!

ty of

Vhat

find

cably

Man

rem-

ation

ping

were ntors

CVC-

wels

ofe of

lealt

the

Men

onto [54]

ches

y and

cun-

How grievous and insupportable must it needs be to a true christian Soul, to hear a base [56] villain boast, that his hands were so weary with killing and knocking down Protestants into a bogg, that he could not life his arms up to his head? or others to say, of the Could not life his arms up to his head? or others to say, of the Could not life his arms up to his head? or others to say, of the Could not life his arms up to his head? or others to say, of the Could not life his arms up to his head? or others to say, of the Could not life his arms up to his head? or others to say, of the Could not life his arms up to his head? or others to say, of the Could not life his arms up to his head? or others to say, of the Could not his head? I had common that the greater or fat which remained [55] Elizabeth the Wife of Thomas Green depofeth, That she heard the Rebels say, The English were meat for Dogs; that there should not be one drop of Eng-1sh Blood left within the Kingdom, and that they would destroy all, the very English Children, whom they called Bastards. Jurat. November 10. 1643.

Richard Cleybrook deposeth, That he heard Luke Toole say, That they would not leave an English man or English woman in the Kingdom, that they would not leave an English Beast alive, or any of the Breed of them. Jurat.

Samuel Man of the County of Fermanagh Gent. deposeth, That he heard some of the Irish say, That there should not be one English man, woman or child less in the Kingdom. Jurat.

Elizabeth Dickingson deposeth, That she heard some of the Company of Roury Mac Guire, say, That the I ish had command to leave never a drop of English Blood in Ireland. Jurat. November 17. 1642.

*Katherine Madeson of the County of Fermanagh deposeth, That she hath often heard the Rebels say, That they would drive all the English and Scottish out of the Kingdom, and that both man, woman, and child should be cut off and destroyed. Jurat. November 17. 1642.

[56] Elenor Fullerton the Relief of Will. Fullerton, late Parson of Lougall, deposeth, That in Lent 1641. a young reguing Cow-boy gave out and affirmed in this Doponents bearing, That his hands were so weary in killing and knocking down Protestants into a bog-pit, that he could hardly lift his arms to his head. Jurat. Septemb. 16. 1642.

Owen Frankland deposets, That he heard Hugh O Can, late Servant to Mrs. Stanshiw, calling to his fellows in a boasting manner, asking them what they had been doing athome all the day, that he had been abroad and had killed sixteen of the Rogues, and showed them some money. Jurat, ut supra.

[57] Elizabeth Champion, late Wife of Arthur Champion in the County of Fermanagh, Esq; saith, That she heard the Rebels say, That they had killed so many English men, that the grease or fat which remained upon their Swords and Skeins, might well serve to make an Irish candle. First. April 14, 1642.

N

(58) John Birn late of Dongannon in the County of Tyron deposeth, That he heard some of the native Itish that were somewhat more merciful than the rest, complain that two young Cow-boys within the Parish of Tullah, had at several times murdred and drowned 36 Women and Children. Jurat. Jan. 12. 1643.

(59) James Shaw a Minister deposeth, That after the Cessation made with the Irish, divers of them confessed, the Priests had given them the Sacrament, upon condition they should not spare man, woman or child that were Protestants, and that he heard divers of them say in a bragging manner, that it did them much good to wash their hands in the Blood of the Protestants which they had slain. Jurat. Jan. 7. 1643, on their Swords or Skeinss might have made an Irish Candle; or to consider, that two (58) young Coweboys should have it in their power to murder 36 Protestants. Whosever shall seriously weigh these particulars, will not much wonder that so great numbers of British and Protestants, should be destroyed in so short a time after the first breaking out of the Rebellion, as Master Cunningbam (59) deposeth in his Examination: He there faith, That the account of the persons killed by the Rebels from the time of the beginning of the Rebellion, Octob.23. 1641. unto the month of April following, was as the Priests weekly gave it in, in their several Parishes, one hundred and sive thousand. Jugat. April 22. 1641.

(60) Elizabeth Champin deposeth That when the Rebels had set the Castle of Lisgool on fire upon the Protestants there enclosed, and saw the said Heuse so burning, they said among themselves rejostingly, Ohow sweets ly do they fry ! Jurat. ut fupra.

(61) William Lucas of the City of Kilkenny depofeth, That altho' be lived in the Town till about five or fix weeks paft, in which time he is affured divers mur= ders and creel acts were committed, yet he durft not go. abroad to see any of them: But he deth confidently believe that the Rebels baving brought seven Protestants Heads, whereof one was the Head of Mr. Bingham a Mmister, they did then and there as Triumphs of their Vi-Hory, fet them upon the Market croß on a Market day. and that the Rebels flash'd fabb'd and mangled those Heads, put a Gag or Carrot in the faid Mr Bingham's Mouth, flit up bis Cheeks to bis Ears, laying a leaf of a Bible before him, and bid him preach, for his Mouth was wide enough, and after they had so solaced themselves, Bhrew those Heads in a bole in St. Junes Green. Jurat. Jug. 16. 1643.

When the Castle of Lifgool (60) was fet on fire by the Rebels, and fo many Brittifh as are before mentioned confumed in the flames, those mischievous Villains that had done that wicked fact, cried out with much joy, How sweetly do they fry! How did the Inhabitants (61) of Kilkenny (a City planted with old English, where Civility and good Manners feemed to flourish) folace and please themselves in abufirg most unchristianly the heads of a Minister and fix other Protestants, brought in a kind of Triumph into that Town : Certain'y it is not to be imagined, much less less expressed, with what Scorn and Derision they aced these great Cruelties upon all Brittish which they had gotten into their power; with what joy and exultas tion their Eyes did behold the lad spectacle of their miferies, what [62] greedy delight and p'easure they took in their bloody Executions; what 63 malice and hatred they expressed towards them, many with the last ftroke of death giving them in their last agony [64] that its.

at

oys

ally

will

fo

and

de-

ime

out

fter

feth

lled

.23.

gave

pril

[gool

the

ttifh

on-pole

that fact,

joy,

fry!

ants

lan-

here

ners

lace

abu-

the

d fix

ight

into it is less

[62] Julian Johnson, the Relies of John Johnson of the County of Gallway deposeth. That after the slaughter of some English, she heard one O Moloy a Friar, say in a triumphing manner, It was a brave sport to see the young men (meaning some of the English then slain) defending themselves on every side, and their two Byes burning in their heads. And surther, that she heard some of the cruel Soldiers then and there brag and boast of the brave sport they had, by putting sire to the straw which a stripped English woman had tyed about her, saying, How bravely the fire then made the English Jade to dance! Jurat. February 8. 1643.

Joan Constable the Relies of Gabriel Constable, depofeth, That the outscries, lamentations, and skriethes of the poor Protestants burned in a thatch'd house in the Parish of Klunore, in the County of Armagh, were exceeding loud and pitiful, yet did nothing prevail to mollify the bardned bearts of their murderers, but they most boldly made brags thereof, and took pride and glory in imitating those cries, and in telling the Deponent and others, how the children gaped when the fire began to burn them, and threatned and told her this Deponent, that before it were long she and the rest of the Protestants should suffer the like deaths. And further saith, That the Rebels within the County of Armagh did act and commit divers other bloody barbarous Cruelties (betwixt the time of the beginning of the Rebellion, and her escape from Imprisonment out of the said County) by burning, drowning, hanging, the sword, starving, and other fearful deaths: That they did drown at one time betwixt Tinon and Kinnard, sixty British women and children, their respective bushands and sathers, all their male friends that were men, being murdred before: And that they did in the same water at another time drown one Mrs. Maxwel, the Wife of Mr. James Maxwel, when she was in labour, and so forward therein, as some of those bloody Actors told and bragged to her this Deponent, that the very Childs Arm appeared, and waved in the Water, the Child being half born when the Mother was drowned. Jurat. ut supra.

[63] Henry Brinkhurst of the County of Mayo, deposeth, That after the Massacre of Shreul, one of the Rebels that had asted his part there, came into a house with his hands and cloaths all bloody, saying, It was English Blood; that he hoped to have more of it, and that his Skein had pinked the clean white Skins of many at Shreul, even to the hist thereof, and that among st others it had been in the Body of a fair complexion d man, whose name was Jones. At which time of his discourse, the Wife of the said Jones; with four of her small Children, sat by, and durst not cry out, but striving so suppress her extreamgries, fell into a swoon, and was conveyed out of the Room, for fear he should have done the like by her and ber poor children. Henry Brinkhurft. Jurat. March 11. 1643.

(64) This Particular deposed in the Examination of Dr. Maxwel and Mrs. Prices

ly sworn and examined, deposeth inter alia, that when the Rebels, or any of them, had killed an English man in the Country, many others of them would come one after another, and every of them in most cruel manner slab, wound and cut him, and almost mangle him; and to shew their further malice, would not juster or permit any to bury them, but would have them to lie naked, for the dogs, heafts, and fowls of the air to devour them. And surther sai b, When they had so killed the English, they would reckon up and account the number of them, and in rejoycing and hoasting manner would say, That they had made the Devil beholding to them, in sending so many Souls to him to Hell. Jurat. coram Sir Gerrard Lowther.

Edward Dean of Ocram in the County of Wicklow, Tanner, deposeth, That the Itish Rebels made Proclafearful Valediction, in Irish, Anim a duel, Thy Soul to the Devil.

But it is no wonder that they carried themselves after this barbarous manner to these poor innocent Christians, when they spared not most fearfully to belch out their rage against their Maker. What open [65] hells Blasphemies were uttered by these wicked miscreants? [66] With what indignation and reproach did they mation, That all English Monand Women that Idid not depart the Country within 24 hours should be hanged drawn and quartered, and that the Irish Houses that kept am of the English Children, should be burned. And further saith, That the said Rebels hurned town Protestant Bibles, and then said, That it was Hell fire that burnt. Jurat, Jan. 7. 1641.

[66] John Kerdif, Clerk of the County of Tyron, deposeth inter alia, That Friar Malon of Skerries, did take the poor mens Bibles which he found in the Boat, and cut them in pieces, and cast them into the sire with these words, That he would deal in like manner mith all Protestant and Puitan Bibles. Jurat. Feb. 8, 1641.

Henry Eisher of Powerscourt in the County of Wicklow, deposets, That the Rebels entred the Parish Church at Powerscourt, and burnt up the Pews, Pulpit, Chests and Bibles belonging to the said Church, with extream violence and triumph, and expressing of hatred to Religion. Jurat. Jan. 25.1641.

Adam Clover of Slonoly in the County of Cavan, duly sworn, deposeth, That Jumes O Rely, Hugh Brady, and other Rebels, did oftentake into their hands the Protestant Bibles, and westing them in the dirty mater, did sive or six times dash the same on the face of this Deponent and other Protestants, saying, Come, I know you love a good Lesson, here is an excellent one for you; come to morrow, and you shall have as good a Sermon as this; and used other scornful and disgraceful words unto them: And further saith, That draging divers Protestants by the hair of the bead, and in other cruel manner, into the Church, there stripped robbed, whipped, and most cruelly used them; saying, If you come to morrow you shall hear the like Sermon. Jurat. Jan. 4.1641.

Edward Slack of Gusteen in the County of Fermanagh, Clerk, deposeth, That the Rebels there took his Bible, opened it, and laying the open side in a puddle of water, leaped and trampled upon it, saying, A plague on it, this Bible hath bred all the quarel; and that haho ped within few weeks all the Bibles in Ireland should be used as that was, or worse, and that none should be left in the Kingdom. Jurat. Jan. 4.1641.

tear, trample under their feet, the facred Word of GOD! How despitefully did they upbraid the Profession of the Truth to those blessed Souls, whom neither by Threats nor Terrors, Pains nor Torments, they could draw to forfake their Religion!

A,

to

hat

ter

to ari-

not

Out

lifb

ered

ig.

hey

124 bels

irat.

riar

cut

like

bels

Bi-

mes

Bie

face

bere

his;

rag-

rch,

YOU

bels

and

are.

But I shall not here touch any further upon those who dyed thus gloriously; this will be a worthy Work for some more able Pen to undertake, and indeed fit for a Martyrology. If we shall take a Survey of the Primitive Times, and look into the Sufferings of the first Christians that suffered under the Tyranny and cruel Persecutions of those Heathenish Emperours, we shall not certainly find any one Kingdom, though of a far larger Contitinent, where there were more Christians suffered, or more Uparallell'd Cruelties acted in many years upon them, than were in Ireland, within the space of the first two months after the breaking out of this Rebellion. And howsoever [67] some by outward inflictions and tortures were drawn to profess the change of their Religion, and had presently their reward: for many of those they suddenly dispatched with great scorn, saying, It was sit to send them out of the world in that good mood; [68] yet I. dare say we shall find many

[67] Alexander Creighton of G'assough in the County of Monaghan, Gent. deposeth, That be beard it credibly reported among the Rebels aforesaid at Glassough, that Hugh Mac O Degan, a Priest, had done a most meritorious Act in drawing betwixt fourty and sisty English and Scotish in the Parish of Ganally, in the County of Fermanagh, to reconcliation with the Church of Rome, and aster giving them the Sacrament, demanded of them whether Christs Body was really in the Sacrament or no? And they said Yea: And that he demanded further, Whether they sheld the Pope to be supream head of the Church? They likewise answered, He was: And that thereupon he presently told them, they were in a good Faith; and for fear they should sall from it, and turn Hereticks, he and the rest that were with him cut all their throats. Jurat. March 1. 1641.

[68] John Glass of Montwrath in the Queens County, sworn and examind, saith That Florence Fit-Patrick of the said County, Esquire, having received Master John Nicholson and his Wife Ann Nicholson, under his Protection, did endeavour all he could to turn them to Master than Nicholson; but they both professed, that rather than they would either for sake their Religion, or sight against their Countreymen, they would die the death, the Husband profession, or sight against their Countreymen, they would die the death, the Husband profession, bow much they abhorred it, and his Wise evenshewing greater Resolution: They would have had her burnt her Bible; but her answer was, Before she would either burn her Bible, or turn against her Countreymen, she would die upon the point of the Sword; which was made good by them; for on a Sabbath day in the morning before Master, they were cruelly butchered and murdred by the command of the said Florence Fiz Patrick: The Instrument that acted the Villany, was one John Harding, who since bath been beyond all expression tormented in his conscience, and with continued apparitions of them (as he conceived) in such manner as he murdred them; so as he is even now consumed away with the borror of it, as is most frequently reported among the Rebels. Jurat. April 8. 1642. thus cruelly put to Death, equal to some of those antient Worthies for their Patience, Constancy, Courage, Magnanimity in their sufferings, not accepting Deliverance, but triumphing and insulting with their last breath, over the Insclency,

21

V

fi

0

G

in

C

ft

P

ar

C

A

W

ti

li

m

a

0 ci

Rage and Malice of their most inhumane and cruel Persecutors.

We shall find in the Roman Story, during the several cruel Contestations betwixt Marius and Sylla, when their Factious Followers silled the whole City of Rome with Streams of Blood, strange and most incomparable Passages of Friendships; one exposing himself to all manner of Dangers for the preservation of his Friend of a contrary Faction; Servants willingly facrificing themselves to save the Lives of their beloved Masters. But here on the contrary, what open Violations of all the Bands of Humming and Friendship? No Contracts, no Promises observed; Quarter given in the most solemn manner, with the greatest Oaths and severest Execrations, under hand and seal, suddenly broken. The Irish Landlords making a pres of their English Tenants; the Irish Servants betraying their English Masters; and every one esteeming any Act wherein they could declare their Hattel and Malice most against any of the Brittish Nation, as gallant, and truly meritorious.

It is not to be denied, but that the first and most bloody Executions were made in the Province of Ulster, and there they continued longest to execute their rage and cruelty; yet must it also be acknowledged, that all the other three Provinces did concur with them, as it were, with one common consent to destroy and pluck up by the roots all the British planted throughout the Kingdom. And for this purpose they wenton, not only murding, striping, and driving out all of them, Men, Women, and Children, but they laid waste their Habitations, burnt their Evidences, defaced in many places all the Monuments of Civility and Devotion, the Courts and Places of the English Government; nay, as some of themselves express it, they resolved not to lease them either Name or Posterity in Ireland.

How they proceeded on in this Work, or how far they cosoperated each with other, will be a Task of a large fize, and more proper for another place in this Story.

I hall here conclude this Discourse concerning the Cruelties exercised upon

he

th,

an-

ati-

ge,

ter-

ive-

and laft

ncy,

effa.

the

ara.

Dan.

wil-

But

anity

en in ions,

prey ters;

atred truly

Weit ccutt other

nfem

r the

Arip.

y laid

ill the nglif

101 10

each

anos

upon

the

the Brittish and Protestants, with these following Examinations. They Here folare Eight in number, two Witnesses, as it were, taken out of each Pro- low sevevince to declare their bloody Proceedings: I shall begin with Munster, nations tafrom whence we have yet very few Examinations brought up, the chiefest ken upon of them having been most unhappily carried another way. Therefore I Oath, of sehave thought fir, for the more full expressing their Miseries, to insert their rid mur-General Remonstrance, made upon the Conclusion of the late Cessation, ders, and in the year 1643. The two next enfuing are concerning the Province of most abo-Conaught, then those of the Province of Ulfter; and lastly, two Examina- minable cruelties tions taken of some Acts of Cruelty committed within the Province of Lem- acted fer. I have made choice, for the most part of them, of such as have been within the put in by persons of good Quality, of known Integrity and Credit. They four Proare all upon Onth, as all the other Examinations concerning Cruelties before-mentioned likewise are. I shall leave the several Particulars to the Consideration of such as shall please to take the Pains to read them over. And I may well say of them, in respect of the former Civelties inserted, as was faid to the Prophet Ezekiel in another case, Turn thee, yet again, and thou shalt see greater Abominations than these.

Ezek.8.13

A GENERAL REMONSTRANCE of the Distressed PROTESTANTS IN THE PROVINCE OF MUNSTER.

Etting forth, from the gasping Condition of their most sad and distressed Souls, That whereas the Province of Munster, through the vast Expence of English Treasure and Blood, was reduced from the height of Barbarism to such a degree of Civility, that the Power and Dignity of the English Crown, was much Advanced and Extended by the Surest and Noblest Bonds of a Flourishing People; those of Religion, Civility and Profit: Of Religion, witnessed by the Enlarged Congregations both in Cathedral and Parochial Churches: Civility by the many costly Plantations, fair and strong Buildings, plentiful Markets, and bountiful Hospitality: And Profit, by the free Trade and Commerce throughout Christendom. Lands fully Improved, abounding bounding with Herds and Flocks of all forts of the best English Cattel, which enabled us to advance great Sums to His Majesties Customs, contribute large Subfidies, and to Supply the West of England with such a considerable proportion of Wooll and Cattel, that a great part of the Trade of those parts subfifted thereby. And this begun at the great charge of the English Undertakers, in the time of Queen Elizabeth of famous memory; fince when few parts of Christendom from their beginning (in so short space) had such a Rife and Growth; which was not alone to our selves, but the very Natives must confess, that their Estates were hugely augmented by our Improvements. And therefore let it not be wondred at, that when we consider from what we are fain, to what we are faln; if the pain of Loss, strive to equal that of Sense; and if the depth of our Miseries have not sunk our Souls to stupidity, we may compare our Woes to the saddest Parallel of any Story. Our Temples demolished, or worse, prophaned by Sacrifices to Idols; our Houses and Castles become ruinous heaps, our Nation extirpated, destroyed: No Quality, Age, Sex, priviledged from Massacres and lingring Death; by being robbed and stripp'd naked, through Cold or Famine, Passages of a notable piece of Clemency and Mercy. The famished Infants of Murdred Parents Swarm in our Streets, and for want of Bread perish before our Faces; and many of our yet miserable Remnant, which lived plentifully, and relieved others, are forced to ask Relief, and those they ask of, vonstrained by want to refuse them; So as undoubtedly our present Miferies are not far distant of those of Samaria's Siege; and all those cast upon us by this Unparallell'd Rebellion, at a time when we were most consident and secure, more and greater Immunities and Bounties being granted by his Majesty that now is, than ever was by his Royal Progenitors; for what Cause, Offence, or least seeming Provocation, our Souls never imagine (Sin excepted) (ave that we were Protestants, and His Majesties Loyal Subjects, and could not endure their Poysonous Breaths to belch out such Prophaneness, as in a deep measure pierced and wounded the Sacred Fame of our King; and to colour this, we must go under the noturious Names of first Puritans, and later of Roundheads; for partiS

5-

at

nd

he

ts

ch

he

g-

ed

we

ind

ity,

ory.

ols;

pa-

Ja-

ked,

ency

n in

and

and

con-

Mihose vere ouns by ning that and Pronered e nofor. artiparticular instances, time would fail, and length weary the Reader. But we are altogether confident to make it manifest, by abundant instances, That the Depopulations in this Province of Munster, do well near equal those of the whole Kingdom. The Particulars whereof, as of the multitude of Inhuman Cruelties, were Collected and Reduced to several Instances, with ample Proof. by the many Months Endeavours of a Reverend Divine, one Arch-Deacon Biss, thereunto Authorized by vertue of a Commission under the Broad Seal of this Kingdom; who was most barbarously murthered by the Irish, expressing that to be the cause. And because it may be thought requisite to touch something of the Demeanours of the Irish since the Cessation, as well as before: many English have been murthered as they Travelled, with other Expressions of that utter detestation of the English, that if any remain (which few do) nor surely will do, that can but breathe elsewhere; then must they be in a degree worse than any known Slavery: And likewise for other parts of the Cessation, they have been totally broken, and our Quarters, being of large Extent, universally taken from us, even to the Walls of our Gari-Sons: wherein we have often call d to the chief of them for Justice; which being denied (or which is worse) delayed, want of means to justifie our selves, leaves us without Remedy. All which we pour forth our Griefs and Supplications, above, to GOD alone; and here on Earth, to our Dread Soveraign.

The

Province of Mun-

The Examination of Ann the late Wife of John Sherring, late of the Territory of Ormond, near the Silver-works in the County of Tipperary, aged about twenty five years, Sworn and Examined, deposeth and saith,

Hat about Candlemas was two years, the faid John Sherring her then Husband, going from his Farm, which he held from Mr. John Kenedy Elq; near to the Silverworks, one Hugh Kenedy, one of the Brothers of the faid John Kenedy, a cruel Rebel, together with a great Multitude of Irish Rebellious Souldiers, then and there fiercely affaulted and set upon her aid Husband, and upon one William Brock. William Laughlin, Thomas Collop, and eight more English Protestant Men, and about ten Women, and upon some Children in their company, and then and there stript them of their Cloaths; and then with Stones, Poleaxes, Skeins, Swords, Pikes, Darts, and other Weapons, most barbarously massacred and murdered her said Husband, and all those Protestant Men, Women, and Children: In the time of which Massacre, a most loud and tearful Noise and Storm of Thunder, Lightning, Wind, Hailltones and Rain began: The time being on a Sabbath-Day, about an hour before Night, the former part of that Day being all very fair, but that Thunder, Lightning and Tempest, happening suddenly after the Massacre was begun, much affrighted and terrified this Deponent and many others, infomuch that those Murderers themselves confesfed it be a fign of Gods anger and threatning of them for fuch their then cruelty; yet it deterred them not, but they perfifted in their Bloody Act, until they had murdered those said English Protestants, and had hack'd, hew'd, halh'd, stabb'd, and so massacred them, that many of them were cut all to pieces; and her Husband for his part had thirty grievous Wounds then and there given him, (viz) some through or near his hear, ten mortal wounds in his head, three in his belly, and in either arm four, and the rest in his thighs, legs, back and neck: And that murder done, those barbarous Rebels tied Wyths about their Necks, and drew them out of the Refining Mill (where indeed they flew them) and threw them or most of them into a deep hole, (formerly made) one upon another, fo that none of those twenty three men, women, nor children, didescape death. How beit, one The. Ladell, a Scottiffe man, and one George Kelfy, who then and there endured and had many grievous Wounds, and being left on the Ground for Dead, crawled up, (after the Rebels were gone away) and with much difficulty escaped with their Lives : And further faith, That such was God's Judgment upon the faid Hugh Kenedy, for that bloody fact, that he presently fell into a most desperate

desperate Madness and Distraction, and could not rest Day nor Night; yet covering to do more mischief upon the English, but being prevented, and des nied to do it, he about a week after drowned himself in the next River to the Silverworks, but his barbarous and wicked Souldiers went on in their wickedness, and afterwards bragged how they had killed a Minister and his Wife and four Children near the City of Limrick; and this Deponent is too well affured, that those and other Irish Rebels in that part of the Country, exercifed and committed a great number of bloody Murders, Robberies, and Outrages upon the Persons and Goods of the Protestants, so as very Tew escaped with their Lives, and none at all saved their Goods. further faith, That all the Popish Gentry in the Country thereabouts, especially all those of the Septs, and Names of the O Breans, and the Coghluns, and the Kenedies, were all Actors in the present Rebellion against his Majesty; and either acted, affisted, incited or consented to all the Murders, Robberies, Cruelties, and Rebellious Acts aforefaid. And the further faith. That by means of the faid Rebellion, her faid Husband and the were at Werinwood about Candlemas 1641. robbed and deprived of their Cattel, Houlholdstuff, Corn, Mault, Provision, ready Money, Debts, the Benefit of their Lease, and other their Goods and Chattels, of the value, and to their Lois, of one hundred and threefcore Pounds at the least; and that the faid John Kenedy Esquire, their Landlord, was the Man that so deprived and robbed them thereof; and the other Rebels stript her stark naked. Turat. Febr. 10. 1643.

> Henry Jones. Henry Brereton.

9

d

en

(1-ers

of her

lop,

me

ths,

her

ind.

2 0

der,

Sab-

eing

Sud-

De-

ifelcru-

until

w'd, ll to and unds

ghs

tied here

nole,

men,

ottish

nany

i up,

with

n the molt

crate

Ann Sherring.

The Examination of John Goldsmith, Parson of Brashoul in vince of the County of Mayo, Sworn and Examined, faith, Conaright.

Hat the Lord of Mayo being to convoy all those of Castle-Burre to Galway, viz. Sir Henry Bingham with all his Company, and the Bishop of Killalla, with all his Company, with many of the Neighbouring English, being about threescore in number, whereof there were some fiscen Ministers, covenanted with one Edmund Bourk for the safe convoy of the same Parties upon a certain day; and the said Lord of Mayo appointed them all to meet him at Belgharah, having first separated this Deponent from them to attend his Lady in the work of the Ministry. At which day, the titulary citulary Archb shop and the Lord of Mayo meeting with their whole number went on their Journey to Shreal; at which place the Lord of Mayo left them in the custody of the faid last named Edmund Bourk: But as one Mr. Bringhurft told the Deponent, the Lord of Mayo was not gone far from them, but the faid Edmund Bourk drew out his Sword, directing the rest what they should do, and began to massacre those Protestants, and accordingly some were shot to death, some stabb'd with Skeins, some run through with Pikes, some cast into the water and drowned, and the women that were strip: ped naked, lying upon their Husbands to fave them, were run through with Pikes; and very few of those English then and there escaped alive, but the most part were murdred in the place: Amongst the rest, the Bishop of Killalla escaped with his Life but was then and there wounded in his head; and one Mr. Crowd a Minister, was then and there so beaten with cudgels on his feet, that he died shortly after. And this Deponent further faith, That in the Town of Slige 40 Persons of English and Scotish, were by the Rebels Stript and lock'd up in a Cellar, and about Midnight a Butcher, which was fent unto them on purpole, with his Ax knocked them all on the heads, and fo then and there murdred them : Which Butcher coming afterwards to Cafile Curre, did there confess his bloody Fact.

In Tirawly in the County of about 30 or 40 English (formerly turned Papists) had their Choice given them, whether they would die by the Sword, or drown themselves: They making choice of drowning, were bought to the Sea-fide by the Rebels, who had their Skeins drawn in their hands, and forced them to wade into the Sea: The Mothers, with their Children in their arms (crying for drink) having waded to the chin, at length cast or dived themselves and Children into the Sea, yielding themselves to the Mastery of the Waves, and so perished.

The Torments the Rebels would use to the Protestants to make them confess their Moneys, were these, viz. Some they would take and wrythe Wyths about their heads, till the Blood sprang out of the crown of their heads; others they would hang until they were halt dead, then they would let them down; and do the same to often over, until they confessed their Moneys.

And this Deponent further faith. That a young youth of about fifteen years of age, the Son of Mr. Montgomery the Minister, meeting with a bloody Rebel who had been his Schoolmaster, this Rebel drew his Skein, and began suriously to shish and cut him therewith; the Boy cried unto him, Good Master do not kill me, but whip me as much as you will; nevertheless the merciless and cruel Rebel most barbarously murdred him.

A Scorchman travelling in the high-way, with his Wife and Children, near were beset by the Rebels, who wounded and stabb'd him with their P kes, put him alive upon a Car, brought him to a Ditch and

buried

buried him alive, as the poor Wife afterwards (with great grief) told him this Deponent.

The Vicar of Urras turned Papist, and became Drummer to Captain Bourk, and was after murdred for his Pains by the Robels.

Another Setchman near Ballenben was hanged by the Rebels.

Jurat. 30 Decembris 1643. Henry Jones, Henry Brereton.

fe

r.

m gith

ip:

ith

the ella

hat

n of ck'd

n on here here

nerly

e by

were their Chil-

a calt

COM

yths

thers

; nwo

years.

y Re-

an fu-

Aer do is and near

d him

buried

70. Goldsmith.

The Examination of Jane, the Wife of Thomas Stewart, late The Proof the Town and County of Sligo, Merchant; Sworn and Ex-Conaught. amined before Hu Majesties Commissioners in that behalf Authorized: Deposeth and Saith, Hat after the present Rebellion was begun, viz. about the beginning of December 1641. her faid Husband living as a Merchant in the Town aforesaid, with her this Deponent, as for twenty six years he had done in very good Estate and Condition; and having continually furnished the Inhabitants of that part thereabouts with all forts of Wares and Merchandize; and by that course having acquired and gained to himself an Estate of good value: He the said Thomas Stewart, and she this Deponent, then possessing that Estate, were then at Sligo aforesaid, by Andrew Crean of Slogo Esquire, then High Sheriff of that County, Neil O Hart of Donelly in the faid County Gentleman, Roger O Conner of Skarden in the lame County, Gent. Donnel O Conner of Gent. Brother-in-law to Teige O Conner Slige, Richard O Crean of Tirreragh Gent. Fobn O Crean Elq, and a Justice of Peace, Son to the said Andrew Crean, Anthony Screan of near Ballyshany, Gent. forcibly deprived, robbed and despoiled of their Houshold-Goods, Wares, Merchandiz, Specialties, Cattel, Horses, Plate, Money, and other Goods and Chattels, of the value of one thouland two hundred pounds Sterl, or thereabouts: Which robbery and outrage was committed in or about the beginning of December aforelaid, at the very time of the Rebels surprizing, robbing and pillaging of all the English and Scots of the Town of Sligo. In the doing whereof not only the Persons, Rebels before named, but also Teige O Conner Sligo, now of the Castle of Sligo, General of the Rebels in those parts; James French of Slige aforesaid, Esq; a Justice of the Peace (a notorious and Cruel Rebel) Brian O Conner of Deumcleer, Gent. Captain Charles O Con-

0 2

ner

to day

ner a Friar, and Captain Hugh O Conner, all three Captains, and Brothers to the faid Teige O Conner Stigo, Captain Patrick Plunket near Killoony inthe fame County (a Justice of the Peace) Captain Phelim O Conner, Captain Tei, e O Conner of the Glan, Captain Con O Conner of the same, and divers others whose Names she cannot for the present remember, were most forward and cruel Actors; and those Rebels having altogether deprived and stripped all the Brittish of all their Estates they had, she this Deponent, and her Hulband, and many other Brittish were lest in that Town, and among the rest, there were left there, which she can well remember, viz. William Braxton, the Deponent and her Husband and fix Children, Fames Scot and his Son of the age of four or five years, Sampson Port and his Wife, Mary Port and her Father (of the Age of seventy years, or thereabouts) John Little, Arthur Martin, William Dowlittle, and his Wife and Children, William Carter, and John Lewes, and Elizabeth his Wife, Robert Scyens, Elizabeth Harlow, and one woman that was great with Child, and within a month of her time, Isabel Beard, who was great with Child, and very near her time, and others whom the cannot name; which Brittish People (although they were promised fair quarter, and taken into the Protection of the faid Teigeo Conner Sligo, who promised them a Collection) yet they were daily threatned to be murdred, if they would not turn Papilts in one month then next after; which for faving of their lives they were enforced to do: Notwithstanding which about the fixth of Fanuary then next following, the said 0 Conner Sligo (having before called a Meeting of his Followers and Kindred, in the Counties of Sligo and Letrim, and confidered with them, and with a Covent of Friars of the Abbey of Slige for three days together, when they (at in Council) Il the Men. Women, and Children of the Brittish that then could be found within the fame Town (faving this Deponent, who was to fick that the could not flir) were summoned to go into the Goal, and as many as could be met withal were carried and put into the Goal of sligh where about twelve a clock in the night they were fripped flark naked, and most of them were most cruelly and barbarously murdred with Swords, Axes and Skeins, and particularly by two Butchers, named James Buts and Rebert Buts of Sligo, who murdered many of them; wherein also were Actors Charles O Conner the Friar, and Hugh O Conner aforenamed, Brother to the find Teige O Conner Sligo, and Teige O Sheile, Kedagh O Hart Labourer, Richard Walfh and Thomas Walfh, the one the Jaylor, the other a Butcher, and divers others whom she cannot name : And faith, That above 30 of the British which were so put into the Goal, were then and there murdred; befides Robert Gumble, then Provost of the faid Town of Sligo, Edward Newsham and Edward Mercer, who were wounded and left for dead amongst the seft, and Jo. Stewart this Deponents Son, which four being the next day found alive, yet all befineared with Blood, were spared to live. particulars the Deponent was credibly told by those that so escaped, and by her Irish Servants, and others of the Town; and faith, that some of the Women so murdred being big with Child (by their Wounds received) the ve ry Arms and Legs of the Children in their Wombs appeared and were thrust out; and one Woman, viz. Isabel Beard, being in the House of the Friars, and hearing the lamentable Cry that was made, ran into the Street, and was purfued by one of the Friars men unto the River, where the was barbaroufly murdred, and found the next day with the Childs feet appearing, and thrult out of her Wounds in her fides. And further faith, That on the faid fixth day of Fanuary there were murdred in the Streets of the Town of Sligo, thefe Brittish Protestants following, viz. William Sheries and John Sheiles his Son, William Mapwel and Robert Akin. And the Deponent further faith, (as the was credibly informed by the Persons before-named) that the inhuman Rebels after their Murders committed in the faid Goa's laid and placed some of the dead Bodies of the naked murdred men upon the naked Bodies of the women, in a most immodest posture, not fit for chaste Ears to hear: In which posture they continued to be seen the next morning by those Irish of the Town that came into the faid Goal, who were delighted and rejoyced in those bloody Murders and uncivil Actions: And that they of the Irish that came to bury them, stood up to the mid-leg in the Blood and Brains of those that were so murdered, who were carrried our, and cast into a Pit digged for that purpose in the Garden of Mr. Ricrofts, Minister of Sligo. And the further faith, That whereas the River of Sligo was before very plentiful of Fish, it did not for a long time after those Murders, afford any Fish at all: And this Deponent faw the Friars in their White Habits, in great Companies in Procession, going to functifie the Water, casting thereinto Holy Water: She faith alfe, That the Prior of the Covent of sligo, after the murder of the faid Woman in the River, fell frantick, and ratt fo about the Streets, and continued in that frenzy for three or four weeks; and laith, That of her fix Children, three were starved and dyed, after her Release of Imprisonmen's which had been for Eighteen Months amongst the Rebels.

Jurat. 23 Aprilis 1644. Henry Jones. Henry Brereton.

hers

the

eige

thers

d all

Hul-

reff,

axton

s Son

rt and

Little.

Car-

cabeth

nthof

r time,

h they reige 0

threaten next faid 0

indred, with a

where tifh that

who was

f Sligo

ed, and

s, Axes

and Ro-

er to the

abourer, Butcher,

o of the red; beard Newongst the next day found

Signum predict. VVV. Janæ Stewart, alias Menize. Province of Uniter. Captain Anthony Stratford of Charlemont in the County of Armagh Efg; Aged Threescore years, or thereabouts; Sworn and Examined before His Majesties Commissioners, by vertue of a Commission in that behalf, directed under the Great Seal of Ireland, Deposeth and Saith.

Hat these Protestant Ministers following, about the beginning of the present Rebellion, were murdered in the Counties of Tyrone, Armagh, viz. Mr. John Matthew, Mr. Blyth, Mr. Hastings, Mr. Smith, Mr. Durragh, Mr. Birge, and eight more, vvhose Names this Deponent hath forgotten, by the Rebels, none of which would the Rebels permit to be buried; the Names of fuch as murdred, this Examinant knoweth not; his cause of knowledge of the faid murders is, that some of his this Deponents Servants, who were among the Rebels, did give him this rela tion, and he verily believeth them; and besides, this Deponent heard the fame confessed and averred by many of the Rebels themselves, and by some of those Protestants that had escaped; and that he this Deponent was a Prisoner among the Rebels at Castle-Causield, near the place of those murders, where he continued fourteen Months. And further faith, The in Dungannon, in the County of Tyrone, or near thereunto, the Rebels murdred three hundred and fixteen Prorestants; and between Charlmount and Dungamon, above four hundred, that were murdred and drowned at and in the River by Benburb, the Black-Water, between the Counties of Atmagh and Tyrone, two hundred and fix Protestants; and Patrick MacCrew of Dungannon aforesaid, murdred thirty one in one morning; and two young Rebels, viz, John Begbrian and Hary, murdred in the faid County of Tyrone, one hundred and fourty poor women and children that could make no relistance; and that the wife of Brian Kelly of Loghal in the County of Armagh (one of the Rebels Captains) did with her own hands murder foury five. And this Deponent further faith, That one Thomas King, Sometimes Serjeant to the late Lord Caulfield's Company (which this Deponent commanded) he being inforced to serve under the Rebels, and was one of their Provost Marshals, gave the Deponent a List of every Housholders Name so murdered, and the number of the Persons so mur dred ; which Lift this Deponent durft not keep. At Portadown there wet drowned at several times about three hundred and eight, who were lent away by about fourty, or fuch-like numbers at once, with Convoys, and there drowned: There was a Lough near Loghgal aforesaid, where were drowned above two hundred, of which this Deponent was informed by Leveral feveral Persons, and particularly by the wife of Dr. Hodges, and two of her fons, who were present, and designed for the like end; but by Gods mercy that gave them savour in the eyes of some of the Rebels, they escaped; and the said Mrs. Hodges and her sons gave the Deponent a List of the Names of many of those that were so drowned, which the Deponent durst not keep; & saith, that the said Dr. Hodges was employed by Sir Phelim O Neil, to make Powder; but he sailing of his undertaking, was first half hanged, then cut down, and kept Prisoner three months, and then murdred with sorty sour more, within a quarter of a mile of Charlmount associated, (they being by Tirlogb Oge O Neil, Brother to Sir Phelim. sent to Dungannon Prisoners, and in the way murdred.) This Deponent was shewed the Pit where they were all cast in.

At a Mill-Pend in the Parish of Killamen in the County of Tyron, there were drowned in one day 300; and in the same Parish there were murdred of English and Scotish 1200, as this Deponent was informed by Mr. Birge, the late Minister of the said Parish, who certified the same under his hand, which Note the Deponent durft not keep: The faid Mr. Birge was murdred three months after : All which muders were in the first breaking out of the Rebellion, but the particular times this Deponent cannot remember, neither the persons by whom they were committed. This Deponent was credibly informed by the faid Serjeant, and others of this Deponents Servants (who kept company with the Rebels, and faw the fame) that many young Children were cut into quarters and gobbets by the Rebels, and that eighteen Scotish Infants were hanged on a Clothiers Tenterhook, and that they murdred a young fat Scotife man, and made Candles of his Greafe; they took another Scotish man and ripped up his Belly, that they might come to his finall Guts, the one end whereof they tied to a Tree, and made him go round until he had drawn them all out of his Body; they then faying. That they would try whether a dogs or a Scotch mans Guts were the longer.

Deposed March 9. 1643. before wi,

Henry Jones. Henry Brereton.

Ar٠

and

f a

Ire-

g of

rone,

mith,

onent

ermit

rveth

s this

rela

rd the

nd by nt was thole

That

Rebels

lmount

at and

of At-

CCTEW

d two

County

could

in the hands

ich this Is, and every lo mui

ere fent ys, and e were ned by

Leveral

Anthony Stratford.

Province The Examination of Robert Maxwell Clerk, Arch-Deacon of of Ulifer. Down, Sworn and Examined, Deposeth and Saith, interalia,

Hat by Command from Sir Phelim O Neil, the Rebels dragged the Deponents Brother, Lieutenant Fames Maxwell, out of his Bed, in the rage and height of a burning Fever; and lest any of his Acquaintance or Friends should bury him, they carried him two miles from any Church, and there cruelly Butchered him, when he neither knew what he did or faid; and thus Sir Phelim paid him two hundred and fixty pound which he owed him: And his Wife Griffel Maxwell being in Child-birth, the Child half born and half unborn, they stript stark naked, drove her about an Arrows flight to the Blackswater, and drowned her: Thelike they did to another English Woman in the same Parish, in the beginning of the Rebellion, which yvas little inferiour, if not more unnatural and barbarous, than the roafting of Mr. Watsonalive, after they had cut a Collop out of either Buttock. farther faith, That a Scotish vyoman yeas found in the Glinwood lying dead, her belly ripped up, and aliving Child crawling in her Womb cut out of the Cawl; and that Mr. Starkey, School-Master at Armagh, a Gentleman of good Parentage and Parts, being upwards of an hundred years of age, they Aripe naked, caused two of his Daughters, Virgins, being likewise naked, to support him under each Arm, he being not able to go of himself; and in that posture carried them all three a quarter of a mile, to a Turf-pit, and drowned them, feeding the lufts of their Eyes and the cruelty of their hearts with the felf-same Objects at the same time. At the Siege of Augher, they would not kill any English Beaft, and then eat it, but they cut Collaps out of them being alive, letting them there roar till they had no more flesh upon their Backs, so that sometimes a Beast would live two or three days together in that torment; the like they did at Armagh, when they murdred Hugh Echlin Efq; they hanged and murdred all his Irifh Servants which had any vvay proved faithful or useful to him during this Rebellion. And as touching Exemplary Constancy in Religion, this Deponent faith, That Henry Cowel Elq; a gallant and well bred Gentleman, was murdred because he vyould not consent to marry a Beastly Trull, Mary Ny Neil, 2 near Kiniwoman of Sir Phelim's: He was profered his Life without the Blouse, if he would have gone to Mass, but he chose rather to die, than to do either. There was made the like proffer of Life for going to Mals, to Robert Ecklin, a Child of Eleven or Twelve years of Age, but he also refuled it, faying, He saw nothing in their Religion for which be would change his own. And this Deponent further faith, That very many of the British Protestants

the

the Rebels buried alive, and took great pleasure to hear them speak unto them, as they digged down old Ditches upon them; except those whom they thus buried, they buried none of the Protestants, neither would permit any that furvived to perform that duty for them: And further faith, That the Rebels would fend their Children abroad in great Troops, especially near unto Kinnard, armed with long Wattles and Whips, who would therewith beat dead mens bodies about their privy members, until they beat, or rather thrashed thed them off, and then would return in great joy to their Parents, who received them for such Service as it were in triumph. And further faith, That if any women were found dead lying with their faces downward, they would turn them upon their backs, and in great flocks refort unto them, censuring all parts of their bodies, but especially such as are not fit to be named, which afterwards they abused so many ways, and so filthily, as chafte ears would not endure the very naming thereof.

Many of the Protestants the Rebels would not kill out-right, but being half dead, would to leave them, entreating for no better favour at their hands two or three days after, but to kill them out-right, which sometimes was granted, fometimes denied.

36

in

ca

h,

d;

ed

3/5

WS

ner

ich

of

And

ead.

the

of

hey

, to

d in

and heir

Au-

Col-

nore

hree

mur-

vhich

nd as

That

be-eil, a

it the

an to o Ro-

efuled

own.

ffants

the

A young youth having his Back-bone broken, was found in a Field, having like a Beaft eaten all the grafs round about hinly the Deponent could not Tearn that they killed him out, but that they removed him to a place of better Pasture; so that in those most bloody and execrable Wretches, that of the holy Ghost is clearly verified, The very mercy of the wicked is cruelty: And further laith, That the Rebels themselves told him, this Depenent, that they murdred 954 in one morning in the County of Antrim; and that besides them, they supposed that they killed above 1700 or 1200 more, in that County: They told him likewise, that Colonel Bryan O Neil killed about 1000 in the County of Down, besides 300 killed near Killeleigh, and many hundreds both before and after in both those Counties.

At Sir Phelim's return from Lisnegarvy, some of the Soldiers forced about 24 Brittish into a house, where they burned them alive, whose terrible ourcries they defired very much to imirate and express unto others; and faith, That he heard Sir Phelim likewise report, that he killed 600 English at Garragh in the County of Derry; and that he had left neither man, woman, not Child alive in the Barony of Munterlong in the County of Tyron, and betwixt Armagh and the Newry, in the feveral Plantations and Lands of Sir Archibald Atchefon, John Hamilton Efq; the Lord Caufield, and the Lord Mount Norrice: And faith allo, That there were above 2000 of the Brittish murdred for the most part in their own Houses, whereof he was informed by a Scotsman, who was inthose parts with Sir Phelim, and saw their houses filled with their dead hedies. In the Glinwood towards Dromore, there were flaughtred, as the Rebels told the Deponent, up wards of twelve thouland in all, who were all killed in their flight to the County of Down: The number of the people drowned at the Bridge of Portadown, are diverfly reported according as men staid amongst the Rebels, this Deponent who staid as long as any and had better intelligence then most of the English among it them, and had beft reason to know the truth, faith, There were (by their own teport) 190 drowned with Mafter Fullerton: At another time they threw 140 over the faid Bridge; At another time 36 or 37 and fo continued drowning more or fewer, for feven or eight weeks, to as the fewest which can be supposed there to have perished, must needs be above 1000 besides as many more drowned betwirt that Bridge and the great Lough of Montjey, besides those who perished by the Sword, fire and famine, in Coubrassil, and the English Plantations adjacent: Which in regard there escaped not 300 out of all those quarters, must needs amount to many thousands.

P 2

Near unto the Deponents House thirty fix persons were carried to the Cure-bridge at one time, and drowned. At another time fix and fifty, Mcn, Women and Children; all of them being taken out of the Deponents Houle; and at leveral other times feveral other numbers; Belides those that were drowned in the Black-water at Kinnard. In which Town and the Parish of Tinen (whereof the Deponent was Rector) there was Drowned, Slaughtered and died of Famine, and for want of Clother, about The num-fix hundred. The Deponent might add to these many thousands more; but the Diary which he this Deponent wrote amongst the Rebels being burn-Braved ed, with his Houles Books and all his Papers; he referreth himself to within the the number in gross, which the Rebels themselves have upon inquiry, Province found out and acknowledged; which not with standing will come short of all that have been Murdred in Ireland; there being above one hundred and fifty four thousand now wanting of the British within the very precinct of Ulfter.

> And this Deponent further faith, That it was common Tabletalk amongft the Rebels, that the Choft of Malter William Fullerton, Timeth Tephes, and the most of those who were thrown over Portadown-bridge, were daily and nightly feen to walk upon the River, fometime finging of Plalins, sometimes brandishing of naked Swords, sometimes scrieching in a most hideous and fearful manner. The Deponent did not believe the same at first, neither doth he yet know whether to believe it or no; but faith that divers of the Rebels affured him that they themselves did dwell near to the same River, and being daily affrighted with those apparitions, but especially with their horrible scrieching, were in conclusion inforced to remove further into the Country: Their own Priests and Filers could not deny the truth thereof. But as it was by the Deponent Objected unto them; them; said it was but a curning slight of the Devil to hinder this great work of propagating the Catholick Faith, and killing of Hereticks; or that it was wrought by Witchcrast. The Deponent himself lived within thirteen miles of the Bridge, and never heard any man so much as doubt of the truth thereof. Howsever, obligeth no mans Faith, in regard he siw it not with his own eyes; otherwise he had as much certainty as morrally could be required of such a matter.

ġ

0

n-

be

ny

es

he

out

the fty,

De-

ides

DWD

WAS

bout

but

f to

uiry,

rt of

dred

cinct

mothy widges ing of

ve the

dwell ritions, aforced s could

them;

And this Deponent further faith; That the degenerate Pale-English, were most cruel amongst the British Protestants, being beaten from their own Linds; and were never satisfied with their Blood, until they had in a mans nor seen the list drop thereof; affrighting Sir Phelim O Neit every day with their numbers, and perswading him. That whilest they (meaning the Protestants) lived, there would neither be room for them, nor safety for him. It was easie to sour on the Cowardly and Bloody Rebel; yet no sooner were the Protestants cut off, but contrary to their expectation, the meer Irish took present possessing, of their Lands and Houses; whereat the Pale-English much grumbled; and said, Sir Phelim had not k pt promise with them; howsover, they were forced to swallow those and many other injuries.

And further faith, That he knew one Boy, that dwelt near unto himself, and not exceeding fourteen years of age, who killed at Kinnard, in one, night, fifteen able strong men with his Skein, they being disarmed, and most of their feet in the Stocks.

Another not above twelve years of age, killed two women at the Siege of Augher.

Another that was a woman and Tenant to this Deponent, killed feven men and women, of her fellow English Tenents, in one morning. And it was very usual in all parts, for the Rebels children to murder the Protestants children; and sometimes with Lath-Swords heavy, and well sharpned, they would venture upon people of riper years, cruelties not to be believed, if there were not so many eye-witnesses of them.

Deposed 22. of August, 1642:

Henry Brereton: William Aldrich.

sess but a mules their of the Devil to hinder the

The Province of Leinster. The Examination of Dame Ann Butler, Wife unto Sir Thomas Butler of Rathealin in the County of Catherlagh, Kuight; duly Sworn, Deposeth, Hat after Walter Bagnal of Dunlickny in the County of Catherlagh Elgs and Walter Butler, with a great number of men, had in a violent manner entred this Deponents House, they not able to relift, they fet frict guard over this Deponent, her Husband and Family, and brought them from their fettled dwelling unto Loghlin-Bridge, where they kept her felf, her Husband and Children in restraint for two weeks, and from thence conveyed them with a frict Guard to the Town of Kilkenny; and there, they were brought before the Lord Mount Garrot; where Walter Bagnal and James Butler, Brother to the Lord Mount Garrot, did use all means possible to move the faid Lord to put this Deponent, her Husband and Family, to death and torture; alledging that they were rank Puritan Protestants; and desperately provoking, used these words, saying, There's but one way, we or they, meaning Papills or Protestants, must perish. To which malicious Provoca-And this Deponent further depoleth, tion the faid Lord did not hearken. That Walter Bagnal, with his rebellious company, apprehended Richard Lake an English Protestant, and his Servant, with his Wife and four Children, and one Richard Taylor of Logblin-Bridge, his W fe and Children, Samuel Hatter of the fame, his Wife and Children, an English woman called Jone, and her Daughter, and was credibly informed by Derothy Renals, who had been feveral times an Eye-witnels of thele lamentable spectacles, that the had ben to the number of five and thirty English going to execution; and that the had feen them when they were executed, their Bodies exposed to devouring Ravens, and nor afforded so much as burial. Another English-woman who was newly delivered of two Children in one Birth, they violently compelled her in her great pain and fickness, to rife from her Childbed, and took the Infant that was left alive, and dashed his Brains against the stones, and after threw him into the River of the Barrow: And having a piece of Salmon to Dinner, Mr. Brian Cavanagh's Wife being with her, the the faid Mrs. Cavanogh refused to eat any part of the Salmon, and being demanded the reason, the said she would never eat any Fish that came out of the Barrow, because the had seen several Infants Bodies, and other Carkases of the English taken up in the Wear.

And this Deponent saith, That Sir Edward Butler did credibly inform her, that James Butler of Finyhinch had hanged and put to death all the English that were at Goran and Wells, and all thereabouts. And further deposeth, poseth. That she being in Kilkenny a Priloner in restraint, and having intelligence that some of her own Cattel were brought thither by Walter Bagnal, the petitioned (being in great Extremity) to the Lord of Mount Garrot, to procure her some of her own Cattel for her Relief; whereupon he recommended her Suit to the Mayor and Corporation of Kilkenny; who concluded, Because she and her Family were Protestants, and would not turn to Mass, they should have no Relief. Jane Jones, Servant to the Deponent, did fee the English formerly specified, going to their Execution; and as she conceived they were about the number of 35; and was told by Elizabeth Homes, that there were 40 gone to Execution.

Jurat. 7 Septem. 1642.

16

fq;

ner

ard

neir

lus-

yed pere

177785 to

eath efpethey, voca-

ofeth,

Lake

, and

Atter

d her

en fe-Aften

at the

to de-16-WO-

ofently

d, and

ftones,

iece of the faid

nanded ne Bat-

of the inform

all the her de-

po feth,

Ann Butler.

John Wat fon.

The Examination of Joseph Wheeler of Stancarty in the Coun- The Proty of Kilkenny, Esq; Elizabeth the Relieft of Lieutenant Wil-vince of liam Gilbert. of Captain Ridgway's Company; Rebecea Hill, the Reliet of Thomas Hill, late Lieutenant to the faid Captain Ridgway; Thomas Lewis, late of Kilkenny, Gent. Jonas Wheeler of Stancarty aforesaid, Gent. and Patrick Maxwel of the Graige in the same County, Gent. Sworn and Examined, Depose and Say,

Hat about Easter 1642. one Richard Philips and five others who were old Garison Soldiers, then under the Command of Captain Farrel, a Captain on his Majesties Party, were by the Command of the Lord Mount Garrot, at the End of a House in Kilkenny, hanged to Death by that cruel and bloody Rebel and Provost Marshal Thomas Cantwel, of Cantwel Court, Esq; or some of his Servants or Souldiers in his presence, who would hardly suffer them to say their Prayers after they were taken out of the Prilon before they were put to death; those poor Men dying very patiently and resolutely, in the maintainance of the Protestant Faith; but one of them, because he was an Irish man, was offered his Life if he would urn Papist, but he rather chose death, which he quickly had with the other

And further fay, That a little before Christmas 1641. Mr. William Hill of in the Queens County, Efquire, and the faid Lieutenant Thomas Hill his Son, coming to Kilkenny, to fetch home Mary Hill, the Wife of him the laid William Hill, and the laid Rebecca; one of thele Depo. nents were then and there fent for by the Lord Mount Garrot, and by him committed prisoners to the Goal of Kilkenny, where they continued in a dark Dungeon bolted for two Months, but were offered freedom if they would joyn with the Rebels, and become Papilts; but they refuled, and after the faid Lord Mount Garret was gon into Munfter with his Forces, (which was an example to all the rest of the wicked Irish there to rise unto Rebellion.) The Florence Fitz Patrick of Cafeletown in the Queens County Esquire, a Captain of the Rebels, and his Soldiers came to Kilkenny, and then and there (without refiffance of any) broke open the Goal there, and forcibly took and carried away with them into Offery aforesaid, the said William and Thomas Hill, where they kept them in miserable durance for some time, and then hanged them both; and a poore young Girle being fent from the Town of Balline. kill to lee what was become of them, and the faid Florence Fitz Patrick meeting her, couled her to be half hanged, then letten down, and after to be buried quick: And by report of one Jone Grace (that faid the was an eye-witness) the Rebels threw the dead Body of the faid William and Thomas Hill, into a Saw pir, leaving them fo far unburied, that their Heads and Legs lay bare, until the came and cover'd them with earth about a week after: And further faith, that they have credibly heard and believed. That the faid Florence Fitz Patrick having enticed a rich Merchant of Montrath to his the faid Firz Patricks House, to bring thither his goods which he promised should be fasely protected, and fasely to delivered; he, the faid Florence Fitz Patrick, possessing those goods afterwards caused the said Merchant and his Wife to be hanged; and the have credibly heard, that the faid Florence Firz Partick also hanged Lieuremant Reies and his Son, one Hughes a Shool-mafter, and diven other Protestants: And these Deponents further fay, that Master Edmond Butler, eldeft Son to the Lord Mount Garrot, Edward Butler his lecond Son, Captain Garret Blankfield, and divers other rebellious Commanders and Soldiers, to the number of 6 or 700 Horse and Foot a little before Michaelmas 1642. marched from Balliragget near to the Iron Forge of Ballinekil, and there met with Lieutenant Gilbert aforenamed Enligh William Alfrythe younger, Master Thomas Bingham the Minister, Robert Graves, Richard Bently, and about fixty more of the English Soldiers both the same parties joyned in Battle; but the English Soldiers, though fighting valiantly, and killed many Rebels (and one Walter Butler, C ptain amongst the rest) were at last so overcome with multitudes of the Rebels, that then and there they, the faid Lieutenant Gilbert William

Ь

th

Se

D

afi

die

R

ne

0.

11-ın-

yn

ord

ple

ence

Re-rce

Way

here

ged

lline-

etrick

after

d One

illiam

t their carthy

heard

a rich

hither

ly ro

goods

nd they

Lieu-

divers

Edmond

fecond

mman-

e before

orge of

Enligh

, Robert

Soldiers

though

tudes of

Gilberti

William

utler,

William Alfry, Thomas Bingham, Robert Graves, Richard Bently, and two other English Soldiers were absolutely flain, and the heads of all those seven carried to Kilkenny by those Rebels (their pipes for joy playing before them on hors: back) and on a market day which hapned to be on the next day following, those heads as triumphs of their Victories, there brought out and fet upon the Market-cross, where the Rebels, but especially the women there, and amongst the rest Elice Butler, a reputed mother of leveral baltards, yet the daughter of the laid Mount Garret, flab'd, cut and flashe those heads (the said Elice Butler drawing her skein, flasht the face of the fail William Alfry, and hit him on the nose, and those that could but get a blow or stab at those heads, seemed to account themselves happy: And the Rebels then and there put a gag in the mouth of the faid Thomas Bingham the Minister, and laying the leaf of a Bible before him, bad him preach, faying, his mouth was open. and wide enough, and one of those lewd virago's that had no weapons, struck one of the heads so with her hand, that the same night her hand grew black and blew, rankled, and the was extreamly lame with it a quarter of a year after, and that lamenels and the swelling thereof growing to an Issue, is like to continue till she die: and another of those women that with great rejoycing weat and faw those heads, did quickly after the fight thereof fall into such an altonishment and distraction, that for three or four days after the could not fleep nor reft, but cried out that ftill the faw those heads before her eyes, which heads being said by the Rebels to be the heads of Hereticks, were not afforded Christian Burial, but buried without the City in a cross high-way altogether in a hole; the buriers chopping and cutting the heads with their Spades as they threw mold upon them. And to make the manner of their burial, and the heads themselves yet more contemptible; the Rebels (over the hole where the heads were laid) fet up a long stick, whereto they fixed papers, that all may take notice of the place: And after and from that time, the rebellious roguin Boys, took up, and frequently used an Oath, By the Cross of the seven devils heads buried on Saint James Green. And further fay, that upon the testimony of a roguish Boy, that an English man that was a Maulster to one Richard Shaw of Kilkenny, had laid. He would believe the Devil as foon as the Pope; the cruel Rebel, the Provost Marshal Cantwell aforenamed, suddenly took and hanged him up in an Apple-tree till he died: And further faith, that one Uncil Grace, and diverse other Rebeis in Kilkenny, broke open the doors of the Cathedral Church there, and tobbed the same Church of the Chalices, Surplices. Ornaments, Books, Records and Writings there being; and made Gunpowder in Saint Patricks Chuch, and digged the Tombs and graves in the Churches in

in Kilkenny, under colour of getting up molds whereon to make Gunpowder: And these Deponents have credibly heard, and verily believe, that the Rebels at Goran took 25 Protestants, men, women and children, and pretending and promising to them a Convoy to Dungannon, hanged them dead in the way, in a Wood near Newrofs, and that the Rebels half hanged five more Protestants at Balliragget, by the command of the faid Captain Edward Butler, and the faid Thomas Cantwel the Marshal, and letting them down again before they were dead suffered them somewhat to recover, and then buried them quick : And these Deponents Thomas Lewis; Pairtick Maxwel, further fay, That as they have been credibly told by Walter Archer of Kilkenny a Rebel, that a poor English mans wife that went out to gather sticks, at a place about two miles from Kilkenny, was taken and hanged up by the Rebels: And the Deponents Elizabeth Gilbert, Patrick Maxwel, further, fay, That a poor woman and two children, the being the wife of one. Harry of Ballinekil, coming to Kilkenny about Candlemas was twelve month, were then and there affaulted and fet upon by the rebellious Inhabitants of that City, and hunted, baited, and drawn with dogs, cruelly stab'd with Skeins, and so miserably used, that one of the children died prefently (having the guts plukt out) and the Deponent Patrick Maxwel further faith, There were taken out of Graige by the Rebels, and hanged to death, one Fohn Stone and his wife and his fon, William Valentine, Robert Pym and his wife, one of their children of a year and a half old, and Thomas White a Merchant and his wife, who being great with child, had her belly ripped up after the was hanged, to as the child fell out of the cawl alive; Walter Sherly, Mistris Joan Salter an ancient Widow, one John a servant to Stone aforenamed; the Rebels that hanged them were Garret Forestal of Knockive, and Gibbon Forrestal of Tinybinch, and the eldest son of Richard Barron, alias Fitz Geraldin of Knockeen aforesaid, and diverse others whom the cannot name, all of the County of Catherlagh; which faid Robert Pym after he was hanged up twice, proved alive in is grave, and ftruck his hand upon his breft faying, Christ receive and with those words in his mouth was then there buried qu'el and one of those poor Protestants at Goran, by name Tristram Robinfon, the Rebels hanged him twice, thrust him through with darts, but he still continuing alive, and speaking, they buried him quick: And this Deponent Jonas Wheeler farther faith, That one old English Protestant, who was a Shepheard, and his wife going from Kilkenny towards Ballidownel, the Rebels hanged up the poor old man, and going a little off, his wife perceiving breath in her Husband, said unto him, Ob joy you are alive yet; which when some of the Rebels overshearing, hanged him out-right, and dragged him up and down

R

B

di

n

fo

d

0-

at vas

out up-

out)

his

der-

d up

alter

t to al of

chard

thers

faid with those

hang-

alive,

heeler

, and

gedup

in her

ome of up and down

down until his bowels fell out, then his wife desired them to hang her too, but they refused. And saith, That this Deponent asking the Rebels of Kilkenny, how they durst do what they did, considering the King was as gainst them? They answered, That if the King would not hold with them, they could have forty Thousand to come to assist them out of France and Spain, and bring ammunition and arms enough, and all things necessary, and fight against the King and the English. And the Deponent Elizabeth Gilbert surther saith, That she heard one James Eustace a servant to the Rebel Colonel Cullen, say publickly in Master Joseph Wheelers house in Kilkenny, Let the King take heed, for if they (meaning the Irish) had not their own desires they would bring in a foreign King; and one Tristram Dyer a Prostestant was (as his wife told this Deponent) murdered in a Wood with his own Hatchet, and covered with Leaves and Moss.

Examinations touching the Apparitions at Portnedown-Bridge, within the Province of Ulster.

James Shaw of Market-bill in the County of Armagh, Inn-keeper, Deposeth, That many of the Irish Rebels, in the time of this Deponents restraint, and staying among them, told him very often, and it was a common report that all that lived about the Bridge of Portnedown, were so affrighted with the cries and noise made there of some Spirits or Visions for revenge, as they durst not stay but sted away thence; so as they protested, affrighted to Market-bill, saying, They durst not stay nor return thither for sear of those cries and spirits, but took grounds and made creats in or near the Parish of Mullabrack, Jurat. Aug. 14. 1642.

Joan the relice of Gabriel Constable, late of Drumard in the County of Armagh, Gent. Deposeth and saith, That she hath often heard the Rebels, Owen O Farren, Patrick O Canellan, and divers others of the Rebels at Drumard, earnestly say, protest and tell one another, that the Blood of some of those that were knockt in the heads, and afterwards drowned at Portnedownsbridge, still remained on the Bridge, and would not be washed away; and that often there appeared visions or apparitions, sometimes of men, sometimes of women, brest-high above the water, ator near Portnedown, which did most extreamly and fearfully scriech and ery out for vengeance against the Irish that had murdred their bodies there; and that their crys and scrieches did so terrify the Irish thereabouts, that none durst stay nor live longer there, but sted and removed surther into the Country, and this was a common report amongst the Rebels there, and that it passed for a truth amongst them, for any thing she could ever observe to the contrary, Juras. Jan. 1. 1643.

QR

Katherine the relict of William Coke, late of the County of Armagh; Carpenter, sworn and examined, faith, That about the 20 of December, 1641. agreat number of Rebels in that County, did most barbarously drown at that time one hundred and eighty Protestants, men, women and children in the River at the Bridge of Portnedown; and that about nine days afterwards, the faw a Vilion or Spirit in the shape of a man, as the apprehended, that appeared in that River, in the place of the drowning, boltupright breast-high, with hands lifted up, and stood in that posture there, untill the latter end of Lent next following: about which time fome of the English Army marching in those Parts, whereof her Husband was one (as he and they confidently affirmed to this Depogent) faw that Spiritor Vision standing upright, and in the posture aforementioned; but after that time the said Spirit or Vision vanished and appeared no more that she And the heard, but faw not, that there were other Visions and Apparitions, and much scriechings and strange noise heard in that Riverat times afterwards. Furat, February, 24. 1643.

Elizabeth the Wife of Captain Rice Price, of Armagh, deposeth and saith, That she and other women, whose Husbands were murdered, hearing of divers Apparitions and Visions which were seen near Portnedown-Bridge, since the drowning of her Children, and the rest of the Protestants there, went unto the Bridge aforesaid about twilightin the Evening; then and there upon a sudden there appeared unto them a Vision or Spirit, assuming the shape of a Woman, wast-high upright in the water, naked, with elevated and closed hands; her Hair hanging down, very White, her Eyes seemed to twinkle; and her Skin as white Snow; which Spirit seemed to standstraight up in the Water, often repeated the the word Revenge, Revenge, Revenge, whereat this Deponent and the rest being put into a strong amazement and affright walked from the place. Jurat. January 29, 1642.

Arthur Clum of Cleweughter in the County of Caran, Esquire, desposeth, That he was credibly informed by some that were present there, that there were thirty women and young children and seven men slung into the River of Believert, and when some of them offered to swim for their lives, they were by the Rebels sollowed in Cotsy and knocked on the heads with poles; the same day they hanged two women at Turbert; and this Deponent doth verily believes that Mulmore O Rely the then Sheriss, had a hand in the commanding the murder of those sid persons, for that he saw him write two Notes which he sent to Turbert by Bryan Rely, upon whose coming these murders were committed: And those persons who were present also affirmeds that the Bodies of those thirty persons drowned did not appear upon the water till about six weeks after past; as the said Rely came to the Town, all the bodies came floating up to the very Bridger; those persons were all formerly stayed in the Town by his protection; when the rest of their Neighbours in the Town went away.

£;

KU

nil-

ays

reupun-

the

ONC

rit of that

the,

and

verat

faith,

ridge,

there,

n and

uming

h ele-

r Eyes

ned to

renge,

amaz-

42.

Atthut

Elizabeth Price Wife of Michael Prices of the Newry, depoleth, That Six Con Mac Gennis suffered his Soldiers, the Rebels, to kill Master Turge, Minister of the Newry, and several other Protestants; and he the said Sir Con Mac Cennis on his death bed was so much affrighted with apprehension that the said Master Turge so said, was still in his presence, as that he commanded no Protestants from that time should be slain, but what should be killed in Battel; and after his death, Sir Con Mac Gennis his brother, would have observed his directions, but one John Mac Gennis the young Lord of Evab and Monk Crely where earnest to have all the rest of the Protestants put to death,

Master George Creighton, Minister of Firginia, in the County of Caran, deposeth, among other particulars in his Examination, That divers women brought into his House a young woman almost naked, to whom a Regue came upon the way, these women being present, and required her to geiv him her mony or else he would kill her, and so drew his sword; her answer was, You cannot kill me upless Cod give you leave, and his will be done: Whereupon the Rogue thrust three times at her Naked body with his drawn sword, and yet never pirced her skin; whereat he being, as it seems, much consounded, went away and lest her; and that he saw this woman, and heard this particular related by divers women; who were by and saw what they reported,

Pon the view of these Examinations all taken upon Oath, it may barbarous bloody executions, and what were the courles they held to bring about so suddenly the universal destruction of all the British and Protestants there planted. It is most true that in Leinster and Munster and yet one would scarce believe it that considers the horrid particulars related in the fore-recited Examinations of those two Provinces)

they were not generally to bloody, neither did they begin their work of the enterprise upon the Castle of Dublin did cool them for a time, fo early as in the Provinces of Ulfter and Conaught.

eafily be conjectured how fatally the first plot took, how furiously the Rebels throughout all parts of the Kingdom proceeded on in their

put them to a stand and caused them to take up new Counsels; But when they had once declared themselves, they did in very few days ftrip and despoil all the English settled among them, and drove great any kind of relief in those Towns under the command of the Rebels. And were be- here I must not forget to interpose this certain truth, That in all the four fore any. Provinces the horrid cruelties used towards the British either in their bloody on given Missacres, or merciles despoiling, stripping, and extirpation of them, were generally acted in most parts of the Kingdom before they could gather themselves together, to make any considerable resistance against The cruel- their fury; and before the State had essembled their Forces, or were sty of the enabled by the power of his Majesties Arms to make any inrodes into the Counties possessed by the Rebels: A circumstance which totally destroyeth all those vain pretences and fond recriminations, which they have fince ing those Protestants most faifely taken up to palliate this their most abominable Rebellion. And which re this is not to be denied, Though it be also true that those British whom mained a- they suffered to live among them either upon condition of change of their Religion, out of private interest, or such as they kept in prison, were when at a- not put to the Sword, until the Rebels in the feveral encounters they had with his Majesties Forces suffered loss of their men, and so being enraged ceived any therewith at their return home after any difafter, they fell furiously to loss by the take revenge upon such British, whether Men, Women, or Children, as they held in most milerable Captivity with them. How far their madnels, fury, and most implacable malice, did after the manner of bruit Bealts transport them towards the deftruction of those miserable harmless souls they detained among them, doth clearly appear by feveral particulars expressed in several Examinations. I shall here insert some of them taken upon

The cruel- numbers of them even flark naked to feveral Ports on the Sea-fide, there ties acted to provide themselves passage for England, or otherways most miserably by the lrish to starve and perish, as many of them did, being inhumanely denied Eritish provocatithem.

Irifb in

mong

them

ny time

they re-

English

Enres.

murder-

T G th AT m

The ill success

tru 20

no

in

Co po WC div

> gr M Sci the fh Pa

ſta

and all of Pro the cru

the of the the rou

ma Co rak

Re tak

trult

trust from persons of good quality and credit, who were long prisoners among them.

I had in one part of Doctor Maxwels Examination (which I thought not fit wholly to infert, because it is of great length, and many particulars init, nothing tending to that purpole for which it is formerly mentioned) That about May 1642, when the Scotish Army under the command of General Major Monro had marched down from Carick fergus, taken in the Newry, beaten the Irish out of those parts with the slaughter of many of them; Sir Phelim O Neal cause 5000 British whom he detained in Armagh, Tyron, and other Parts of the North, to be miserably murdred in the space of three days: James Shaw of Market-Hill in the County of Armagh, deposeth and faith, That during the time this Deponent was in reltraint, and stayed among the Rebels, he observed and well knew that the greatest part of the Rebels in the County of Armagh went to beliege the Castle of Augher where they were repulsed, and divers of the Rebels of the Sept of O-Neals flain: In revenge whereof, the grand Rebel Sir Phelim O-Neal gave direction and warrant to one Mulmory Mac Donel, a most cruel and merciles Rebel, to kill all the English and Scotish within the Parishes of Mullebrack Logilly and Kilcluny, whereupon the faid Rebel did murder 27 Scotish and English Protestants within Musket shot of this Deponents own house; and further faith that in those three Parishes there have been before that and since, by killing, drowning, and starving, put to death above 1500 Protestants within the said three Parishes.

William Fitz-Gerald a Cleik, of Irish birth, dwelling near Armagh, and there residing when this Rebellion brake out, deposethand saith. That all places of the North where Sir Phelim O-Neal under the name of General of the Catholick Army commanded, were filled with murders of the Protestants: And that when at Angher, Lisnagarver, or any other places the Rebels received loss of their men, those that escaped, excercised their cruelty upon the Protestants every where at their return: And that about the first of May 1642. When Sir Phelim O-Neal had notice of the taking of the Newry by his Majesties Forces, he retired that night in all haste to the Town of Armagh, and the next day as well the Town of Armagh as the Cathedral Church there, and all the Villages and Hou'es in the Country round about, together with all provisions were fired by the Rebels; and many men, women and children murdered as well in the Town as in the Country round about.

:

ir

re

ed

to 25 ſs,

fts

uls

X.

on

ult

There is much more to be faid on this subject, but I shall forbear to rake further into many other soul circumstances, which would make this Rebellion appear far more odious and detestable. I shall now return to take up the publick affairs of State, where I left them in the hands of the the Lords Juftices and Council, who finding the City to grow daily more and more impetered with trangers by reason of the resort of great numbers of ill affected persons that daily made repair thereunto; They issued out several other Proclamations to prohibit the access of all frangers to the Town, and to require such as remained in the City without calling or settled babitation, to depart.

Some Troops of Horfe and of Foot raised by the Lords Justices cil, Sr Henry Tichborn being dispatched with his Regiment of Foot to Tredugh as is formerly mentioned, the Lords Justices took further order for the Regiments present raising of other foot Companies; as likewise some Troops of Horse which might serve for the defence of the City of Dublin, now in most imminent danger by reason of the approaches made by the Forcesof the Rebels. Sir Charles Coot had a Commission for a Regiment, which he and Coun- quickly made up cut of the poor stript English, who had repaired from div. 13 parts even maked to the Town, and upon the engagements of the Stare procured cloaths for them. The Lord Lambert to whom a Commission also was granted for the raising of another Regiment, began also to get some men together. The Earl of Ormend was now arrived in Dublin, and brought up with him his Troop confilling of 100 Curaffiers compleatly armed: Sir Thomas Lucas who had long commanded a Troop of horle in the Low-Countrds, and Captain Armstrong sometime after, yet very scassonably came thither: Both of them had mony impressed, Sir Thomas Lucas to compleat his Troop already brought out of England, Captain Armstrong to raise a new Troop; Captain Tarner also arrived foon after at Dublin, he was fent out of England by the Lord Lieutenant to raile and command his Troop, which in a very short time he made up about 160 Horle, many persons then living in the Town being desirous to put themselves and their Horses into that Troop: Not long after Colonel Graford came over allo, and bringing with him Letters of Recommendations from the Prince Elector then attending his Majesty in Scotland, under whom he had formerly the command of a Regiment of Dragoons in Germany: The Lords Justices thought fit to give him a Regiment which they were then taking order to raife and arm out of fuch Townsmen ac were fit to bear arms within the City of Dublin; none were to be admits ted into it but Protestants, and cut of them they made choice not Coor made only of the Soldiers, but of all the Officers belonging to the same. And Governour further for the repressing of the disorders daily appearing within the City, of the City and restraining the ill affections of the Papist there inhabiting, of Dublin. made Sir Charles Coot Governour of the City, and gave him an allowance of 40 S per idem for the prefen. Now while these Colonels and Captains are bestitting themselves in getting their men together under their several commands, and in training them up to the use of their arms: and the

SirCharles

Gov

and

perle

the

Jufti

you

was

difc Dub

the

ral,

tend Par

Feb

the

ing

the

Ho

Eng plan

Na

and had

of I

Mr

the far

Son

giv

me diti

tha

Co Pre

inf

wh ftr

fix

re

I

Governour of the Town taking firit order for conftant Watches within, and Guards without to restrain the repair of all suspicious and ill-affected persons: shall in the mean time give an account of the adjournment of the Parliament according to the late Proregation made by the Lords Justices, which some of the ill-affected members of both Houses endeayoured to make use of for the raising of futher troubles.

In the Month of August before the Rebellion brake out, the Parliament was adjourned to the 17 of November next enfuing: Now upon the discovery of the late conspiracy for the surprise of his Majesties Castle of journment Dublin, the ordinary place of meeting of both Houses of Parliament; liament. the Lords finding that the fire was begun in the North, and fearing a genes ral revolt of all other parts of the Kingdom, Resolved as a matter highly tending to the fafety and fecurity of the City and Castle to Prorogue the Parliament, which they did by Proclamation they fet out, until the 24 of But two or three days before such of the Lords and Commons then in the Town were to meet of course in their several houses for declaring the faid Prorogation, it was generally noised abroad that the putting off the Parliament was extreamly ill taken by the Popish Members of both Houses. Mr. Burk who was one of the Committee lately employed into England, came to the Lord Dillon of Kilkenny West, and highly complaining of the injury which (he faid) was done thereby to the whole Nation, hindring them from expressing their loyal affections to his Majesty, and she wing their defires to quell this dangerous Rebellion, and that they had reason to resent it so far, as to complain to the King thereof, as a point of high injustice; His Lordship having acquainted the Board herewith, Mr. Burk was presently sent for, and he used the same language in effect there, though with much modesty.

Hereupon the Lords fell into debate what was fit to be done, and how far it might be thought reasonable in them to condesend to their delires: The Po-Some were of opinion that it was fit to disannul the Prorogation, and to pish party give them leave to continue the Parliament according to the first adjourn-much difment made the beginning of August. They urged the very ill con- at it. dition of the whole Kingdom in regard of the Northern Rebellion, and that those of the Counties of Wiclow and Wexford, as well as some other Counties in Conaght had already joyned themselves to them; that this Prorogation might peradventure fo irritate the Pale, and have such an influence into Munster as might raise them into Arms, and so put the whole Kingdom into a general combustion. Others of the Board Voted strongly for the holding of the Prorogation according to the time prefixed by the Proclamation, grounding their opinion upon these reasons; first, That it would highly trench upon the gravity and wildom

fu

m du

th

m

th

th

H

m

0 fo

th

CC

23

Ь

th

in

of the Board to alter a refolution to folemnly taken up, after a most ferious debate and publickly made known throughout the whole Kingdom by Proclamation, That it would be of melt dangerous confequence to bring fo great a multitude of people to the City in luch dangerous times, that the Protestants and well-affected Members of both Houses were for the most part either destroyed, dispersed, or so shut up as they could not repair to the present meeting, and that therefore the Irish would be superiour in number and voices, and so wholly carry all things according to their own humour, that confidering the small Forces then in the City, such great numbers as might take occasion under colour of coming to the Parliament, to repair thither, could not be admitted without apparent danger and disturbance, and that peradventure they might there find as ill affections as they brought, and so both joyning together they might easily destroy the State with the poor remainders of the English Nation in these parts: Whereupon the Lords thought fit to hold to their Prorogation, yet to endeavour to to a temper and tweeten it, as those who were most averle, might in some measure rest satisfied therewith. And therefore after a long debate of all, particular circumstances, they came at length to this resolution, that the Earl of Ormond, the Master of the Rolls, and Sir Pierce Crosby, three Members of the Board, should have a meeting with Mr. Darg, Mr Burk, and some others of the most active and powerful Members of the Houle of Commons, and that they should let them know from the Lords, that they have understood of their good affections and desires to do somewhat in the House that might tend towards the suppression of this present Rebellion, that they approved extream well thereof: And that howfoever they could by no means remove absolutely the Protogation, yet that they would descend so far to their satisfaction as to limit it to a shorter time, and that at present they would give them leave to sit one whole day in case they would immediately fall upon the work of make ing a clear Protestation against the Rebels: As also, that they should have liberty if they pleased to make choice of some Members of their own House to fend down to Treat with the Rebels about laying down of Arms: And for their grievances that their Lordships would with all readiness receive them, and presently transmit them over to his Majesty for a speedy redress: All this was accordingly performed, The meeting was in the Gallery at Cork House; Those of the House of Commons seemed at first to be extreamly troubled when they found there was no possibility of altering the present Prorogation: But upon a further debate when they came to understand how ready the Lords were to yield to their satisfaction, and that the time of the Prorogation should be shortned, they seemed to rest indifferently contented, undertook to make the Protestation in fuch full and ample manner as was defired, and that they would fall immediately upon it and make it the work of the whole day.

Upon the 17 of November, the Lords and Commons met in Parliament which was held in the usual place of his Majesties Castle of Dublin: And for the better lecurity of the place as well as of the persons of those that were to meet, there was a Guard of Musketiers appointed to attend during the time of their meeting, but fuch care taken that they should carry themselves so tree from giving any offences as no manner of umbrage might be taken at their attendance there. The Houses were both very thin, there were only in the House of Peers some few English Lords, three or four Lords of the Pale, and some two or three Bishops. In the House of Commons, they took into their consideration upon their first meeting the framing of the Protestation against the Rebels. But those of the Popilh party spake so ambiguously, and handled the matter so tenderly, as they could not be drawn to ftile them by the name of Rebels: fo as they fent up unto the Lords a very meager cold Protestation against them, which being in their House taken into debare, it was strongly concested by the Protestant Lords that they should be stiled Rebels, but that as stiffly opposed by the others. They therefore fell upon a mean berwixt both which gave a kind of accommodations fayings They had Rebelliouffy and Traiteroufly raifed Arms; and so both parties being reasonably satisfied, the Protestation was drawn up and returned back to the House of Commons in this Tenour as followethe

The Protestation and Declaration of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons in Paliament assembled.

WI Hereas the happy and peaceable Estate of this Realm bath been of late, and is still interrupted by sundry persons ill affected to the Peace and Tranquillity thereof, who contrary to their Duty and Lovalty to His Majesty, and against the Laws of God, and the fundamental Laws of the Realm, bave Traverously and Rebelliously raised Arms, have seized upon some of his Majesties Forts and Gastles, and dispossessing the many many of his Majesties faithful Subjects, of their Houses. Lands and Goods, and have slain many of them, and committed other cruel and inhumane Outrages, and Acts of Hostility within this Realm.

R 2

The faid Lords and Commons in Parliament affembled, being justly moved with a right sense of the said disloyal Rebellious Proceedings and actions of the persons aforesaid, do bereby protest and declare that they the Said Lords and Commons from their hearts, do detest and abbor the Said abominable Actions, and that they shall and will to their uttermost power maintain the Rights of his Majesties Crown, and Government of this Realm, and Peace and Safety thereof, as well against the per. fons aforesaid, their Abettors, Adherents, as also against all forrin Princes, Potentates, and other persons, and Attempts whatsoever; and in case the persons aforesaid do not repent of their aforesaid Astions, and lay down Arms, and become humble Sutors to His Majesty for Grace and Mercy, in such convenient time, and in such manner and form as by His Majeffy, or the chief Gevernour or Governours, and Council of this Realm shall be fet down; The faid Lords and Commons do further protest and declare, That they will take up Arms, and will with their Lives and Fortunes suppress them, and their Attempts, in such a way, as by the Authority of the Parliament of this Kingdom, with the Approbation of his most Excellent Majesty, or of His Majesties Chief Governour or Governours of this Kingdom shall be thought most effectual.

Copia vera Exam. per Phil. Percival.

Cleric. Parliament.

Both Houses of Parliament sat two days, and the time of the Prorogation being shortned unto the 1x of Jan. The Lords made choice of the Lord Viscount Costelo to go into England, to carry over their desires to his Majesty, concerning the means they thought fit to be used for the quenching this present Rebellion: And besides those instructions formerly

nens

me

vate

[en ber

der

Jult

with

dec

ope

WCI

unr

in dor

bar.

fen

the

ent

Dil

but

feiz

con

the

bre

his

mal hig me

goo

full the very

mer

Let

Lot

the

mentioned, he had (as I heard) from the Popish Lords some, more private which were to negotiate the staying such Forces as were intended to be fent out of England for that end.

Both Houses joyned together to appoint certain Lords and some Members of the House of Commons to go down to the Northern Rebels, to un- Houses of derstand the cause of their rising in Arms: and referred them to the Lords Parliament sent Justices for their instructions, which accordingly they received together to Treat with a Commission under the Great Seal. But the Rebellion having a far with the deeper root then was at that time discovered; this Commission was of little Rebels. operation, and the intended Treaty foon vanished. The Northern Rebels were then to puffed up with their late victories over the poor surprized, unrelisting English in those Parts, and had so deeply drenched their hands in the blood of those innocents, as they thought to carry the whole Kinga dom before them, and therefore would yield to no Treaties, but in a most barbarous manner tore the Order of Parliament together with the Letter fent unto them, and returned a most scornful Answer, fully expressing thereby how far they were from any thought of laying down Arms, or entertaining any overtures towards an Accomodation.

Within a few days after the Adjournment of the Parliament, the Lord Dillon of Castelo accompanied with the Lord Tasse imbarqued for England. but by a most impetuous storm were driven into Scotland, where they landed and went up to London. At the Town of Ware, their papers were feized upon by directions from the Parliament of England, and their person committed unto fafe custody. Mr. Thomas Burk went over much abous the same time, and certainly upon the same errand: When the unhappyt breach began first betwixt the King and the Parliament of England, and that his Majesty thought fit to retire to York, those two Lords found means to make an escape, and all three constantly followed the Court, where in those high diftempers that afterwards happned in England, they cafily found means to ingratiate themselves at Court, and had the opportunity to do those good offices for their Country-men which brought on the Ceffation of Arms with them in due time.

The Lords Justices and Council by their Letters bearing date about the 20 of November, gave unto the Lord Lieutenant a more certain and writen to full acount of the state of the Kingdom, then they could any ways do at Leuthe first breaking out of the Robellior, and thereby making known the tenant. very ill condition of their present affairs they moved that the supplies of men, mony, Commanders and Arms, mentioned in their former Letters, might be with all speed fent over unto them, and that his Lorship would presently repair hither in his own person to undertake the management of the War, About the tenth of the M nth of Movember, their Lordships received an Answer from the Lord Lieutenant to their former Letters of the 25 of Ottober; whereby he gave them to understand. that he had communicated their Letters to the Lords of his Majefties most Honourable Privy Council, and that by Order from their Lordfhips, he had accounted both Houses of Parliament with them; that he had also sent to His Mijesty still continuing at Edenborough in Scotland, to represent the condition of their affairs, and that he understood His Majesty had received some advertisements out of the North of Ireland of the present Rebellion there: His Lordship also farther let them know, that His Majesty had referred the whole business of Ireland to the Parliament of England, that they had undertaken the charge and management of the War, that they had declared they should be speedily and vigorously affisted and had designed for their present supplies the sum of 50000 l. and had taken order for making of all further Provisions necessary for the Service, as may appear by the Order of Parlament made there at that time, and transmitted over by the Lord Lieutenant, together with his faid Letters unto the Lords Justices, by whose command it was re-printed at Dublin, November 12. 1641. as here followeth, being intituled,

An Order of the Lords and Commons in this prefent Parliament in England, concerning Ireland.

HE Lords and Commons in this present Parliament, being advertised of the dangerous Conspiracy and Rebellion in Ircland, by the Treacherous and wicked Instigation of Romish Priests and Jesuites, for the Bloody Massacre and Der struction of all Protestants living there, and other his Majesties Loyal Subjects of English blood though of the Romish Religion, being ancient Inhabitants within several Counties, and Parts of that Realm, who have always, in tormer Rebellions, given Testimony of their sidelity to this Crown: And for the utter depriving of his Royal Majestv. and the Crown of England, from the Government of that Kingdom, sunder presence of setting up the Popish Religion) Have thereupon taken into their ferious Consideration, how those mischievous Attempts might be most speedily, and effectually prevented, wherein the Honour, Salety.

Saf

conc

ten

[up]

thou

men

Sup

ana full

Cou

fur

The

wot

Sul

Ne

ma

Bri the

hui

con ow

ag

A

wi

ter

Pa

by

Co

th

ta

Safety and Interest of this Kingdom, are most nearly and fully concerned, Wherefore they do hereby declare, That they do intend to serve his Majesty with their Lives and Fortunes, for the suppressing of this wicked Rebellion, in such a way, as shall be thought most effectual, by the Wildom and Authority of Parliament : and therenpon have Ordered and Provided for a present Supply of Mony, and raising the number of fix thousand Foot, and Two thousand Horse, to be sent from England, being the full proportion defined by the Lords Justices, and his Majeflies Council refident in that Kingdom, with a Resolution to add such further Succours, as the necessity of those Affairs shall require. They have also resolved of providing Arms, and Munition, not only for those Men, but likewise for his Majesties faithful. Subjects in that Kingdom, with Store of Victuals, and other Necessaries, as there shall be occasion, and that these Provisions. may more conveniently be transported thither, they have appointed three several Ports of this Kingdom, that is to say, Bristol, Westchester, and one other in Cumberland, where the Magazines, and Store houses shall be kept for the Supply of the several parts of Ireland. They have likewise, resolved to be humble Mediators to His most Excellent Majesty, for the encouragement of those English, or Irish, who shall upon their own charges, raise any number of Horse, or Foot, for his Service against the Rebels, that they shall be bonourably rewarded with Lands of Inheritance, in Ireland, according to their Merits .. And for the better inducing the Rebels to repent of their wicked Attempts, they do hereby commend it to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, or in his absence to the Lord Deputy, or Lords Justices there, according to the power of the Commission granted them in that behalf, to bestow his Majesties gracious; Pardon, to all such as within a convenient time, (to be declared by the Lord Lieutenant, Lord Deputy, or Lords Juffices, and Council of that Kingdom) Shall return to their due obedience, the greatest part whereof, they conceive have been Jeduced upon talfe Grounds, by the cunning and subtle practices of some of the mosti most malignant Rebels, Enemies to this State, and to the Reformed Religion; and likewife to bestow such Rewards, as shall be thought fit, and publish'd by the said Lord Lieutenant, Lord Deputy, or Lords Juffices and Council, upon all those who shall arrest the Persons. or bring in the Heads of Such Traytors, as shall be personally named in any Proclamation published by the State there. And they do hereby exhort, and require all his Majesties loving Subjects, both in this, and in that Kingdom, to remember their duty and conscience to God, and his Religion, and she great and eminent danger which will involve this whole King dom in general, and themselves in particular, if this abominoble Treason be not timely suppressed; and therefore with all readiness. bounty, and chearfulness to confer their Assistance in their Persons. or Estates, to this so important and necessary a Service for the common good of all.

To : Brown Cleric. Parliament.

Commiffion granted to the Lieutenant- Ge-

About the same time the Lord Lieutenant finding that he could not Earlof Or- precure to speedy a dispatch of all things necessary for the service of her mend, to be land, as would enable him presently to repair thither in his own person, made the Earl of Ormond Lieurenant General of the Forces there, and lent him over a Commission for the same. And the said Earl did with the Forces in few days after receive a Letter from his Majesty out of Scotland, in heland, wherein he was graciously pleased to let him know it was his pleasure to confer upon him that charge. There was then likewise brought over the fum of 20000 1, from the Parliament; the Coyn which arrived Commiss here was all in Spanish pieces of eight which went for 4 d. in a piece here tions iffu- more then in England, and this gain the Parliament was content the Merched out for ants that undertook the transportations should make at that time in regard the Examination of the charge and venture they undertook to stand to: It arrived most uponOath scasonably even when all that little mony they had was quite spent in raising of the lof- and paying the new Companies, and that they were wholly destitute of all British, and means to draw in any contributions, towards the relieving of their present the cruel- necessities.

There continued daily to repair unto the City of Dublin, a great number of poor diffressed English, who had been most barbarously stripped, robbed, and despoiled of all their goods and substance, by the Rebels. Now ties exercifed by the Irish upon them.

that

tha

wh

the

out

to

ing

25 fit

W

tin

(e) an

wh

ne

th

an ye.

tu

to ge

to

de

wh

th

or

we

wi mi

or

Ti

that it might appear what their losses were, what cruelties were acted, what murders committed, and who were the chief actors in them throughout the several Provinces; The Lords Justices and Council thought sit to issue out a Commission under the Great Seal, directed to certain of the Clergy to take upon Oath the several Examinations of all such persons, that having suffered by this present Rebellion would think sit to repair unto them, as will appear by the commission it selfs a Copy whereof I have thought sit to insert.

Harles by the grace of God King of England, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c . To our well-beloved Henry Jones Dean of Kilmore, Roger Puttock, William Huthock, Randal Adam, John Sterne, William Ardrich, Henry Brereton, and John Watson, Clerks, Gree. ting; Whereas divers wicked and disloyal people, have lately rifenin Arms in several parts of this Kingdom, and have robbed and spoiled many of our good Subjects, British and Protestants. who have been seperated from their several habitations, and Cattered in most lamentable manner; And for as much as it is needful to take due Examination concerning the same; Know ye that we reposing special trust and considence in your care, diligence, and provident circumspection, have nominated and appointed you to be our Commissioners, and do hereby give unto you or any two or more of you, full power and authority, from time to time to call before you, and examine upon Oath on the Holy Evangelists (which hereby we authorize you or any two or more of you to administer) as well all such persons as have been robbed and despoiled, as all the witnesses that can give testimony therein, what robberies and spoils have been committed on them fince the 12. of October last, or shall hereaster be committed on them, or any of them: What the particulars were or are, where of they were or shall be so robbed, or spoiled to what value, by whom, what their names are, or where they now or last dwelt that committed those robberies, on what day or night the said robberies or spoils committed, or to be committed, were done: what Traiterous or disloyal words, speeches, or actions were then or at any other time attered or committed by those reblers or any of them, and how often , and all other circumflances concerning the faid particulars and every of them: And you cur faid commillioners are to reduce to writing all the Examinations which you or any two or more of you shall take as aforefaid; and the same to return to cur Justices and Council of this our Realm of ficland, under the hands and feals of any two or more of you as aforesaid. Witness our right trully and well belived Counsellours Sir William Parsons Knight and Bareret, and Sir John Berlace Knight, our Justices of our faid Lealm of Ireland: Dublin' 2 2 an of December in the seventeenth year of our Raign.

Carleton.

m

ple

aff

Cri

m fig

W

car

be H

Val the

M

the me

TI

the

pa

op

acc

the

Re

up

in

ran

too

a 7

of

the

ma

dift

Ma

Wit

pit

Wa

Rel def

The Commissioners above nominated, did very seriously address themfelves to this work, employing their pains therein with great diligence and faith ulnels; and have so well performed the charge imposed upon them as that by feveral Examinations, many principal Gentlemen of good estates were discovered to be the chief Actors in the Depradations of the British, and to have committed many most horrid murders and other notorious cruelties, which through their industry will now remain upon Record, but bad otherways been concealed from Posterity, and wrapt up in oblivion. The like Commissions were in a stort time after sent into Munster and Ulster: In the Province of Munster, the Commissioners took great care in the Execution of it, many Examinations of high concernement were taken by virtue thereof, though they remain as yet concealed and not returned up according as is required by the faid Commissions.

A weekly Fast appointed by the Lords Justices cil,

Towards the latter end of Nevember, the Lords Justices and Council confidering the miserable desolations brought upon the whole Kingdom, and the further calamities threatned by War and Famine, did by a Proclamation fet forth in Print, give strict charge and command; and Coun- That upon every Friday a publick and religious fast should be devoutly and pioufly observed, in and thorow the whole City and Suburbs of Dublin, by all his Majesties people therein, and that Divine Service and Sermons be celebrated and heard upon the faid day weekly, in every Cathedral, and other Church and Chappel in the faid City and Suburbs thereof: And this to be performed as is expressed in the said Proclamagion, to the end that the wrath and indignation of Almighty God, may be averted from this Kingdom, his divine aid and affiltance implored, and that some relief in these calamitous times, may the better be afforded, to such miserable persons as these Traytors, by their rapine and cruelty, have deprived of their fortunes, and fent naked and almost famished up to this City.

The Lords Justices and Council being advertised of the near, approach of the Rebels to Tredagh, prepared to lend down supplies both of men and proach of munition, for the re-inforcement of that Garrison: There were already de- the Rebels figured Six Hundred Foot and a Troop of horse for that service, and they to Tredagh. were almost in a readiness to March when an express from Sir Henry Tichbourn came up to the Earl of Ormand, to let him know the Rebels had that day, being the one and twenty of November, appeared within light of the Town. He conceived they would prefently have fet down before it, but they advanced no further that day, only while their Forces made a stand there. they fent down a Party of thirteen hundred Foot to Millifond, the Lord Miors house, which their design was suddenly to surprise; but contrary to their expectation, they found the twenty four Musketiers and fifteen horsemen, who very stoutly defended the house as long as their powder lasted The horsemen when they law themselves beset so as they could be no further serviceable to the place, opened the gate, iffued out and made their passage thorow the midst of the Rebels, and so, notwithstanding the opposition they made, escaped lafe to Tredagh: The foot having refused to accept of the quarter at the first offered, resolved to make good the place to the last man; they endured several assaults, slew a hundred and forty of the. Rebels, before their powder failed them: and at last they gave up the place upon promile of quarter, which was not kept, for some of them were killed in cold blood, all were stripped, and two old decrepite men slain, the house ranlacked, and all the goods carried away.

Upon the receit of Sir Henry Tichbourn's Letter, the Lords presently both of took order forthe marching away of the fix hundred men, together with horse and a Troop of Horse towards Tredagh: They lest not the Town till the 27. foot sent of November, and such was the negligence of the Captains and disorders of for the rethe Soldiers, as notwithstanding they had been three days in readiness to Tredagh. march, they went no further that night than Swoords a Village fix miles distant from Dublin: The command of the foot was committed to Serjeant Major Roper, and of the horse to Sir Patrick Weames, who was appointed with fifty of the Earl of Ormands Troop to march with those fix Compinies to Tredagh. The very day of their departure from Dublin, there was an advertisement brought unto the Lords, that some Forces of the Rebels were drawn on this fide the River of the Boine, and attended with defign to intercept their passage: Whereupon the Earl of Ormand by dis

-case T

rection from the Lords dispatched an express to give them now upon their March notice thereof, and after to pals on to Sir Henry Tichbourn to let him know as much; and that the Recruits defigned for the resinforcement of his Garrison being now upon their march, it highly imported him to take special care for the securing of their passage. And next day his Lordship received an Answer from him of that Letter, with assurance that he would not fail to march out with competent Forces to meet them upon the way, which he did that very day accordingly perform, but they marching no further than Balrudry, and so lying that night eight miles thort of Tredagh, he miffed of them, and so went not out (by what accident or upon what reason I know not) the day following till the news of the defeat met him at the very gate of the Town where he stood with his men in a readiness to march towards them: The men being altogether untrained and unaccustomed to travel, and failing of provision by the way, which for their money they could not by any means procure from the Country people as they marched along, were very much difcontented, and being somewhat tired with their journey went on next day, but in much disorder, so careles, and so little apprehensive of any danger, as fome had arms, but no munition about them; others for their own ease committed the carriage of both to the Carts. As they passed through Gormanston, the Major went in to give a visit to the Lord of Gormanston. Who told him that there were some Numbers of men lay in the way with an intent to interrupt their Passage. And this his Lordthip knew very well, for the very night before (as Mr. Creighton affirms in his examination) one of his grooms went to Slaine where the Rebels were then lodged, and called them out of their Beds to be in a readiness to come and incounter the English Forces now upon their march. The Major had likewife other advertisements to the same purpose, which he neglected, not to much as acquainting his Captain therewith, as some of them afterwards affirmed; He only caused three Scouts out of the Troop to be sent abroad to make discovery whether the passage were clear; two of them returned back a little before he came to the bridge of Julians Town, affuring him all was clear; the other went on to a houle within a quarter of a mile of the place where the Rebels lay, and while he attended there for his breskfast, a boy belonging to the house, took his Horse, and riding to the Rebels gave them notice of the near approach of our Forces: The Horle The de- passed the Bridge, and the Foot following turned up into a field on the

The de-passed the Bridge, and the Foot following turned up into a field on the feat of the lest hand of the Lane, where by reason of a great mist that suddenly sell, forces sent they discovered not the Rebels, till they were almost within Musket-shot for the reof them. The Major drew his men presently into Battalia, but the Hosse Bridge, (as some of the foot that escaped affirm) wheeled about without charging

ny

an gre

ma

wl

on

the

CX

of

Wi

1pa wh

po

W

ha

CO

Vi

of

wh

COI

wh

fhe

Ros

hac

we

of

the

of

fici

bei

the

ma

it |

Pro

any part of the Rebels Forces, who now furiously approached with a great shout; and a Lieutenant giving out the unhappy word of Countermarch, all the men possessed as it were with a Pannick sear, began somes what confusedly to march back, but were so much amazed with a second shout given by the Rebels (who seeing them in disorder followed close on) as notwithstanding they had gotten into a ground of great advantage, they could not be perswaded to stand a charge, but betook themselves to their heels, and so the Rebeis sell sharply on, as their manner is upon the execution.

Sir Patrick Weames without the loss of one Horse passed on safely unto Tredagh: The Major with two of the Captains more, and about a hundred of their men made an escape thither likewise: The other three Captains with all the rest of the Soldiers that were English were there cut off, they spared very few or none that fell into their hands, but such as were Irish, whole lives they preserved: The Arms of the whole Six Hundred they possessed themselves of, as likewise of all their Munition and Carriages: and to highly were the Rebels encouraged with this defeat given to his Majesties Forces, as the whole Pale began presently to waver, they thought the Kingdom their own, and that the English would in all parts fall before them, as those poor, ill conducted sheep had unhappily done. And this is a true Relation (as near as I could collect it from the mouths of those that were present) of that famous Victory fo much boafted of by the Irifh, whereunto the inexperience of the English Commanders, and the disorders of the common Soldiers, who were then but newly taken up and had never feen any fervice, contributed far more than any skill or courage shewed by the Rebels, which they had only opportunity at that time to express by a loud shout. Besides, they were treble their number, and had for their leaders Roger Moore, Hugh Birne, and Philip O-Rely, the two last persons who had been trained in the Wars abroad under the Spanish. Discipline, and were of greatest experience among them: they brought down a great part of those Forces out of the Counties of Cavan and Monaghan, and as soon as they came within the River of Boyne, great numbers of the ordinary churles of the Paleadjoyned themselves unto their mer, and so made up a body sifeficient to perfom that fervice.

The news of this unhappy defeat was brought the very same day being munday the 29 of November at evening, to the Lords Justices as they sate in Council: It troubled them very much, and as it was a matter of great rejoycing among the Popish Inhabitants of the City, so it bred a general sorrow and consternation among the English and Protestants: It happed in a very ill season, the late made Cosonels.

pedition into the County of Wiclow.

were but then in railing of their men: And fuch Companies as were compleated, were by the Lords the same day of the marching of the 600 Coots Ex- men to Tredagh, commanded out under Sir Charles Cost into the County of Wiclow, for the repressing the infolencies of the Birnes and the Tooles towards the poor English, whom they began to full upon most furiously, ftripping murdering, and driving them all out of that Territory as foonas they had taken in the Kings Fort, in that County called Carews Fort, and possessed themselves of the chief places of strength belonging to the English Gentlemen there: He marched to the Town of Wiclow, where he caused some few men and one woman to be executed, they being found up: on Examination guilty of the late spoils committed most barbarously upon the English there, and the very cloaths of an English woman that was strips ped, being found upon the back of that Irish wo nan that was there hange ed. In his return Luke Toole with near a Thouland Irish under his command encountred him, but he quickly made them flie and take to the next Bogge with the loss of some few of their men: And so he returned with all possible speed to Dublin, the Lords having sent him notice of the late defeat given to the forces fent to Tredagh: As foon as he arrived, he applyed himself very carefully to the securing of the Town, which now beganto be more desperately threatned then ever, by the near approaches of the Rebels: And so great were the disorders then in the City, so inconsiderable the Forces raised, the English Inhabitants so strangely ditmayed, the Papilts to highly raifed in spirit and courage, as had the Commanders of the Rebels drawn those Forces together as they had in readiness on both sides the River of Boyne for the fiege of Tredagh, and so marching up to Dublin, had taken the advantage of the present distractions, and forward affections which they would have undoubtedly found there to affift them; They had in all humane probability made themselves Master of the City, and might so straitly have begin the Castle, as would within a very short time have endangered the furrender of it; But it pleased God to infatuate their Countels: The strong opinion they had that they should presently carry Tredagh, and so possess themselves of all the Armes and Munition they had in that Town, caused them to fix their resollutions there, and to set up their rest upon the obtaining that place. In this as in many other wonderful acts of divine providence which I then observed with great admiration, it pleafed God to appear even miraculously in the preservation of the City and Caffle of Dublin with the poor remainders of English and Protestants, who had there taken fanctuary.

And now the Lords and Gentlemen of the Pale, thought it high time to discover themselves and their affections to the cause: They certainly had not only long entertained a defection in their thoughts but were

25 bri

like

no

the

of

Th

31.70

Cou

view

thei

nun

Pal

fully

the .

days

thei

circu

on (

of th

man

prefe

actio glish.

from

ral i

Was a

Gent

Vilco

of Di

Gent

of K

Ailme

lin,

Laure

Exam

others

this E

two or

H

as the several forementioned Examinations tellifies the first contrivers and bringers in of the Northern Rebels into this execrable Plot; they had now festion of likewife drawn them into the Pale, and therefore they could not hope the Lords now much longer to walk under a mask, and entertain, the flate with fur- and chief ther professions of their loyalty: They had gotten a competent proportion Gentleof Arms and Munition out of his Majellies flore into their own post flion: men with-They law now the Northern Rebels advanced within the River of Boyne, glish Pale. with very confiderable Forces to strengthen their Party, and by the late en= counter and successful victory they had therein, they pleased their fancies with confident conceits of certain prevailing, if they would now declare themselves by a publick conjunction in the common cause, and raising such numbers of men and quantities of provision, as the plentiful circuit of the Pale did afford, would profecute the War to happily begun and to fuccelsfully managed hitherto.

These and several other considerations working very powerfully among The manthe Lords and chief Gentlemen of the Pale, they did within very few ner of the days after the late defeat folemply proceed on to the actual confumnation of on of the their long meditated revolt; For the manner, place, time, and all other Lords and s circumstances, I shall refer the Reader to this ensuing Relation given in up-chief on Oath, March 1641. before Sir Robert Meredith Knight, Chancellour men ofthe of the Exchequer, in the Examination of Edward Dowdall Esquire a Gentle: Engistale man of the Pale, one very well esteemed among them, one that was with the present at all their meetings, and deeply engaged in all their counsels and Rebels, exactions.

He deposeth that some four or five days after the defeat of the En, the Exaglish soldiers at the Bridge of Gellianstown,, there issued a Warrant mination of Edward from the Lord of Gormanston to the Sheriff of the County for a gene- Dowdal ral meeting of all the County at Dulick: But the place of meeting Efg; was afterwards changed to the Hill of Crofty, where all the Lords and Gentry of the Country met, viz. The Earl of Fingale, the Lord Viscount Gormanston, the Lord of Slaine, the Lord of Lowth, the Lord of Dunsany, the Lord of Trimble stone, the Lord Nettervile: And of the Gentry Sir Patrick Barnwall Sir Christopher Bellow, Patrick Barnwall of Kilbrew, Nicholas Darcy of Plattin, James Bath of Aclarn, Garret Ailmer the Lawyer, Cusake of Gormar fron, William Malone of Lesmullin, Sedgrave of Kileglan, Lanch of the Knos, Lynam of Adamslown, Laurence Doudal of Athlumney, Nicholas Dowdall of Brownstown this Examinates brother, and him this Examinate with a multitude of others, to the number of a Thouland persons at the least, whole names he this Examinate cannot for the present call to mind. And after about two or three hours spent upon the faid Hill of Crefty by the Lords and Gentry :

Northern prefled in Nothern Rebels. .

Gentry aforesaid: There came towards them, Colonel Mahowne, were some Philip O Rely, Hugh Boy-Rely, Roger Moore, Hugh Birne, and Captain Fox, attended on with a guard of Musketiers: And this Examinant faith. That as foon as the parties drew near unto the faid Hill, the Lords mong the and Gentry of the Pale rode towards them, and the Lord of Germanstone, being one of the first, spake unto them, and demanded of them, Why, and for what reason, they came Armed into the Pale; Unto which Roger Moore made prefent Answer, That the ground of their coming thicher. and taking up Arms, was for the freedom and liberty of their consciences, the maintenance of his Majesties Prerogativ. in which they understood he was abridged, and the making the subjects in this Kingdom as free as those in England were, whereupon the faid Lord of Gormanstone defired to under-Stand from them truly and faithfully, whether those were not pretences, and not the true grounds indeed of their fo doing, and likewife whether they had not some other private ends of their own; which being by all denyed, upon profession of their fincerity, his Lordship the Lord of Gormanstone then told them: Seeing these be your true ends, we will likewise joyn with youtherein: unto which course all agreed. And hereupon it was publickly and generally declared, that wholoever should deny to joyn with them, or refuse to affist them therein, they would account him as an Enemy, and to the utmost of their power labour his destruction. And this Examinant faith. That after the agreement so made as aforesaid. There issued another Warrant to the Sheriff of the County of Meath, to summon all the Lords and Gentry of the Connty of Meath, to be at the Hill of Turagh about a week after; and accordingly there met at the same place the Earl of Fingale, the Lord of Gormanstone, and the rest of the Lords and Gentlemen aforenamed, together with Sir Thomas Nugent, and Nicholas Plunket the Lawyer, Birford the Lawyer, and a multitude of others, and the work of that day was first to make Answer to a Summons made by the State for the calling of the Lords unto Dublin, which Answer was brought ready drawn by the Lord of Gormanstone, and presented by his Lordship, and being perused by the said Council at Law was signed by the Lords.

In this manner was this great transaction most solemnly consummated betwixt Leinster, and Ulfter; Vatence and Brabant, as Sir Phelem ONeale stiles them in his Characterestical Letter before mentioned, sent to Owen Roe O Neale in Flanders, were now publickly united together in that great Affembly. The Lord Viscount Gormanstone on the one side, and Roger Moore on the other, had both been long tampering about the drawing of this most important work to the form it now received, they had at length brought it unto perfection, they two had the glory of it.

d

th

th

fi

ta

fr

to 60 po

to tic

bu

re

th

fic

ha

to

the

al

the

ed

the

all

Lo

cee

thr

con

the

the

nor

and appeared the great publick instruments of this powerful Union.

The Lords and Gentlemen of the Pale, having thus far declared them- The enselves became so high and and presuming, as they little valued what was done deavours or commanded by the State at Dublin: they now wholly applyed their en- the Pale deavours to make such preparatives towards the war, as might strengthen to streng. their party, which as it now flood in conjuncture with the Northern Rebels then their they beheld as invincible, and their power not to be refifted by the incongainst the fiderable Forces drawn together by the Lords Justices and Council at Dublin: power of Several Gentlemen who in the feveral Counties of the Pale were made Cap- the State. tains, and had received Arms from the State for their Companies, departed from their obedience, and addressed theinselves and their Companies wholly to the service of the Rebels. Nicholas White Esquire Son and Heir to Sir Nicholas White of Leflip, was the first that gave the example about the second of December: but he carried the matter so handsomely, as his Company ran away to the Rebels, as he pretended, without his confent or even his knowledge any longer time before their departure, than to give him opportunity to come and acquaint the State therewith, and his own difability to hinder the same : But before it was possible to use any means of prevens The reastion, the men were all gone with their Arms and Muniton to the Rebels : ons why Many of the other Captains defired no fuch fine cover for their intentions, the State but delivered themselves and their Arms up to be disposed as they should dis mon'd the rect without any further scruple or complement to the State: Whereupon grand the Lords finding how notoriously they were abused by the very great con- Councilof fidence repoled in such Gentlemen of the Pale, as being made Captains, Lords of had received Arms from them, and perceiving what course they began now the Pale, to item, and how they were refolved to imploy their own Arms against them, and others they took such order, and with such celerity and diligence made stay of sever- City of al of thole Arms, which were delivered out for the use of the Pale, as of Dublin. the 1700. Arms distributed among the several Counties there f they recovers ed again into their hands 950.

And now by reason the Northern Rebels had settled their Camp within the River of Boyne, and so lay betwixt Tredagh and the City of Dublin, all entercourse in the Pale was interrupted, the passages stopt up, and the Lords Justices and C uncil understood very little or nothing of any proceedings held there. They therefore finding their dangers daily to encrease through the near approach of the Rebels unto the City of Dublin, the continual affronts, and new fcorns the State daily received from them, their own want of strength to repress their bold attempts, or to preserve the poor English round about them out of their bloody hands, resolved now in thele their high extremities, to try the effects of thole large proteer

CY

of those of

stations and great professions of loyalty the Lords of the Pale had lately made unto them, and to give them a fair opportunity of rendring a most acceptable service to his Majesty and the state here. For this end therefore they determined to call a grand Council of all the Lords which refided within any convenient distance of the City of Dublin: clearly and freely to represent unto them the ill condition of their affairs, and how highly it imported them in respect of their own particular safety, as well as for the preservation of the whole Kingdom, and not only to contribute their best advice and counsel, but even all the Forces they could any ways raise towards the beating of the Northern Rebels out of the Pale. Several Letters of Summons were accordingly writ and sent away to the Earl of Fingale, the Lord Viscount Gormonston, and the rest of the Lords of the Pale; the tenour of them here ensueth.

A Copyof the letter written by Justices al to the Lords of the Pale.

Fier our hearty commendations to your Lordship, for as much as we have present occasion to confer with you, concernthe Lords ing the present estate of the Kingdom, and the Safety thereof in and Coun- these times of danger: We pray and require your Lordship to be with us here on the eighth day of this Month, at which time others of the Peers are also to be here : And this being to no other end, we bid your Lorship very heartily farewel. From his Majesties Castle of Dublin' the third of December, 1641.

Your very loving friends

To our very good Lord

George Earl of Kildare.

William Parson. John Borlacy. Ormand. Offory. Ant. Midenfis: R. Dillon, Ad. Loftus. Ge. Shirley. 7. Temple. Rob. Meredith.

The like Letters, eodem die, to these several Persons following:

Barl of Ormond.

Vil. Gormanston.

Lord Dunsany.

Earl of Antrim.

Vif. Netervile.

Lord Slaine. Lord of Hoath.

Earl of Fingale.

Vif. Fitzwilliam. Lo. Trimblestone.

Lord Lowth. Lord Lambert,

Thele

bein

cam

cert

mei

But

the

wh

ftor

of us

th

th

UH

yo

w

by ha

K

to

th

to w th

fu

th

W

T

D

These Letters were presently sent away: But the Lords of the Pale being otherways engaged, and having before or much about the time they came unto their hands (though the Lords knew very little, and that very unscertainly of it) made that publick combination with the Ulster Rebels before mentioned, durst no more adventure their persons within the City of Dublin: But after their meeting at the Hill of Crosty, appointed another meeting at the Hill of Tarah, and from thence they sent an Answer unto the Lords, which as Mr. Drowdall testifies, was brought thither by the Lord of Gormanston ready drawn up, and there only signed and so sent away. The Copy of the Letter here followeth:

May it please your Lordships.

TE have received your Letters of the third of this instant, The Ansintimating that you had present occasions to confer with wer of the us, concerning the present State of the Kingdom, and the safety Lords of the Pale thereof in these times of danger, and requiring us to be with you to the there on the eighth day of this instant: We give your Lordships to Lords Juunderstand, that we have beretofore presented our selves before your Lordships, and treely offered our advice and furtherance towards the particulars aforesaid, which was by you neglected, which gave us cause to conceive that our Loyalty was suspected by you. We give your Lordships further to understand, that we have received certain advertisement, that Sir Charles Coot Knight, at the Council Board, bath uttered some speeches tending to a purpose and resolution, to execute upon those of our Religion a general Massacre, by which we are all deterred to wait on your Lordships, not having any security for our safety from these threatned evils, or the safety of our lives; but do rather think it fit to stand upon our best guard until we bear from your Lordships bow we shall be secured from these perils. Nevertheless, we all protest that we are and will continue both faithful advisers, and resolute furtherers of his Majesties service concerning the present State of the Kingdom, and the safety thereof to our best abilities, and so with the faid tender of our humble service we remain.

To the Right Honourable our very good Lords the Lords Justices and Council of Ireland.

Dublin, Decemb. 7. Received 11. 1641.

Your Lordships humble Servants, Fingal, Gormanston, Slane, Dunsany, Nettervill, Oliver, Lowth, Trimblestown.

In

fued out

Council

for the

by the

In Answer to this Letter, the Lords Justices and Council, out of their unfeigned desires to give unto those Lords all due satisfaction, and to remove those jealousies and great milunderstanding now grown up between them, thought fit by way of Proclamation to publish and de-A Procla-clare to them and all others of His Majesties good Subjects of the Romation if mish Religion, That they never heard Sir Gharles Coot, or any other uster at the Board or ellewhere, any luch speeches tending to a purpose Lords Just or resolution to execute upon those of their profession, or upon any tices and other a general Massacre or any. Massacre at all, and that they never intended so to dishonour His Majesty and this State, or wound their own Consciences as to entertain the least thought of acting so odicus, impi-Satisfactious, and detestable a thing upon any persons whatsoever; and that if any on of the Lords of proof can be made of any fuch words spoken by any person whatsoever. the Pale. that he shall be severely punished. And therefore that they did pray and require the said Noblemen to attend them at the Board, on the seventeenth day of December, that they might confer with them : And for the fecurity of their repair unto them, they did thereby give to all and every of those Noblemen, the word and affurance of the State, that they might then fecurely and fafely come unto them without danger of any trouble or flay whatfoever, from them who neither had nor have any intention to wrong or hurt them.

t

H

ic

1

0

PDG

C

B

tl

h

u

C

But now it began to appear unto the Lords Juffices and Council, how far they were engaged with the Northern Rebels. By the Examinations taken of some English, who made their escape out of those parts, the news of their solemn contract and Association before mentioned was brought up to Dublin : And they then well enough discerned the main obstruction in their coming, the cause of their tergiversations, and what good reason they had to find out excuses to palliate their They then expected no other fruits of their Proclamation - than what it produced: Neither indeed had it any other effect and operation among them, than that they dd with great boldness and confie dence by the way of Answer thereunto, write back a Letter to the Lords Justices wherein they pretend themselves so justly affrighted with Sir Charles Goot's leverity and deportment, as that they dare not adto colour venture themselves within the confines of his Government: They their refu- heavily impole upon him the inhumane acts perpetrated as they term fal to re- them in the County of Wiclow, the Massacre of Santry and the burning pair to the of Mr. Kings house and his whole substance at Clanzarse, and with a little Lords Juf of cunning, they feem to pretend a breach of the publick faith, but tices and kind of cunning, they feem to pretend a breach of the publick faith, but Council would transfer the blame from the Lords Justices to Sir Charles Coot, and thereupon desire no sinister construction may be made of their stay, and-

Several pretences of the Lords of the Pale and that they may have some Commissioners appointed to confer with them, and so couclude with some professions of their Loyalty and readiness to give their advices for the advancement of his Majesties service, and the common peace of the Kingdom.

This was the Answer, such as might justly be expected to come from pers The great fons to deeply involved in the guilt of to high a Rebellion. It is no wonder indulthat they were thus put to their shifts, and enforced to take up such fond ex. genceufcuses, and imaginary pretences for their distoyalty: For they could not in Lords Justheir own conscience, but be most sensible of the very great indulgence used tices and by the Lords towards them: They had not failed in several particulars to Council manifest the great confidence they had in their good affections: They had towards the Lords refrained from giving them any manner of provocation or jealousie. They of the Pale had foreborn the doing some acts of hostility for a time upon some Rebels as mong them, because they would not give them any the least cause of complaint. And however, it appeared by the Examination of Mac Mahone and several others, that they were privy to the first Plot, yet the Lords proceeded with so much caution and tenderness towards them, hoping that now the Conspirators had failed in the main part of their design which was the surprisal of the Castle of Dublin, that they might yet reclaim them thereby, and draw them into a just concurrence with them, for the preservation of the Kingdom out of the hands of those bloody Northern Rebels, who in the beginning were the only appearers in the case: But all was to no purpe se, they were too deeply engaged to recede; therefore they ran now violently on, Luke Netaand drew along all the chief Gentlemen likewife of the Pale with them.

And now it shall be declared, how the chief Gentlemen of the Pale began the chief and proceeded on to act their parts: About the beginning of December, pre-Gentlefently after the late defeat given to the English Soldiers in their march to menofithe Pale, ga-Tredagh, Luke Nettervile fecond Son to the Lord Viscount Nettervile, caused ther Fora Proclamation to be made in the Marketeplace of Lusk requiring all the chief ces and Gentlemen and other Inhabitants there abouts, not to fail upon pain of de. th. quarter presently to repair unto Simoords, a Town within six miles of the City of miles of And within few days afeer, did meet there the faid Luke Nettervile, the City George Blackney Esq. George King, Joh. Talbot, Rich Golding. Tho, Rufel of Dutlin. Christopher Ruffel, Patrick Caddel, Will. Travers, Rich. Barnwell. Laurence then en of Bealing Holywood of Artaine, and several other Gentlemen who began to gas the Pale ther great numbers of men about them, and putting fuch Arms into their required hands as they had in readines, at the present made their provisions to enter- Lords Justines tain a fettled Camp within that place. The Lords understanding of this ties and unlawful tumultuous Affembly, and deeply apprehending the mifchievous Council consequences that might ensue thereupon, sent this War ant sollowing in a to repair to the Lublin.

fair requiring thereby their present repair unto them.

tervile and

By

By the Lords Justices and Council.

William Parsons. Jo. Burlace.

WHereas we have received information, that Luke Nettervile Esquire, Blackney of Rickennore Esquire, and George King of Clontarfe Gentleman; and other Gentlemen of the County of Dublin, with great numbers of men are assembled together in a body at Swoords and thereabouts, within fix miles of this City, for what intent we know not, but apparently to the terrour of his Majesties good Subjects, and although, considering the unseasonableness of this time chosen for such an act without our privity (whatsoever their pretence is) a construction might be made thereof to their disadvantage; yet we being willing to make an indulgent interpretation of their actions in regard of the good opinion we have of the Loyalty of those Gentlemen who (it seems) are principals amongst them in that Assembly, and conceiving there may be some mistaking in that enterprise, we have chosen the rather hereby to charge the Jaid Luke Nettervile, Blackney, King, and all the persons there Assembled with them, upon their duties of Allegience to his Majeky, immediately upon fight hereof to separate, and not to unite any more in that manner with out direction from us: And that the faid Nettervil, Blackney, King, and fix others of the principal persons of those who are so affembled at Swoords or thereabouts as aforesaid, do appear before us to morrow morning at ten of the Clock, to shew the cause of their assembling in that manner, whereof they may not fail at their extream perils. Given at his Majesties Castle of Dublin 9 December 1641.

> Ormond. Offory, Rob. Dillon. Cha. Lambart, Jo. Temple. Charles Coot.

t k R

al ol

C

do

W

th

ho

of

pe

wit

and

bou

tot

that

with ried

obe

plac

high days then

their

ing (

Majs

But they were to far from rendring obedience to the commands they received from the Board, as they kept the Messenger in restraint a day and a night, threatning to hang him, and after returned a fcornful peremptory Answer, fignifying unto their Lord hips, That they were confirmined to meet The Anfthere together, for the Safety of their lives, that they were put in fogreat a wer made terrour by the rising out of some horse Troops and foot Companies at Dublin, who Pale, to killed four Catholicks for no other reason, than that they bore the name of that the Lords Religion, as they durft not, as they pretended, fay in their boufes, and there- Warrant. fore resolved to continue together, till they were assured by their Lordships of the lafety of their lives before they run the bazard thereof, by manifesting their. obedience due unto their Lordships. These were the very words and expresfions used by those Gentlemen in their Answer: And accordingly they still continued together, encreasing their number of men and threatning to come down and encampthemselves at Clantarfe, a little Village standing upon the very Harbour of Dublin; where some of their followers had already at a low water feiled upon a Bark lying there, and carried away all the Commodities they found in her; a great part whereof they had put into the then dwelling house of the said King, to whom that Village did belong. This was an act of so high a ftrain, and so eminently rending to the present ruine of the City, as it required a sudden remedy; Delayes were dangerous in a matter of such perilous consequence; and the Lords Justices and Council, plainly perceived that if the Rebels were suffered to come down and lodge there, that they might without much difficulty make themlelves mafters of those few Barks then in the Harbour (the State having at that time no Ships of force to guard them) and so put themselves in a fair way if they could bring the Wexford Ships about to joyn with them to block up the Harbour, and stop the coming in to their relief all such succours as should be designed in England to Land at that Port. Whereupon the Lords finding that the faid King continued Itill: with Luke Nettervile and those other Gentlemen at Swoords, that they carried themselves with such high contumacy, as that disdaining to render any obedience to their Warrant, they neither made their departure from that place, disbanded their men, nor so much as pretended to repair to them according to their commands at the time prefixed therein: It was thought high time to take some other course with them; And therefore about four days after, the day first fet down by the Lords for their appearing before them, and the very next day after, another Proclamation published for their immediate separation, the Lords Justices and Council made this enfuing Order, directed to the Earl of Ormand Lieutenant General of his Majesties forces in Ireland.

e

ut

By the Lords Justices and Council.

William Parsons. Jo. Burlace.

rant from the Lords Justices and Counsuppresfing of the the Pale.

Orasmuch as divers of the Inhabitants of Clantarfe, Raheny and Killbarrock, have declared themselves Rebels, and having robbed and spoiled some of his Majesties good Subjects, cil for the are now affembled thereabouts in Arms in great numbers, mustering and training of their Rebellious multitudes, to the terrour and Rebels of danger of his Majesties good Subjetts, as well at Land as at Sea which their boldness is afted in such manner as to put scorns and af. fronts upon this State and Government, they acting such depredas tions even before our faces and in our own view as it were in difpight of us: It is therefore ordered, that our very good Lord the Earl of Ormand and Offory Lieutenant General of the Army, do forthwith fend out a party of Soldiers of Horse and Foot, to fall upon those Rebels at Clantarie and thereabouts, who in such dis. dainful manner, fland to out face and dare us, and to endeavour to cut them off, as well for punishment as terrour to others, and to burn and spoil the Rebels bouses and goods: And to prevent their further annoying of the Shipping, going out and coming in and lying in harbour; those Soldiers are to bring up or cause to be brought up to the new Crane at Dublin, such of the Boats and Vessels now lying there as they can upon the Sudden, and to burn, spoil and fink and make unserviceable the rest. Given at his Majesties Calle of Dublin, December 14, 1641.

> Ormand Offory, Rob. Dillon. Cha. Lambart, Ad. Loftus. Cha. Coote, Jo. Temple, Fran. Willoughby.

n

le

e n

P

According to their Lordships directions, the Earl of Ormand gave prefent order to Sir Charles Coot to march out privately with some Forces unto Clantarfe, which he did without any noise, and meeting there with no opposition, he only suffered his men to pillage the Town, whereof they burnt some part, as also part of Mr. Kings house, in which much of the Sir Charles goods were found that had been taken out of the Bark before mentioned : Coor And this was the fifst expedition that the Forces newly raised in Dublin Marches made after the defeat of the fix hundred men in their passage to Tredagh : fome For-As for the Massacre at Santry, mentioned in the Answer from the Lords of ces to the Pale, and obtruded to the World, as a just pretence to deterr them Clantarfe. from waiting on the Lords at Dublin, it was no other than this : Informas The true tion was given to some of the Officers of the Army, that there had been Relation a robbery newly committed by certain Rebels at the house of one Smith, call- of the preed the Buskin, within five miles of the City: And that if a Party of Soldiers tended might be sent forth, the Informer offered to bring them upon those Rebels, at Santry. as also upon other Rebels, who had lately murdered one Mr. Derick Hubart a Dutch Merchant at the Skerries; whereupon two Officers with forty foot were fent out with direction to fall upon those Rebels: They went directly to Santry, and there finding some strangers with weapons lodged in suspicious places, they flew four of them who as was conceived were criminal Offendours, and one of them after upon further enquiry found to be a Proteftant.

ny

ha-

As,

ng

ınd

ea.

af.

das

dif-

the

de

fall

dif.

our

d to beir

ing

pto

ZHIL

and

e of lon.

cus.

ote.

hby.

But how fairly foever this matter was carried yet they resolved to make ale The proof it for the present, by way of justification of their disloyalty: And having so ceedings far publickly declared themselves, they held it not fit to fit idle any longer, held by the but began to put the whole Circuit of the Pale into a posture of War, and chief Gento make all such preparatives as might enable them by the powerful affistance tlemen of they had out of the North, presently to take in Tredagh, and afterwards to the Tigmarch up to Dublin, and there make themselves Masters of that City and after they Castle: A work as now it stood represented unto them not likely to prove had joynless glorious than successful, and easie to be atchieved: They had for this ed with end many publick meetings among themselves, as also with the chief Com-them manders of the Northern Rebels,

In the first place, they declared the Lord Viscount Gormanston General of the Forces to be raifed in the Pale, Hugh Birne Lieutenant General: the Earl of Fingale General of the horse: Then they gave power to those Lords to nominate Captains in several Baronies to be respectively appointed out of them, and likewise to raise Soldiers in every such Barony, viz. Eight Soldiers out of a Plow-land! (which contains according to the ancient estimation 120. Acres) and every Plow-land to maintain the Soldiers to be fet out by them: The Barony

i i rony of Duleek was affigned to the Lord of Gormanston, the Barony of Screene and Deffe to the Earl of Fingale, the Barony of Slaine to the Lord of Slaine, the Barony of the Navan to the Lord of Trimblestone, Kells to the Lord Dunsanys Ratogh and Dunboine to Sir Richard Barnewall of Crickes Rown Baronite, and Patrick Barnewall of Cilbrew; and by these persons, several Captains were appointed, and numbers of Soldiers raised according to the orders fet down at the General meeting: There were also Warrants issued out by the Lord Germansten, whereby those persons appointed to raile the men, and to furnish them with provisions for their entertainment were required upon pain of death to fend them out : Other Warrants were likewise sent out to other persons who were appointed Overseers for the threshing out of all the Protestants corn, which was affigned generally through the Pale to be applied towards the maintainance of their Army. The next work was to make a canstant provision of all manner of necessaries for the entertainment of fuch Forces as were already brought down out of the North, as well as those raised in the Pale, and set down at the siege of Tredagh. And for this service they sessed the whole Country thereabouts, and ordered what proportions of Corn and numbers of Cattle should be brought down out of every part for the Victualling of those that lay encamped about the Town: There was alloted to every Company confifting of a hundred Men, for their daily altowance, one Biefe, and half a Barrel of Corn: And that they might with the more facility bring in the Country people to furnish their Army with these proportions; they made not only prohibitions that no Corn should be carried to Dublin, but so blocked up the ways as the poor Churles that lived fomewhat diftant from the City, could not carry their Corn thither without apparent danger; whereby the Market began to be very ill provided, and great want and scarcity was much feared by reason of the large accession of people come from several parts of the Kingdom up unto the City for lafety. Whereupon the Lords Justices and Council made Proclamations to be published, That all such as had Corn remaining within some few miles distance, should as their usual manner was, bring it to the Market at Dublin, and they should receive ready Mony for the same in case they did not that, they would presently send out Parties and burn their Corn as it flood in the Haggards, and so prevent the use the Rebels intended to make of it for the Victualling of their Army. By this means the City was indifferently well supplied all that Winter with Corn, the Country people though otherways very malicious against the English and Protestants, being content though with much hazard, to adventure the bringing their Corn, where they fold it at a good rate for ready Mony, rather than ro suffer it to be threshed out by Warrants from the Lord of Gormanston for the ule of the Irish Army then lying before Tredagh.

But while they continue their fruitless and unprofitable attempts there, having neither skill, courage, experience, nor any means to bring about their condition of the impetuous defires and fond endeavours for the taking in of that Town, publick I shall briefly represent a view of the sad estate of our affairs in Dublin : It was affairs of now almost full two Months since the breaking out of this Rebellion; The the State. Lords Justices and Council out of their deep apprehensions of a general revolt of all the Irish through the Kingdom, did in the very beginning with much earnestness sollicite the present sending over of Succours out of England: And as foon as they began to make a little further discovery into the strength of this Conspiracy, and found their own wants and utter disabilities to make any long or confiderable opposition against the universal power of the whole body of the Irish, as it then began to appear unto them, firmly united with almost all the Old English that were of the Romish Profession, incorporated into their party throughout Ireland, they did with much more earnestness by their frequent Letters and several Agents, represent unto His Majesty and the Parliament of England, the very ill even desperate condition they were in; and therefore defired that supplies both of men, mony and all kind of warlike provisions, might be fent away with all speed unto them, declaring that unless they received them presently, and that in great proportions, they were not able longer to subfift as they stood now environed on all sides with multitudes of the Rebels; but had just reason to apprehend their own present ruin, and the inevitable loss of the whole Kingdom: And because they conceived the Levies in England could not be so suddenly made, nor the men so easily transported from thence into the North of Ireland (where the Rebels appeared in greatest numbers, and had by their most unparallel'd cruelty towards the English done most mischief) as out of Scotland: They made a proposition to the Lord Lieutentant, to move both His Majesty and the Parliament, that 10000 Scots might be presently raised and sent over into those The send-Parts. This they pressed with much earnestness, representing the very great ing of ten terrour the meer Irish had of that Nation, that their bodies would better fort Scots into with that Climate, endure more hardship, and with less distemper undergo Ireland the toil and mileries of an Irish war, that the transportation would be made pressed by with much more falicity and less charge, it being not above three or four the Lords hours fail from some parts of Scotland into the North of Ireland, That the Council. Kingdom of Scotland had been lately in Arms, and so had all provisions necellary for the furnishing of their men for this expedition in readiness: And laftly, they having to good a foundation in the multitude of their own Countrymen so advantageously settled there already, would no doubt undertake the work with all alacrity, and vigoroufly profecute the war with such sharpnels, as might testifie their deep resentment of the horrid cruelties excercifed upon to many thousands of their own Nation by that barbarous people. Thefe

6

h

CS.

n

S,

or nd

ens

n-

Cng

20

for

un

Thele Letters arrive very opportunely about the time of the Kings return from Edenburgh to the Parliament of England then fitting at Wellmin-Scotland to fer: And there being even then two Scotish Lords come out of the Kings Treatwith dom of Scotland, to Treat with the Parliament of England concerning the the Parlia- fending Forces from thence for the relief of Ireland. His Majefty fent to the Lords and Commons to give them notice of their arrival, and withal defired, that certain Commissioners appointed by himself, and both Houses ing the re- of Parliament, might be presently named to Treat with them, and from time lief of Ire- to time, give an account of their proceedings to His Majesty and both Houses, This motion was with very great readiness yielded unto, and it was ordered. that the Earl of Bedford, the Earl of Leicester Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, the Lord Howard of Effric; nominated by the House of Peers: And Nathaniel Fiennes Efquire, Sir William Ermin Baronite, Sir Philip Stapleton Knight, John Hamden Elquire, nominated by the Houle of Commons. should Treat with the Scotish Commissioners concerning the affairs of Ireland, and that there should be a Commission granted unto them to this effect, under the great Seal of England, together with particular Instructions to regulate the manner of their proceedings.

Commisioners ment of England land.

Propolitions prefented to the Parliament of England. for the relief of/r .land.

In the propositions given in by the Scotish Commissioners, they did in the first place make offer of ten thousand men in the name of the Kingdom of Scotalnd: And that they might be enabled to fend them speedily away. they defired an advance of 30000. 1. of the brotherly affiftance afforded unto them by the Kingdom of England, and that what Arms and Munition they fent into Ireland, might in the same proportion be returned unto them with all expedition.

Next they defired that some Ships of War might be appointed to guard the Seas betwixt Scotland and Ireland, to wast over their Soldiers which they designed to transport in small Vessels.

And then that upon landing of their men in Ireland, there should be a 100 horse ready to joyn with every 1000 foot that they should send thither: And that they should receive Instructions and Orders, and in every thing obey the Scotish General.

These propositions being taken into consideration in the House of Commons, after they had duly confidered of them, and weighed the high necess fities of this Kingdom, that the Scots had 2500 men ready railed, and that they could not fo suddenly make provision any other way for the faving Iretand, as by fending these Forces out of Scotland, they readily condescended unto them, and having voted them severally, they sent them up to the House of Peers, with their desires for a speedy concurrence in them.

These beginnings gave great hopes of a sudden relief of Ireland, and it was now generally believed, that confiderable Forces would be transported within

within a very thort time out of Scotland for the defence of the Northern parts of this Kingdom; especially considering with how much earnestness his Majesty in his Speech made to the Lords and Commons in Parliament on the 14 of December, in this present year, had pressed them to take to heart the business of Ireland, and offered unto them whatsoever his power, pains or industry could contribute to the good and necessary work of reducing the Irish Nation to their true and wonted obedience.

6-

he

to 6-les

ne es.

d, id, 4-

on 15,

ıd,

er

ite

in

M

nn

m rd

g

1=

e

it

But alas these great expectations were soon dashed, and the Forces designed The Forfor Ireland, as well out of England as Scotland strangely retarded by several ces designobstructions which daily arose in the transactions of the Irish affairs.

For fielt, His Majesty in the same Speech, wherein he conjured them, by retarded. all that was dear to him or them, to go on chearfully and speedily for the reducing of Ireland, did take notice of a Bill for pressing Soldiers for Ireland depending in the House of Peers, and declaring his dist ke of putting it in that way, told them he would pass it so there were a salvo jure put into it both for the King and people, but withall, told them that he thought himself little beholding unto him wholoever he was, that began this dispute to far trench ing upon the bounds of his ancient and undoubted prerogative.

Thele passages in his Majesties Speech were deeply refented, not only by the Lords, who were more particularly concerned in them, but by the Houle of Commons: And therefore His Majesty had no sooner ended his Speech and left their House, but that the Lords fell into consideration of the fame, and resolved that the King by taking notice of the debate in their House, of the Bill concerning preffing of Soldiers, had broken the fundamental priviledges of Parliament. And prefently a Message was brought unto them, likewise by Mr. Hellis from the House of Commons, to defire a conference with their Lorships by Committees of both Heules touching the Priviledges of Parliament: At the conference they fully expressed the deep sense they had of the high injury offered unto them, by His Majesty in invading their Priveledges, and proceeded to far as to come not only to Petition His Majesty, and to desire that he would be pleased to make known that person who had given him information so unduly of what had passed in their House: but also, to make a Protestation concerning their Priviledges: This took up some time, and the great misunderstanding even which then began to appear betwixt His Majesty and the Parliament, had so strong an influence into the business of Ireland, as notwithstanding the high necessities of this Kingdom, and the great affections expressed by the Kingdom of England for our sudden relief here, the resolutions were flow, and the preparations went so heavily on, as it was long before the House of Commons could find means to enable the Lord Lieutenant to fend fo much as one Regiment away out of England, for the defence of the Castle and City

City of Dublin, then much distressed by the near approach of the Rebels.

And now for the Forces to be fent out of Scotland into Nothern Parts of bate of the this Kingdom, they meet with several obstructions likewise. For first, the propositions pretions pretions preto Treat for the sending over a lesser number than 10000 men, which the sentish Lords here were very unwilling to condescend unto. But this obstacle was Commissioners in soon removed by zealous affections of the House of Commons, who as sioners in soon as the Propositions brought in by the Scotish Commissioners for the reason the House of Iteland, were presented unto them, voted their affent to Treat for the sending of the number of 10000 men out of Scotland, according to the instructions given to the Commissioners by that Kingdom, and sentup a Message to the House of Peers by Sir Philip Stapleton Knight, to lay before their Lordships, the miserable estate of the Kingdom of Ireland, and to let them know that the House of Commons conceived the best way for the preservation of it out of the hands of the Rebels, was speedily to dispatch the Scots into the Province of Utster, and therefore desired that they would joyn with them in the Propositions received from the Scotish Commissioners.

Upon the receit of this Message, the House of Peers sell upon the said Proposition, and after a long debate, it was at length agreed that 10000 Scots should be sent into Ireland, if the House of Commons would condescend that at the same time there might 10000 English men be as speedily fent likwife thither, and thereupon defired a conference with the House of Commons, that they might fully understand their resolution therein, which being yielded unto by the House of Commons, The Lords at the conference pressed with much earnestness, that they might be assured of the fending over of 10000 English at the same time that the Scots were to be fent away: Whereunto the House of Commons replyed, that they were not to be capitulated withall, that their actions were free as well without condis tions as capitulations, that they thought they had given sufficient certainty already of their resolution to send that number of English into Ireland, and therefore defired that their Lordships would Vote the sending away of 10000 Scots by it self without any relation to the English spoken of by them.

This took up a large debate in the House of Peers, and was one main cause of the flow proceeding on of the Treaty with the Scotish Commissioners. Is this not undertake to determine at so great a distance from whence these obstructions grew, but I am very sure we could here easily find, that there were some such secret workings underhand against the good affections expressed by the House of Commons, and by the Lords who were well affected to the service of Ireland, as that this Treaty was very much retarded thereby, thereby, and was not brought on to any conclusion in many Months after. So as in the mean time, all the British planted throughout this Kingdom, were despoiled, driven out of their habitations, or most cruelly murdered with in their own doors: and the Irish strengthned themselves in all parts of the Country and prevailing every where, drew many to joyn with them, that had hitherto kept themselves in a kind of Neutrality, as supposing that the State here would be altogether defert, and no Forces at all fent out of England for the suppressing of the Irish as had taken up Arms in this quarrel.

The whole Province of Munster about the midst of this Month of December, began to declare themselves in open Rebellion. The Lord Presi-volt of the dent there, had used his unnost endeavours to suppress their very begin- Irish in the ings, but by reason of his want of strength was now able to contain them Province no longer: He did with all deligence and carefulness labour to prevent the of joyning together of any numbers of the Irish in any of those parts: And when he understood how they began in some places of the Province to despoil the English, and that they had near Waterford gotten away many of the Inglish mens Cattle, and were carrying them out of the limits of his government, he thought it not fit longer to fit still, but gallantly pursued thole Rebels in his own person, being accompanied only with his own Troop of horse, and some sew Gentlemen of the Country, who joyned with them, and after a long and redious march came upon them unawares, flew 200 of those Rebels, restored the cattle to the English that were owners of them, and took several priloners whom he hanged for a greater terrour to all such as should adventure afterwards to follow their example: As foon as he had done this fervice, his Lordship retired back to Cork, having neither Forces nor means to make any further profecution: which the Irish well enough understood, and therefore drew together in several places of that Province, and though they did not in that barbarous manner, as they in Ulfter, hew down, cut in pieces, hang, drown or presently murder all The misethe English among them ; yet many horrid murders they committed, uled ry fufferleveral kinds of cruelty to many particular persons, and for all the rest that ed by the fell into their hands, they robbed and violently deprived them of all their English in goods and cattle, most miserably stripped them out of their cloaths and Muniter. leaving them quite naked, suffered most of them in that lamentable poslure to pass to Cork, Toughall, Kinfale, and other Ports there to embark their miles rable Carkaffes for England where few arrived fa'ely, and I am fure I may well fay few, in respect of those multitudes who perished through want, cold and famine, before they could get to those Towns, or otherways dyed after their arrival in them, or were by florms at Sea cast-away. And for the English who stood upon their guard and immured themselves up in feveral Castles of good strength in those Parts, they endured many Months

-

Months siege, suffered much want and misery, and having bravely resisted all the affaults and attempts that the Irish made with great multitudes upon them, and in many places caused them to raile their tieges with great loss and flaughter of their men, yet they were aftewards, finding themselves without all hope or possibility of relief, enforced to delivered those places together with the multitudes of English they had received, into the hands, of the Rebels, upon fair quarter folemnly promited by them: And in many places no sooner had they by that means gotten enterance into them, but that they most perfidiously broke the quarter given, despoiled them of that little remainder of their subitance they had then left, and sent them away in great want and milery to find relief among other English Garri-But the whole Country being walted and destroyed, and the poor English that lived in them, dispoiled of all their substance, were able to afford them very little relief or comfort, besides pitty and compassion which could not support or keep alive those languishing gastly Creatures, so as multitudes dyed, some in ditches, some travelling on the high-ways, some under hedges, and so lest their Carcasses as fearful spectacles to the beholders, and sad monuments of the inhumane cruelties exercised on then by those bloody Rebels, who yet under pretence of mercy spared their lives, but took up a resolution as they were not ashamed to declare, to put them to a more lingring death, and therefore left them in such a conditon as inevitably brought on their miserable ends with much more discomfort and forrow.

But this shall suffice to shew the beginning of the rising of the Irish in Munster; the particulars whereof shall be clearly and at large set down in the following Relations of their proceedings within that Province, where it shall be declared likewise, how all the great Towns in Lemster, except Dublin and Tredagh, did about the same time begin to strip and expel all the British and Protestans, that either inhabited in them or sled out of the Country near about to shalter themselves there, from the barbarous cruckies of their Irish neighbours.

Dublin!

As for the City of Dublin it began now to be much more straitly encompassed by the Forces of the Rebels, much encreased through their late conjunction with the English Pale. And in case of their want of power to sorce it, yet they having made their approaches so near and having so absolutely stopped up all the avenues, as we had great reason to apprehend their keeping back of provisions would drive the City into high necessities, and quickly occasion great want there. And here I cannot without much grief of heart call to mind the lamentable complaints and bitter out-crys, which until this time, were continually sent up unto the Lords Justices and Council, while they remained in this posture, out of several Parts of the Country, where

th

of

th

p

m

C

m

E

afi

V

A m fa

h

fo

W

an ar

VC

re

ur

25 ev

of

tr

m

be

fo

where the English Inhabitants being by the Irish driven out of their habitations, had for their prefent safeguard put themselves into Houses or Castles of fome ftrength; they there enduring much want and mifery, made shift, though not without great difficulty, by several Messages and Letters to make known their condition to the State, as also that they were resolved, as many of them did, to suffer the utmost extremities out of hope of relief, and a confident expectation of fuccours from them.

But Alas all was vain, they were able to afford them no other comfort than what their pitiful commiseration of their forrowful condition would administer; they were themselves reduced to low, as with the greatest power they could raife, they durst not adventure to fend any ways ave miles out of the City, their supplies out of England were not arrived, they had neither place nor means to raile men, but only within the virge of the City, and such as they ordinarily took up there, were either Irish, whereof many ran presently away with their Arms to the Rebels, or poor stripped English, and Inhabitants of this City, who were raw men, and though they afterwards being well exercised and trained to the use of their Arms, proved very good Soldiers; yet for the present they were very unfit for service : As appeared in that little expedition Colonel Craford made out with his Some Formen to Finglas, a little Town two miles distant from the City, at the ces sent same time, when Sir Charles Coot marched forth to beat Luke Nettervile out to enwith his undisciplined Regiment out of his quarters at Santry, who counter the Rebels, having timely notice of his coming faved him the labour, for he prefently who lodgupon the rumour thereof, dislodged and fled in so much hast, as he left ed within fome of his best equipage and all his provisions behind him: But that threemiles Party of Rebels Colonel Craford found at Finglas, having placed themselves of Dublin. with good advantage behind great ditches, stood better to their work, and carried themselves to stoutly, as our new raised men began to sbrink, and had not the Colonel and some other of his Officers behaved themselves very well that day, their men had made a most dangerous and shameful retreat. This was the greatest expedition the Forces in Dublin were able to undertake at that time, which no man will wonder at, if he doth confider as it hath been related, how the Town was in a monner surrounded on every fide by feveral Parties of the Rebels gathered together: all commerce furroundwas interrupted, all provisions brought out of the Country for the supply ed on eveof it intercepted, scallos that all the chief of the English Inhabitants had the Rebels. transported themselves, their goods and their Pamilies into England, many of the Papilt had upon other reasons retired themselves, and what belonged unto them into the Country, and there taken up their habitations within the Rebels quarters; no manner of intercourse with any persons whats loever that made their abode without the distance of two miles from any part of the City, no intelligence to be had upon any terms from among the Rebels, all courses taken for it disappointed, several Messengers hanged up and yet on the other fide, all our defigns disclosed, our weakness discovered, and the most private resolutions by one means or other communicated unto The Parties of the Rebels that lay near about the City, were thefe following: Luke Nettervile being beaten from Santry, lay with near two thousand men at Savoords, a Town fix miles distant, and possessed himself of the Castle of Artaine, and some other places within two miles of the City: On the West-side of the City, at Taffagard, Rath-coole, Caftle-Lyons, and other little Villages within the compals of fix miles, there lay two thoufand more of the Rebels who were come down out of the Counties of Carterlagh, Kings County, Kildare, and other parts under the Command of Roger Moore, and Sutton, Eustace of Castle-Martin and others, Clandonells, Birnes and Tooles, were also come down in great numbers out of the County of Wielow, and had lodged themselves in some Castles towards the Sea-fide, and in some Villages at the foot of the Mountain, not above three or four miles distant from the Town on the South-fide: How desperately these Forces threatned our ruine and sudden destruction will appear by this enfuing Letter bearing date about the midft of December, written from the Lords Justices and Council, unto the Lord Lieutenant then attending for his dispatch.

A LETTER from the Lords Justices and Council, to the Lord LIEUTENANT.

May it please your Lordships,

BY our Letters of the third of December, we made known to your Lordship, that M. Hawtrige was then newly arrived with the Treasure sent us from thence, which came but to sixteen thousand five hundred sourscore and ten pounds, to a supply of Treasure far short of that which is now become necessary to perform any considerable service here against the Rebels, whose numbers are increased wonderfully, insomuch as the Forces they have about Drogheda on all sides it, and between Drogheda and this place, reaching even within sour miles of this City, are upon very credible report, conceived to be above twenty thousand men, and besides those

the

ged,

nto

efe

wo

felf

the

ons,

ard of

The

out

lles

ain,

de :

tion

ant

il,

wn

ich

ten

OW

a-

ly,

des

ren

rt,

des

ofe

those numbers who are so united between this and Drogheda and thereabouts, there are many thousands of them dispersed the whole Kingdom over; for the meaner fort of people first rife generally, and then those of better quality follow after; and the fire which was first kindled in Vifter, and lay a while smothered in other parts begins now to break out so generally, as the defection now appears to be univerfal throughout the whole four Provinces; fo strangely rooted was the Combination, and that strengthned under the specious shew of a War for Religion; for although before and fince the Caution we had from your Lordship, We have on our part endeavoured not to give any apprehension to the Irish, that England doth intend to make it a War of Religion, yet as we formerly made known to your Lordship, the Rebels labour mainly to have it so understood. Nay, they now go so far as they call them; felves generally the Catholick Army, a Title which hath drawn many thousands to their party, and yet many joyned with them for no other reason than because they saw our Succours expected forth of England and Scotland deferred, they rightly judging, that without those Succours, we are not able to defend them our felves, and indeed until those Succours come, they must and will still encrease; but if our men and arms were once arrived, the very countenance of their coming would draw many of them to us, and give fome stop to the fury, with which they yet carry all before them whither-foever they come.

They continue their rage and malignity against the English and Protestants: who if they leave their goods or cattle for more safety with any Papists, those are called out by the Rebels, and the Papists goods and cattle lest behind; and now upon some new Councils taken by them, they have added to their former, a surther degree of cruelty; even of the highest nature, which is to Proclaim, That is any Irish shall harbour or relieve any English, that be suffered to escape them with his life, that it shall be penal even to death, to such Irish; and so they

they will be fure though they put not those English actually to the fword, yet they do as certainly and with more cruelty cut them off that way, than if they had done it by the fword; and they profess they will never give over until they leave not any feed of an English-man in Ireland, it saw thout and

Nor is their malice towards the English expressed only for but further even to the beafts of their fields, and improvements of their Lands, for they destroy all Cattle of English breed, and declare openly, that their reason is, because they are English; so great is their hatrad, not only to the persons of the English, but also to every species of that Nation, and they destroy all improvements made by the English, and lay waste their habitations.

We formerly fignified to your Lordship, that to take away all jealousie from the Papists of the English Pale, we would furnish them with some Arms, and the rather because we well know that in the last great Rebellion in Ireland, the En. glish Pale flood firm to the Crown of England; and that the Rebel Tyrene in the height of his power and greatness, was never able to get into the Pale, with his Forces whilft, he was in Rebellion; and upon this occasion, the Noblemen and Gentlemen of the Pale, making deep professions of their Loyalty to his Majeffy, in imitation of their Ancestors, and with expressions seeming to abhorr the Contrivers of this Rebellion here, against whom they offered their power and Brength, fo as they might have Arms; and we being well affured. that if we could gain their concurrence with its, it would much facilitate our work; we did at their earnest fuit issue for them Arms for one thousand seven hundred men, wherewith divers Companies were armed by them, andifome of themselves were appointed Governours of the Forces of the Counties, and Captains of their Companies: but femany of those Companies revolted to the Rebels, and carryed away their Arms with them, as we have recovered back but hine hundred and fifty Arms; so as those whose loyalty we had reason to expect pect would help us, are now through their disloyalty turned against us, and are strengthned with our own Arms; and without all question, if those of the English Pale had done their parts as become good subjects with their Arms they had from us, and those they might gather amongst themselves, they might with our help not only have defended the Pale against the Rebels, but might also have prevented the ruin and destruction wrought by their Tenants and Neighbours on the poor English and Protestants amongst them; for the Noblemen and Gentry sate still and looked on, whilst the English and Protestants were ruined before their saces; the Papists in the mean time remaining secure without the loss of goods, or any thing elfe.

;

t

7, ts

.

18

.

1.

C

IS

d

h

1

S

When we faw the power and frength of the Rebels ftill grow. ing upon us more and more, and approaching by degrees morenear to us, and the English and Protestants robbed and spoiled even within two miles of this City, in disdain and affront of this State, which are fcorns of fo high a nature as we could not endure, if we had strength sufficient to repress their infolencies; and when we observed the retarding our Succours of men and arms from England or Scotland, neither of both Succours being yet come, nor as we heard fo much as in view there or in Scotland, and when we found apparently that for want of those supplies, we became in a manner so contemptible, as we were in danger to be fet upon for taking from us this City and Castle before our aids should come, we bethought us of all the means, we could of gaining time, being confident that We cannot be to deferted by the State of England, but that some supplies may yet come unto us: And therefore on the third of December, we directed our Letters to divers of the Nobility of the Kingdom who were nearest to us, and most of them being of the English Pale, to be with us here on the eighth day of this Month, that we might confer with them concerning the present flate of the Kingdom, and we hoped by their help, to handle the matter fo as we might gain a few days time time before our furpisal here, by which time in all likelihood our Succours might arrive, although it be boldly given out by the Rebels, that we shall have no Succours from thence, which they divulge to embolden their party, and to strike terrour and discouragement into the well affected, amongst whom there are many so weak, as to apprehend from thence too much fear, whereby many are fled the Kingdom.

On the eighth day of this Month, the Earl of Kildare, the Lord Viscount Fitz Williams, and the Lord Baren of Houth came unto us, but the rest of the Noblemen not coming deserted our conference, and on the eleventh day of this Month we received Letters from seven of them, namely, the Earl of Fingale, the Lord Viscount Gormanston, the Lord Viscount Nettervile, and the Lords of Slaine, Trimblestone, Dunsary and Lowth, dated the seventh day of this Month, and signed by them, pretending a sear of a Massare on those of their Religion, and that therefore they are deterred, to wait on us, but do rather think it sit to stand upon their guard; and how that resolution of theirs may stand with the loyalty they profess, we humbly submit to his Majesties excellent judgement, for whose royal view we send you here inclosed, a Copy of their said Letters.

When we received those Letters, we did admire whence their sears of coming to us should arise, but afterwards we heard that they had been in consultation with the Rebels, which also as to most of them is confirmed by the enclosed Examination of Christopher Hampton, and indeed we know no cause of sear they have of us, unless their own guilts begot in them the sear they pretend; and they spare not though unjustly to charge us with a neglect of their advices, whereas not one of them to this House offered to us any advice or real assistance towards Pacification of these troubles.

It became then Publick (nor could we keep fecret that which they had published to others) that those Noblemen so far sided with the Rebels as they new stood on their guard; we

cinin

here-

the

per

on

to

ly

ed

and

of

per gre

er |

wh

Na

ou

wh

Sta

tir

of

ing

ter

fro

pie

pro

tru

of

Pa

A

he

cla

Th

yo

Ch

therefore adjudged it fit for vindicating the State from the afpersion which we found so publickly endeavoured to be laid upon us, to publish the enclosed Proclamation, as well to satisfie to the World as those Noblemen, who certainly are abundantly fatisfied in their own fecret thoughts, that we never intended to Massacre them or any other; that being a thing which we and all good Protestants do much abhor, whatever the practice of their Religion is, and hath been found to be by woful experience in other parts, whereof we confess we are now in great danger, if our long expected Succours come not the foon. er to us; and it may be gathered from that unexampled tyranny which the Rebels have already excercised towards those of our Nation and Religion, who tell into their hands, what we for our parts may expect from them: But the dishonour and shame which may reflect upon the English Nation by exposing this State and Kingdom to fo apparent ruine, and with it the extirpation of Gods true Religion, afflicts us more than the loss of our own lives and fortunes, when all might be faved by fending feafonably those Succours.

We lately received Letters from the Lady Ofaly, and a Letter containing most insolent Menaces inclosed therein, sent her from the Rebels, to which she sent them a noble Answer, Copies whereof we fend here inclosed.

One of the Rebels stiling himself Chaplain Major and Over-seer of the Coasts and Harbours, lately sent a Summons in a proud and vaunting manner, to one Edward Leech, that was entrusted to keep the Island of Lambay, requiring the delivery sp of that Island to the Rebels, which being done, he gave Leech a Pals, wherein he stiles the Rebels Forces the Catholick Army: A Copy of which Summons and Pals we send your Lordship here inclosed; and Leech told us that that mighty Chaplain declared openly to him, That he was Plotter of this Rebellion, That he had spent in Travel and Prosecution of that design beyond Seas sour thousand pound; and that all the Kings in Christendom, excepting the King of England, and the King of Denmark, have hands in this business.

A Castle in the Town of Longsord, held by the English, who stood out a while against the Rebels, being in the end through want of victuals necessitated to be rendred up to them upon promise of quarter, a Popish Priest standing with his Skean in his hand, watching for the coming forth of a Minister then amongst the English, did by thrusting that Skean into the Ministers guts, and ripping up his belly, give that as a signal to the Rebels, for falling upon the rest of the English, which they did accordingly, assoon as the Minister was murdered, killing

n

tl

n

jo

vi the the a for

I

fome, and hanging the rest most perfidiously.

On the ninth of this Month, we received advertisement, that great numbers of men were gathered together in Warlike manner at Swoords in the County of Dublin within fix miles of us, they having the Army of the Rebels behind them on this fide Drogheda; whereupon we then immediately fent out our Warrant, commanding them to disperse: A. Copy whereof we fend your Lordship here inclosed; which was not obeyed. but a Letter fent us from Luke Nettervile, Son to the Lord Vifcount Nettervile, and others of them: A Copy whereof we likewise send here inclosed; whereupon we published the inclosed Manifest, for vindicating this State from their aspersions also: And it is observable, that those Gentlemen at Swoords could even on that very Tuesday night, wherein they alledge they were so affrighted at their Houses, assemble twelve hundred men together in that moment of time, to have in readiness against any attempt from the State, whereas for many days before, they could fit still and look on, whilst an Army of the Enemy lay behind them, betwixt them and Drogheda, and whilft some of them openly declared Rebels, and many of their neighbours, who doubtless hold under hand intelligence with the Rebels, robbed and spoiled the English on all parts round about them; and yet those Gentlemen could not in all that time be either so affrighted by the Rebels, or so compassionate of their poor English neighbours, as to assemble any men for the defence of themselves, or those their poor English neighneighbours; and certainly those Gentlemen might have been as believing in this State who have always used lenity and milderess towards them, as in the Forces of the Rebels which lie to near behind them, and who they know have murdered many of His Majesties good and innocent Subjects, and for ought they know (if there were not secret intelligence between them) might have used them also in like manner.

But the truth is, we conceive those Gentlemen had a mind to joyn with the Rebels, and do now take up pretences to cover their disloyalty, and cast scandal on this Government.

The Rebels in the Pale as in other parts, have caused Masses to be said openly in the Churches, expelled the Ministers from Officiating in their Churches, and forced divers persons for saving their lives and goods to become Papists, openly protessing that no Protestant shall be suffered to live in Ireland, and whilst they insult thus over all the English and Protestants, destroying them for no other reason, but for that they are Protestants and English, we let sall nothing against them touching Religion, and yet they seign things against us, tending that way to give fome colour to their cruel proceedings.

The Rebels of the County of Kildare have taken the Naas and Kildare in the County of Kildare. The Rebels of Meath have taken Trim, an Athboy in the County of Meath, and divers other places; The Rebels of the County of Dublin, have possessed and Rathcoole, and spoyled all the English and Protestants even to the Gates of Dublin, and now about sisteen hundred of the Rebels of Wiclow are in and about Powerscourt, and about ten miles from this City; there are also between this and the Naas within six or seven miles of us a thousand of the Rebels of Kildare, and the Borders of Wiclow and Dublin, so as we are in this City invironed by them on all sides by Land, and they began to Ropacesses to us by Sea; for the Fishermen on the Seas Coasts being all Inish and Papists Inhabitants in the Pale, brake out also into Rebellion with the multitude, and have robbed, spoiled and pillaged even with in the Bay of Dublin feveral Barks coming hither forth of England. And if to revenge this villany on the Fishermen at Clantary and thereabouts, so near us, we send for a Party of Soldiers to burn and spoyl those Rebels houses and corn, the Gentlemen of the Pale will immediately take new offence; but that we will adventure upon; for now there is no dalliance with them, who so far declare themselves against the State, not earing what scorns are put upon the Government, wherein is observable, that the Landlord of Clantarse is one of those Gentlemen rifen in Arms at Swoords.

Your Lordship now fees not only the necessity of hastning with all possible speed our Succours of men and Arms both out of England and Scotland, in greater numbers than those at first defigned, seeing the breach appears to be far greater, and the defection more general than at first was conceived; and yet fo as fuch of them as are ready be not forced to flay for the rest, but that those may be so ordered as to come after, for no flesh can imagine, unless they saw it as we do, the greatnessof our danger, who are but a handful in comparison of the multitudes risen against us : And we desire that the ten thousand defigned to come from Scotland, may be wholly fent away, as well the five thousand intended to be left there in a readiness as the rest, with direction to land as near Dublin as they may, and wherefoever they land to march to Dublin if possibly they can; And to fend away with all speed the ships appointed for guarding these Coasts, is also very necessary to be hastned, and that two or three Ships of good strength follow after: doubtless these Rebels expect a very great supply of Arms and Munition from forraign Parts, either Spain or France.

And although out of the fore fight we had of this extremity fince these troubles began, we have endeavoured to get in some provisions of victual and corn, yet we have not been able to provide our selves sufficiently to stand out any long siege, nor can we now get in any more, our Markets being almost taken away, and the strength of the Rebels surrounding us so as we can fetch

de

hu

th

bt

m

W

m

or

re

G

fu

an

At

ne

ou

Pa

Ve

pre

fetch in no more provisions; wherefore we befeech your Lord. thip that the Magazins of Victuals defigned to be fettled on that fide, may be fetled with all speed, if it be not done already, whereby we and the Succours we expect, may not be in diftress of Victuals for our selves or them, or Oats for our horses. Our want of Victuals is the more in respect of the daily access of the English spoyled in the Country,

The necessity of the defence of the Province of Munster, required the immediate raising of a Regiment of Foot confisting of one thousand men, and two Troops of Horse of threescore each Troop, which threescore we appointed the Lord President to raife, and for the payment and arming of them, we humbly advice, feeing we cannot do it, that mony and arms be fent from thence to Toughall, with a further supply of Arms and Munition for the stores in that Province now much wanting there.

And as the Rebels which have befor us and this City on all fides by Land, do threaten to cut off our Market at Dublin. which we begin to feel already . So they boldly declare, that they will within a day or two cut off the watercourse, which brings water to this City and Caftle; and that done, that their multitudes will immediately burn our Suburbs and beliege our Walls, which we confess we yet want strength to defend, and must want till our Supplies come forth of England or Scotland or both; for here we have but about three thousand men, the rest of the old Companies being dispersed in several needful Garrisons in the Country (excepting seven Companies of them surprised, and cut off by the Rebels at their first rising in Vister and other parts) and about two hundred horse by pole of the old Army, whereof many are Irish : so as considering the spacious ness of this City and Suburbs to be defended, the smallness of our number to defend them, and the great numbers of Papilt Inhabitants in this City and Suburbs; and lastly, the very great numbers of the Rebels, who are fo firong as to aps proach this City with many thousands, and yet leave many thouthousands also at the siege of Drogbeda, we cannot expect to be able to defend this City for any long time against them, without the arrival of our expected Succours.

The Earl of Caftle-baven on the tenth of this Month, prefenred at this Board the inclosed Oath tendered unto him by the Rebels to be fworn by him, which he faith he refused to fwear and we hear they fend it to all parts to be tendered to the people, pressing them to take the Sacrament thereupon.

We did lately in hope to gain some time until our supplies might come, liften to an offer made by fome Popilh Priefts to go to the Rebels and Treat with them, as you may perceive by the inclosed: But fince we find there is little hope of it, for some of the Priests are returned, nothing being wrought thereby.

However it is fit your Lordship should know what we do; we must now crave leave to declare to your Lordship, that things being rifen here to this height, threatning not only the shaking of the Government, but the loss of the Kingdom, as the Supplies of men, Arms, and more Treasure, are of great necessity to be hastned away hither; so is it also needful that we enjoy your Lordships presence here, for the conduct in your own perion of the great and important affairs of this State, as well in the Martial as in the Civil Government, which do necessarily require it in this time of great imminent danger wherein fo far as we may be able to contribute any affiftance with you, we shall be ready to discharge our duties therein, with that loyalty and uprightness of heart which we owe to His Majesty, and the particular respect due from us to your Lordship; but we hope you will bring that strength with you, which may befit the greatness of the King our Master to send with his Lieutenant against so numerous enemies as these Rebels are become, as well for the honour of his Majesty, as for the terrour of those Rebels.

By what we have heretofore and now humbly represented to your Lordship, you may in part see the greatness of the publick danger wherein this Kingdom now flands, and particularly this City and Castle, the principal place thereof, that if those be loft

fo

de

po

gl

21

fo

OU

W

je

H

Ki

all

co

fo

Ro

W

th

w

the tin

Fre

loft (which we now again affure your Lordship, were never in fo great peril to be loft fince the first Conquest of this Kingdom by the Crown of England) the whole Kingdom must quickly follow, that the danger which must thereupon arise to the Kingdom of England, is very great in many respects. There is no possibility to prevent those evils with honour and safety to England but by Succours from thence or Scotland, or both, and that if those Succours come not speedily, it cannot be avoided, but the Kingdom be loft. And if notwithflanding all this, so often and truly made known by us to your Lordship, we shall perish for want of Supplies, we shall carry this comfort with us to our graves or any other burial we shall have, that your Lordship can witness for us to the Royal Majesty and to all the world that we have discharged our duties to God, to His Majefty, to that Nation, and to this, in humbly representing to His MajeRy by your Lordship, the chief Governour of the Kingdom, the extremities and dangers wherein his Kingdom and people stand, and the necessity of hastning Supplies hither, by all possible means for preservation of both, so as whatever become of our persons, our memory cannot be justly stained with so wretched a breach of faith and loyalty to the King our Mafler as to forbear representing thither the extremities wherein we are, whether we have the credit to be believed or no; and that we write truth, and most needful truth, will be found true, when perhaps we shall perish, and which is more considerable, the Kingdom also for want of being believed and succoured in And fo we remain:

> Your Lordships to be commanded, William Parsons. Jo. Burlace.

Ormond Osfery. R. Dillon Char. Lambart. Ad. Loftus. John Temple. Charles Coot. Francis Willoughby. R. Meredith.

From His Majesties Castle of Dublin, 14 December 1641, Post.

Posteript.

moderni H and to flar Or pur Letters to your Lorship of the 22 of November, We did desire to be D informed from thence, whether the Parliament here being once Prorogued. may not again be prorogued by Proclamation before they fit, or whether it be of neceffiry that they must fit again, and the Parliam at to be Proregued the House figting, And word that this Rebellion hath over-fpread the whole Kingdom, and that many members of both Houses are involved therein, so as the Parliament cannot fit. We bumbly defire to know His Majefties pleasure thereins and if bis Majefty fall think fit to Prorogue it, which in prefent we beld expedient, that then we may receive his commandment for Protogation, and that the doubt concerning that be aleaned; for to affemble at that time cannot be with fafety.

Our Letters the third of December, have been hitherto with-held on this

In this most miserable condition, the Lords Justices and Council continued fide by contrary winds.

DI PERSON DAYN

Thut up within the City of Dublin, strugling with all their power for a short prefervation from those difmal calamities which had generally overspread the whole Kingdom: Their care, travel, and endeavours, had hitherto in fome measure extended to the most remote parts; how they might aswage the swelling distempers, or yield some relief to the lamentable complaints and bitter out-cryes daily brought up unto them. But now the evils abroad were grown past their cure, and their own dangers so multiplyed as they were enforced to spend their time almost in a perpetual consultation, never at reft, lometimes raifed in the night by fudden advertisements, always in con-Stant perplexity and trouble, desperately threatned on every side, so as what through treachery within or form without, they had just reason to apprehend the loss of the City and Castle wherein they had enclosed themselves, and to confequently the ruine and destruction of all the British and Protestants throughout all other parts of the Kingdom, And thus they continued until The arrive the most happy and welcome arrival of that truly valiant Gentleman and gallant Commander Sir Simon Harcourt, who being defigned Governour of the City of Dublin, was dispatched away by special Order of Parliament with with For- his Regiment for the preserva ion of that place, and landed here on the last ces out of of December, 1641. to he great joy and comfort of all his Majesties Protestants, and well affected Subjects, and to the terrour of those Rebels now in Arms, who had made themselves believe that no Succours would be lent out of England towards the suppressing of their notorious Rebellion,

And now my intentions were to have proceeded further on in fetting down what hath fallen out within the next four months, and then to have added a brief account of all fuch particular passages as have been acted during the space of six Months within all the several Counties of this Kingdom, and so having

an

cal

fat

for fon

and

go.

very

as t

bar

had

fom

liege

they

the !

chie

and of i

and thele

OVET

ty

open

tably

fins t

to fac

upon

lo co

Prote

of G

the n

Status

they

and I

certai

ing ele

them

al of Sir Harcourt

and so having recollected and presented as it were at one view the publick calamities and miserable desolations of all the four Provinces there, to have fat down and made the first period of this Story.

But I must here take up being unexpectedly called away; I resolve therefore patiently to attend the restoring of this Kingdom and the resettlement of our affairs, and then if I find not this work undertaken and perfected by some more skillul hand, I shall hope to get the rest of my tailing together, and make such surther provision of all other materials as may enable me to go through with the fame.

1

d

f

h ft

C.

W

nt

d-

he 160

ng.

In the mean time it will not be amis to take notice, that the Rebels within very few Months after their first breaking out, had so ordered their affairs, as that by their sudden surprises, their sharp and bloody executions, their barbarous stripping, and despoiling of all sorts that fell into their hands, they had cleared the In-land Counties of all the British Inhabitants: And except some few Caffles and other places of strength which they held severally befreged, and had most of them suddenly after surrendred for want of relief. they had in a manner made themselves absolute Masters in all those Parts of the Kingdom, And for the Maritime places, there were only some of the chief Cities which were held out against them, besides some few other Forts and places of no great importance: As in the province of Lemster the City of Dublin; and in the Province of Munster, the Cities of Cork, Toughall, and Kinsale; in Ulfter, London-Derry, Colraine and Caregfergus: And all thele they held either belieged, much diftreffed, or they were otherways fo overpettred with the multitudes of poor stripped people fied to them for safety, as they were confident they could not long hold out, but that either open force, treachery, famine, or fickness would within a short time inevitably put them into their hands.

Thus it pleased God to humble his own people in this Land, and for their sins to give them up into the power of their cruel Enemies, who began now to factifice to their own nets, to celebrate the memory of their Victories: And upon the prosperity of their undertakings and late success, they were become so consident of prevailing even to the total extirpation of all the British and Protestants out of this Kingdom, as they proceeded to set down a certain form of Government, nominated the persons whom they intended to entrust with the management of their affairs, what Laws they would have revoked, what Statutes newly enacted: And in the mean time they erected a Council which they stilled the Supreme Council, which they invested with absolute Power and Authority, to order and govern the whole Kingdom. This consisted of certain Noblemen, Gentlemen, 3 or 4 Lawyers, and 1 Physitian, who being elected unto this charge, had the place of their residence appointed unto them at Kilkenny, a City in the Province of Lemsser, where they sat ordinarily '

narily for the dispatch of all the great and weighty affairs of their State: They there erected everal Courts of Judicature, they made a new broad Seal, appointed feveral great Officers of State, coyned mony, settled an excile upon all kind of commodities, and formed many other acts of regal power.

Now how they proceeded on in the ordering these their great assairs, what Councils they took, what means they used to enable themselves to make opposition against the Forces sent over by the Parliament of England into all the four Provinces of Ireland, I shall here forbear to speak of. These particulars must be reserved for the ensuing part of this Story, where they will most properly sall in to be related: And where likewise, we shall find so strange a turn, such a remarkable declination of their power, their hearts failing them for sear, their Councils infatuated, their designs blasted, their Forces routed, their sieges raised, such a general desailance and inprosperity in all their undertakings, as we must needs give glory to our Maker, and acknowledge that God hath most wonderfully wrought for the deliverance of the poor small remnant of his people, which were here shut up and designed to the slaughter.

For after a confiderable number of Horfe as well as Foot fent over by the Parliament of England arrived at Dublin, and had in some petty encounters thereabouts tried the mettal of the Rebels, and found their, spirit of a poor and bale allay, they began extreamly to difvalue them, and would be no longer abused with the fabulous reports of their great strength or numbers which with much advantage they had long made use of: Therefore now they began to feck them out in all places, and whereloever they came to meet with them they always prevailed even with small numbers very often against great mulitudes of them, sparing not many times to pursue them into the midst of their greatest fastnesses, and made the very bogs and woods unsafe receptacles for their broken Troops. And with fo great success, was the War profecuted by the English from the first landing of their Forces out of England until the Treaty of that most unhappy Coffation concluded in Sep. 1643, as that in all the en counters they had with the Rebels during that time, they never received an fcorn or defeats, but went on Victoriously, beating them down in all Part of the Kngdom: And so they carried on their work before them without an affiftance either from the meer Irish or the English Irish: For I cannot my felf remember any Gentleman of quality throughout the whole Kingdom tha was there born and bredup a Papilt that put, himfelf into that fervice, or de fired to be lifted as a member of the English Army. It is true, some of the common Soldiers there were of the English trish that came in, and though they were not confiderable for their number, yet they did good fervice an fill with much fury and sharpness followed on upon the excution.

of a Killympy, a C. So at 13 Nosali Lafter, where they fat order corhis charge, haddhe place of their clidence appointed times y Phe ars rn,

ear,
ges
ath
of the ters and oger with an to they the test of the test